WOOLEN COMPANIES AND WOOD INDICTED FOR PROFITEERING

ACCUSED UNDER LEVER ACT

PRICES ROSE 300 PER CENT.

Circuit Court of Appeals Holds Legislation Against Unjust Prices Is Valid.

The American Woolen Company of Massachusetts, the American Woolen Company of New York, and William M. Wood, President of both companies, were indicted under the Lever act on a charge of profiteering by a Federal Grand Jury yesterday.

The indictment contains fourteen counts, each dealing with the sale of woolen cloth at a price alleged to be exorbitant. The cost and sale prices quoted show transactions that netted the woolen companies 100 per cent. profit.

Herbert C. Smyth, special assistant United States Attorney General in charge of the prosecution, said the Government's investigation had revealed that besides "enormous" salaries from both companies, Mr. Wood in 1919 received $515,482.66 in commissions. This is charged as a part of the manufacturing and selling expense.

He further asserted that the companies this year increased prices more than 300 per cent. over those of 1919. It was in this class of materials that the companies are charged with obtaining profits of more than 100 per cent. In the goods manufactured during the present year Mr. Smyth said the inquiry showed prices 30 per cent. above all costs.

By agreement between Mr. Smyth and counsel for the defense Mr. Wood will surrender to Federal Judge A. N. Hand at 11 A. M. tomorrow. Heavy bail will be asked.

Fourteen Specific Charges.

The indictment in its fourteen counts makes the following charges in specific transactions:

1—One piece of cloth, containing 75 yards, costing to manufacture $2.25 per yard, was sold at $3.67½ per yard to William Jerrem's Sons, Jan. 7.

2—One piece of cloth, containing 75½ yards, costing to manufacture $1.62, was sold at $3.25 to Isaac L. Rosenbaum, Jan. 12.

3—One piece of cloth, containing 83½ yards, costing $1.90, was sold to Abraham Simon and Peter Goodstein at $3.90, Jan. 19.

4—Twenty pieces of cloth, containing 1,464½ yards, costing $2.28, were sold at $3.75 to Samuel N. Brinberg, Jan. 6.

5—One-half piece of cloth, containing 83½ yards, costing $1.97, was sold at $3.85 to Abraham and Joseph Feinsod, Jan. 7.

6—One piece of cloth, 24¾ yards, costing $1.96, was sold at $3.92½ to Aaron Flaxman and Max J. Milbaum, Jan. 17.

7—One piece of cloth, containing 58¾ yards, costing $3.50, was sold at $6.20 to M. Ginsberg, Jan. 8.

8—Seven pieces of cloth, containing 365½ yards, costing $2.72, were sold at $3.87½ to H. B. Rubin, Jan. 12.

9—Two pieces of cloth, containing 146¼ yards, costing $1.96, were sold at $3.95 to Morris Kramer, Jan. 15.

10—One piece of cloth, containing 73½ yards, costing $1.96, was sold at $4.00 to Isaac Appleman, Jan. 5.

13—Two pieces of cloth containing 122¼ yards, costing $1.73, were sold at $3.87½ to Louis Schentes, Jan. 17.

14—One piece of cloth, containing 51 yards, costing $1.95, was sold at $3.90 to Morris Katz.

All sales were made with a provision for a discount of 10 per cent. on payment within ten days, and a discount of ? per cent. on payment within four months.

Hughes Retained By Defense.

Former Justice Charles E. Hughes has been retained to take charge of the defense, in which the law firm of Hays, Hershfield & Wolf will participate. At their offices yesterday it was said that the defendants had no statement to make.

At about the same time that this indictment was sent to Judge Hand, late yesterday afternoon, announcement was made that the United States Court of Appeals had just returned an opinion upholding the constitutionality of the Lever Act as a war measure, and representatives of Hays, Hershfield & Wolf were arguing before Federal Judge Knox for the issuance of an injunction to restrain the Grand Jury from proceeding against the defendants on the ground that the Lever Act was unconstitutional.

Mr. Smyth said that the investigators, who were directed from Washington, had been invited by Mr. Wood to show how far from being profiteers he and his companies were. Correspondence was

Railroads Ready to Pay More If They Get Honest Service

CHICAGO, May 26.—The railroads of the United States are not opposed to a fair increase in wages for their employes, if the employes guarantee that they will give honest, conscientious work in return, E. Mr. Whiter finished his statement today and the labor side will start rebuttal tomorrow. The Order of Railway Trainmen will make the first reply. They will be represented by W. N. RULES AGAINST PARTS OF LEVER ACT

Judge Anderson Holds Three Sections Unconstitutional in Coal Case.

HE SUSTAINS SECTION 9

While Thirteen Counts Against Miners and Operators Are Quashed, Five Still Hold.

INDIANAPOLIS, May 26.—Judge A. B. Anderson in the United States District Court today held unconstitutional three sections of the Lever act and quashed thirteen of the eighteen counts of the indictment against 125 miners and operators, based on these sections, in ruling on a motion by Charles E. Hughes, counsel for the United Mine Workers of America, to quash the indictment. The indictment grew out of the allegation by the Government that miners and operators had conspired to reduce the output of coal during last Winter's bituminous strike.

The sections held unconstitutional were Sections 4, 20 and amended Section 4. Five counts in the indictment were upheld, these being based on Section 9, which the Court held valid.

Section 4, which makes the willful destruction of necessaries for the purpose of enhancing prices unlawful, was declared insufficient to found a criminal charge because it did not contain any penalty for violation.

Section 20, which deals with the storing and holding of necessaries to limit supplies and affect market prices, was declared by the Judge to be arbitrary legislation, and he said that it could not stand.

Section 9 was declared to be constitutional because "it was not repugnant to any provision of the Constitution of the United States."

Following Judge Anderson's ruling, Mr. Hughes and counsel for other defendants held a short conference. Mr. Hughes then argued a demurrer for the quashing of the indictments upheld by the court. His argument was chiefly along the lines of his previous argument at the time the original motion to quash was presented on May 7. He contended that the entire act was vague and insufficiently strong for the basis of a case and did not contain sufficient penalty provisions. The sufficiency of the indictment also was challenged on the ground that the coal business during the time covered by the indictment was governed by rules promulgated by President Wilson.

S. E. Miller of Indianapolis argued for the operators in favor of the demurrer and Dan W. Simmsey, special United States District Attorney, spoke for the Government.

Judge Anderson late in the afternoon gave a decision overruling the demurrer.

Pleas of not guilty were entered by the attorneys for the defendants with five exceptions, and Nov. 8 was the date set for the trial.

Judge Anderson's Decision.

In his ruling, holding unconstitutional three sections of the Lever act, Judge Anderson set forth that the indictment was based on sections four, nine and twenty-six of the act and on section four as amended. He quoted these sections. Section nine, the one held valid, follows:

"That any person who conspires, combines, agrees, or arranges with any other person (a) to limit the facilities for transporting, producing, manufacturing, supplying, storing, or dealing in any necessaries; (b) to restrict the supply of any necessaries; (c) to restrict the distribution of any necessaries; (d) to prevent, limit, or lessen the manufacture or production of any necessaries in order to enhance the price thereof, shall upon conviction thereof be fined not exceeding $10,000 or be imprisoned for not more than two years, or both."

Judge Anderson then turned to the question of whether or not the classification in amended Section 4 and Section 20 was reasonable or arbitrary. He cited the Connolly case, brought under the anti-trust laws of the State of Illinois and in which the exemption of agricultural products in the hands of the producer was held to be arbitrary classification.

"No case," continued the Court, "has been called to my attention wherein the doctrine here laid down upon the question as to what is arbitrary classification has been modified.

Calls Classification Arbitrary.

"Now let us apply the rule of this case to amended Section 4." By amended Section 4 farmers, gardeners, horticulturists, vineyardists, planters, ranchmen, dairymen, stockmen and other agriculturists—persons who produce foods and feeds—with respect to the products produced or raised upon land owned, leased or cultivated by them, are wilfully destroy such foods and feeds for the purpose of enhancing the price or restricting the supply thereof;

HERRERA GIVES UP; IS BEING TAKEN TO MEXICO CITY

MURDER INQUIRY ARRANGED

Obregon Intrusts Investigation Into Carranza's Death to Four Mexico City Reporters.

NO HARM MEANT BONILLAS

Inquiry from the Washington State Department Elicits Assurances of His Safety.

QUERETARO, Mexico, May 26.—General Rodolfo Herrera today surrendered to General Lazaro Cardenas at Coyutla, Vera Cruz, and is being taken to Mexico City to tell all he knows about the death of President Carranza, according to a message received by General P. Elias Calles today.

General Calles has ordered all persons accompanying Carranza at the time of his death to be detained and questioned.

MEXICO CITY, May 26 (Associated Press).—The following telegram was given out at the headquarters of General Obregon this afternoon:

"Coyutla, Vera Cruz, via Zacatlan, Puebla, May 26.

"General Alvaro Obregon (urgent):

"General Rodolfo Herrera presented himself today and continues with my column toward Papantla. From there Herrera goes to Mexico City to report on the death of Carranza, according to your orders.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, May 26.—General Rodolfo Herrera, accused of murdering Carranza, telegraphed to General Obregon this afternoon that he was en route to Mexico City to answer the charges against him. Herrera has a document drafted by Manuel Aguirre Berlanga, Carranza's Minister of the Interior, written by Congressman Paulino Fontes, ex-Manager of Railways under Carranza, and signed by several members of the Carranza party, to the effect that Carranza, after being wounded, shot himself in the breast over the heart with his own pistol.

The doctor who examined the late President's body in the town of Tlaxcalantongo stated this afternoon to THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent that the bullet wounds in the breast were pistol shots. General Fontes also made a statement to THE TIMES saying that when he saw the body of Carranza a pistol with its barrel covered with blood was lying on his breast and also that the thumb and fingers of the left hand were powder-stained.

Congressman Mandes of the District of Tlaxcalantongo corroborates the story of Vilchis, already published in THE TIMES, stating that General Mariel had been warned that Herrera had joined the revolution, but Mariel said that Herrera was acting a part in order to obtain arms.

Mariel will be tried by court martial. General Obregon stated this afternoon to THE TIMES that he was convinced attempts were being made to create division between himself, Gonzales and Pelaes in order to avoid responsibility for the death of Carranza. But he insisted that the truth be forced to light through examination of all members of the Carranza party, General Herrera and the men who were with him.

"It is strange," said Obregon, "that Herrera not only treated his prisoners with all consideration, but refused to accept money and jewels offered for their lives, as the prisoners were afraid of danger. Herrera assured them that they were at liberty. He could have obtained large sums of money from these prisoners if he wanted it, but they say they were well treated.

Your correspondent was with General Obregon when the news of Carranza's death was received. Obregon was deeply moved and immediately ordered the arrest and execution of whomever was responsible, but when later news arrived showing that all of Carranza's aids were unwounded Obregon ordered Herrera to report immediately at Mexico City.

General Pablo Gonsales informed THE TIMES Correspondent today that three days before the death of Carranza he received a telegram from Generals Mariel, Montes and Lucio Blanco stating that they had recognized the revolution and asking to be allowed to join the movement.

General Mariel was then in command of the Carranza party, and he it was who assured Carranza that General Herrera was loyal and could be trusted.

New Budget Plan Gives President Power Jointly With Treasury to Aid Economies

WASHINGTON, May 26.—A compromise bill proposing a Federal budget system, effective next year, was reported today by Senate and House conferees. Under the provisions of the measure the President and the Secretary of the Treasury would act jointly in presenting an annual budget to Congress.

The Secretary would be Director of the Budget, with power to revise, co-ordinate, increase or decrease department estimates. The President would approve or disapprove the budget and send it to Congress.

A Budget Bureau in the Treasury is proposed, with a budget officer in each department. There also would be a general accounting officer under a Controller of the United States—a new office—who would review appropriation estimates and submit annual reports to the President and Congress. The Controller also would prescribe uniform accounting systems and report on the necessity of appropriations and legality of expenditures.

The President's recommendations to Congress would include an alternative budget, grouped according to services as well as by departments. In the alternative budget would be assembled appropriations for public works, national defense and other major activities, and Congress would have the option of accepting either of the two plans. The President also would be required to submit Administration plans for raising as well as expending Government funds, and give detailed statements of past expenditures.

The Budget Bureau would make a detailed study of department activities, with a view to co-ordination and economy.

The conference agreement on the legislation was unanimous.

MAY PIGEONHOLE PLEA FOR MANDATE

HITCHCOCK OPPOSED TO IT

Other Democrats Reported of Like Mind—Committees to Consider Subject Today.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—Strong intimations came today from members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and the House Foreign Affairs Committee that the President's request for authority to accept an American mandate over Armenia would be pigeonholed and perhaps not reach a vote. The committees have their regular meetings tomorrow, and the President's message will come up for consideration then.

Sentiment against the mandate is not confined to Republicans. Many Democrats voiced their opposition to it today, including Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska, who led the Administration forces in the treaty fight. He said that he would not support the proposal and that he understood other Democrats on the Foreign Relations Committee would oppose it.

Some irritation was voiced by members of the House Foreign Affairs Committee when Secretary Colby failed to appear before that body this morning in response to invitation to give his views on the mandate. He sent word that business at the department prevented his appearance and later sent a note saying he would be glad to appear on Friday.

Representative Mason of Illinois introduced a resolution today asking Mr. Wilson twelve questions in regard to the proposed mandate. He desired to know how and why the army or the navy should be used and how much the mandate would cost in men and money. Typical questions were "whether the President has an agreement with the other nations of the world that lie between the United States and Armenia" and "if he has made an endeavor to exchange mandates with Great Britain to the end that the United States could have a mandate for the oil fields of Persia and allow Great Britain the honor of a mandate in Armenia?"

PARIS HOPES AMERICA WILL TAKE MANDATE

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 25.—President Wilson's recommendation to Congress that the United States accept a mandate for Armenia is welcome news to Paris. There is a sincere hope here that Congress will give its consent. For America to assume the Armenian burden would be like manna from heaven to the Allies. The presence of 30,000 or 40,000 American troops in Armenia with the prestige of the United States back of them would have a stabilizing influence in Turkish affairs, the importance of which could not be overestimated. It would be perhaps the one thing that would make the Turkish treaty workable.

To have American troops put Mustapha Kemal out of what President Wilson regards as the property of Armenia would do much to discredit the Nationalist leader who threatens to make so much trouble for the British and French as well as Italian and Greek interests in enforcing the treaty. To have an American military barrier against the entrance of the Bolsheviki into Turkey is a thing much to be desired by the Allies, and to have American ability and money make a stable State out of the unstable structure the Allies have erected would be not only to the interest of Armenia, but of all the nations interested in Turkey.

President Wilson's arbitration of the Armenian frontiers, without the assumption of a mandate for Armenia by America, would probably prove a futile undertaking. It would do no good to trace the Armenian boundaries on the White House lawn unless there were some assurance of maintaining them. In view of the repeated refusals of the allied nations to assume the task of protecting Armenia against its enemies, there seems little reason to suppose that

INVISIBLE SUPPLY TRACED

Four Men Said to Control Business—Would Make Refineries Public Utilities.

That the American sugar business is in the hands of three or four persons, that there is a big "invisible" supply of the commodity somewhere in the United States, and that 1,000,000 tons of the cane product is stored in Cuba for a higher price, were cardinal statements made by witnesses yesterday before the Lusk Joint Legislative Committee determining the influence of high prices on social unrest.

A flat statement that American banks had lent $250,000,000 to Cuban sugar concerns "for holding sugar," made by one of the witnesses, lost much of its force when the witness admitted he couldn't "swear to the loan as a fact." An assertion that the Arbuckle sugar company planned a price jump to 26 cents in forty-eight hours also failed of verification.

George H. Finlay, sugar broker at 82 Wall Street, the first witness to be examined, admitted that "there is a very large invisible supply in this country, very much larger than it has ever been at any time in the past." He rapped the Federal Administration for inaction on the Cuban Government offer of 6½ cent sugar, now selling for 25 to 30 cents a pound.

Would Cut Candy Consumption.

As remedies for the present situation, the witness recommended 90 day rationing, a periodical fixing of price, regardless of cost, and a cut down on candy eating.

"You said you were in Cuba about three weeks ago," said Deputy State Attorney General Berger. "Tell us what is the general situation there with regard to the sugar market at this time."

"In Cuba there are enormous stocks of sugar," responded Mr. Finlay. "There are about 650,000 tons at the ports, and some of the plantations have their whole crop in their warehouses in the interior which are not reported in statistics."

"Are they holding that for a higher market?"

"Decidedly."

Q.—Who is holding that sugar? Is it being held by local Cuban sugar interests or by American concerns interested in Cuban plantations? A.—It is both: I am not certain whether you are aware of the fact that $250,000,000 has been loaned by American banks to concerns in Cuba for holding sugar.

Q.—Are those Cuban concerns or American concerns? A.—That I don't know. I know the money has been loaned on against sugar in warehouses. I know the money is out.

Increasing his estimate of the amount of sugar held to 1,000,000 tons raw, Mr. Finlay thought the Cuban 1920 yield would run to 3,900,000 tons, about 700,000 tons higher than other estimates offered to the investigators. He testified that the Cuban fields were dispatching 60,000 tons a week to the United States, and that Great Britain so far had obtained 600,000 tons, France 46,000 tons, Canada 100,000 tons, Australia 5,000 tons and Spain 40,000 tons.

Rafael M. Delgado, recently established sugar broker at 50 Church Street, testified as to his business methods, disclosing that he frequently sold Porto Rican sugar without knowing what the sugar cost. Then came Raymond M. Wilson, President of B. Axtell Co. Inc., 104 Wall Street.

He spoke bitterly of the tolling system of the big refiners and declared that "the regular trade" is being forced into expensive competition in the open market for foreign sugars.

"I think we all know Mr. Spreckles well enough to know that he is a very shrewd man," remarked the witness, "and I do not think he is going to lose any money by letting his plant stand idle as his claims would be the case if he did not do this toll business."

Tells of Invisible Supply.

"We agree with Mr. Finlay that there is a big invisible supply in this country, but I disagree with him in that I do not think it is in the hands of the housewives."

Counsel for the committee immediately shot in a question as to where the "invisible" supply was hiding.

"I believe it is in the hands of a few large manufacturers," replied Mr.

BRIDE 18, BRIDEGROOM 21

Engagement Had Been Kept Secret from Both Families, the Parents Say.

YOUNG MAN AN ART STUDENT

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, May 26.—Miss Edith C. Gould, the eighteen-year-old daughter of George J. Gould and sister of Lady Decies, eloped to Elkton, Md., today with Carroll L. Wainwright, 21 years old, member of a wealthy New York family.

The young people, who scorned the idea of an elaborate wedding, as did Miss Josephine Widener and Carter Leidy of this city, were married this afternoon by the Rev. John McElmoyle of the Elkton Presbyterian Church.

It was a whirlwind elopement, Mr. Wainwright and Miss Gould racing into Elkton a little before 2 o'clock. The prospective bridegroom, at the wheel of his car, which bore a Pennsylvania license number, quickly learned the location of the County Clerk's office.

Mr. Wainwright displayed just a trace of nervousness as he answered the necessary questions. When the license was handed him and he had paid the fee he laughed boyishly. Miss Gould smiled and nodded her thanks to the clerk.

The couple re-entered their car and drove a short distance to the minister's home. Mr. McElmoyle apparently had been apprised of their visit.

The ceremony occupied only a few minutes. Mr. Wainwright slipped a platinum ring on his bride's finger and they were declared man and wife. Congratulations were given by several in the parsonage.

Leaving the minister's home Mr. and Mrs. Wainwright returned to their automobile and started in the direction of Philadelphia.

Surprise to Both Families.

Confirmation of the report of the marriage at Elkton, Md., yesterday of Miss Edith Gould and Carroll L. Wainwright, was given out last night at the town residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George J. Gould, 857 Fifth Avenue. It was announced that a telegram had been received from the young people saying that they had been married.

"The family was greatly surprised," the statement said. "There is no particular reason for the elopement. The young man has always been acceptable to the family, who now wish them all success."

Earlier in the evening, when the first report of the marriage reached here, it was impossible to obtain any confirmation of it, as the families of both the bride and bridegroom were completely taken by surprise.

Mr. Wainwright's father, Stuyvesant Wainwright, who lives in Rye, N. Y., said at that time that he knew nothing of his son's intention to marry. He declared that he was not acquainted with any of the Gould family and did not even know that his son was engaged to Miss Gould.

At the home of the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Carl F. Wolff, 56 East Fifty-sixth Street, it was learned that Mr. Wainwright had first met Miss Gould about a year ago. They were good friends and he was a frequent caller at the Gould home. Neither of them had confided their engagement to their parents, nor told of their intention of getting married. Mr. Wainwright was said to have left town yesterday morning. He is the fourth son of Mrs. Wolff by her first husband.

The marriage of Miss Gould marks the third surprise marriage in the family within the last three years. In July, 1917, Kingdon Gould, a brother of the bride, surprised society when he married Miss Annunziata Camilla Maria Lucci, in St. Patrick's Cathedral. Three days later George J. Gould, Jr., was married to Miss Laura M. Carter of Freehold, N. J., a niece of Mrs. E. H. Calhan, with whom she lived, in Philadelphia, without any previous announcement.

Miss Gould is not yet 18, and was to have made her formal bow to society next Winter. She is fond of outdoor sports and has often appeared in entertainments for charity, generally in tableaux. She is the youngest but one of the seven children of Mr. and Mrs. Gould. Miss Gloria Anna Gould, her junior, is about 14 years old.

Kingdon Gould is the eldest of the children. Jay Gould, named for his grandfather, is a year younger, and in 1911 he married Miss Anne Douglas Graham, daughter of Mrs. Hubert Vos.

Miss Marjorie Gwynne Gould, the eldest of the daughters, was married to Anthony J. Drexel, Jr., in 1916.

The fifth married child is Lady Decies, who was Miss Helen Vivian Gould. She was married to Lord Decies in this city, in 1911.

Mr. Wainwright makes his home with his mother, with his two brothers, Stuyvesant Wainwright, Jr., and Loudon B. Wainwright. Another brother is J. Howard Wainwright, who married Miss Katherine Walker, and they live at 44 East Sixty-first Street. The bridegroom was in the Naval Reserve force during the war but did active duty. His three brothers were also in the service. Stuyvesant Wainwright, Jr., was a Lieutenant on a destroyer in foreign waters; Loudon B. was in the army air service, and John Wainwright was also in the Naval Reserve.

Peace Resolution Veto Soon; Predict Strong Wilson Message

WASHINGTON, May 26.—President Wilson will veto the Republican peace resolution and send his veto message to Congress within a few days, according to information given to Democratic leaders at the Capitol today.

No intimation was received as to whether the President would take any action with reference to the Versailles Treaty or discuss reservations. The President was reported to have outlined his veto message to his Cabinet and it was said that it would be a "strong" message.

SUTHERLAND LEADS IN WEST VIRGINIA

4,502 Ahead of General Wood in the Latest Returns from Primary.

DAVIS VOTES WRITTEN IN

Vermont Chooses Eight Delegates, Uninstructed, but All Favoring Wood.

WHEELING, W. Va., May 26.—The lead of Senator Howard Sutherland over General Wood for the Republican Presidential preference in the West Virginia primary of yesterday continued to increase tonight as additional precincts were heard from.

Returns from 1,322 out of 1,850 precincts in the State, tabulated at midnight by The Intelligencer, gave Sutherland 24,397, and Wood, 19,895.

Names Written in Not Counted.

Special to The New York Times.

WHEELING, W. Va., May 26.—The names of John W. Davis, envoy to London; Bryan, Cox and other Democratic candidates were written on many ballots by Democrats at yesterday's primary election, but as the printed ballot did not carry names of Democratic aspirants and the Attorney General had ruled that names written in could not be counted, few if any counties have reported the written votes. Anyway, they cannot be counted officially.

Special to The New York Times.

CHARLESTON, West Va., May 26.—No tabulation has been made by precinct boards throughout West Virginia of a complimentary vote, variously estimated by Democratic leaders of this city at 2,000 to 4,000, for Ambassador John W. Davis as choice for the Democratic nomination for President.

L. Poteet, an official of the 26th Precinct of Charleston, said tonight that Republican members of the Election Board in his precinct refused to permit the counting of any names written on the ballots on the grounds that they had received instructions from the Republican Clerk of the County not to tabulate any names except those printed on the ballot.

As an indication of the number of votes given to Davis, THE TIMES correspondent canvassed fifty Democrats here and found seventeen of them had voted for the Envoy.

Vermont Elects Wood Delegates.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTPELIER, Vt., May 26.—The Republican State Convention in session today elected eight delegates to the national convention, uninstructed, but individually favoring General Leonard Wood. The convention adopted a platform which condemned President Wilson's "autocratic policy" and urged adoption of the Peace Treaty with reservations. The treaty plank reads:

"We deplore the autocratic conduct of the President in negotiating the Treaty of Versailles without reference to American sentiment and without representation of American ideals of duty and justice embodied therein. We recognize the duty of our country toward the maintenance of worldwide peace and liberty, but we condemn the League of Nations as incorporated in the Peace Treaty because it imposes upon the United States the duty to engage in war in foreign lands, as a matter of international obligation, independent of the national sense of right and at the dictates of a power other than our own Government. We favor the adoption of said treaty with such reservations as shall completely secure American rights and liberties. We favor the proposed defensive alliance for the protection of France against aggression."

General Wood addressed the convention and was warmly received. He urged increased production of necessities and rigid economy, especially in governmental expenditures, as a means to combat the high cost of living and the present unrest. He also urged more stringent examination of immigrants, that the best class may be procured, and insisted the Government should not abandon the immigrant when he leaves the ship but place him where he may do the most good for himself and his adopted country.

"The country is tired of knocking, of pulling things to pieces; tired of hearing about the mistakes of the war. It wants a constructive policy and that is what the Republican Party must have. It must look forward.

"We are now the leading nation of the world, the most powerful. We have the bulk of the world's wealth, we have a position of leadership we could not escape if we would.

"Now is the time to 'get together. Our road lies ahead, not behind; we are through with the fighting in this war, but there are many problems in front of us; problems of readjustment which follow every great war. There is nothing of politics in them. They are straight problems of sound government and of an efficient and economical administration. Many of them are difficult, but they are not particularly serious if we will meet them in the same spirit of co-operation with which we met the problems of the war."

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—Scrutiny of the campaigns of Major Gen. Leonard Wood and Attorney General A. Mitchell Palmer today by the Senate committee investigating expenditures and activities in behalf of aspirants for the Presidency brought to light more information than had been disclosed at any previous session of the inquiry.

William Cooper Procter of Cincinnati, one of the managers of the national Wood campaign, gave the committee information indicating that the Wood campaign fund was not less than $1,000,000, and probably over that, of which he personally advanced or lent $500,000. He said that between $800,000 and $700,000 was spent in educational publicity throughout the country, though he emphasized that he could not fix the figure exactly, and that his estimate was based upon a total campaign fund of $1,000,000, which members of the committee assumed from his testimony had been raised.

Tax Attorneys Palmer Managers.

Mr. Palmer's campaign was gone into first. The committee was much less interested in his comparatively insignificant campaign fund, which amounted to but $59,610, than in the personnel and activities of some of the chief contributors to the fund and active workers for Mr. Palmer, including ex-Congressman C. C. Carlin and Bruce Sterling, manager of the Attorney General's campaign in Pennsylvania.

The committee established the fact that Mr. Carlin, an attorney of Alexandria, Va., was counsel for Mr. Dupuy of Pittsburgh, former Chairman of the Board of the Crucible Steel Company, in what Mr. Carlin termed a "controversy" with the Government over the income tax returns of Mr. and Mrs. Dupuy. This controversy involves $3,000,000, the Government claiming that amount, half as income tax and half as penalty for an alleged incorrect tax return.

It further developed that Mr. Sterling, a member of a law firm at Uniontown, Pa., was of counsel for a steel company involved in a Government suit to recover between $9,000,000 and $10,000,000 from the Crucible Steel Company and some related or associated companies, under the tax laws. That suit, it was stated, was compromised when the Crucible Steel Company made restitution to the Government of more than $9,000,000.

These were the chief disclosures of the day, but there were many other important points developed during the testimony.

Procter Tells of Advancing $500,000.

In his testimony Mr. Procter, the Cincinnati soap millionaire who has taken a leading part in promoting the Wood campaign, went back to the beginning of the Wood movement, to the time when John T. King, of Connecticut, following a disagreement with General Wood, severed his connection with the General's candidacy. At the time the Leonard Wood League was organized, it did not put the General forward as a Presidential candidate, Mr. Procter said. It just put him forward.

Getting down to money matters, he said that the contributions to the Wood fund had been "very disappointing." He was unable to estimate how much they totaled, he said; referred the committee for that information to the various treasurers of the Wood movement, who are to be heard later. He said however, that he knew the contributions were "substantially under $500,000."

"The burden of the campaign has fallen on me," he said. "I contributed $10,000 and since then have advanced $500,000 of my own. My advances total more than the contributions."

"Do you expect to get back that $500,000?" asked Senator Kenyon.

"'Expect' is too strong a word," was the reply. "I don't know how much I'll get back, and I don't much care."

Later he said that he had a "faint expectation" of reimbursement, but that he did not know who was going to provide the money.

"General Wood has a very large number of friends," he said.

Denies Underwriting Agreement.

"Don't you know, as a matter of fact, that a group of very rich men have agreed to underwrite the Wood campaign for any sum needed?" asked Senator Reed.

"I am quite positive they have not," replied Mr. Procter.

"And that they will contribute a very large sum?"

"They have not and I know they will not contribute a very large sum."

"Will you continue to make advances?"

"I will, in any amount necessary."

"Why?"

"Because I am determined to go through with this undertaking. I am very much in earnest about it."

"And you've had no assurance and no agreement with anybody about getting back any portion of it?" asked Senator Reed.

"No."

"How did they come to select you, who have had no experience in politics, to manage this campaign?" continued Mr. Reed.

"I'm sure I don't know."

"It was then a bolt out of the blue, a pan of milk off the top shelf, that hit you all of a sudden?"

"Yes, it was."

"Have you talked with any business men about the Wood candidacy and campaign funds?"

"I have not. I have never asked any one one contribution."

"Well, who is going to pay you back?"

"I don't know. But General Wood's friends, as I said, are very numerous."

"Did H. M. Bilisby contribute $50,000 to the campaign?" asked Mr. Reed.

"No; he contributed, I believe, but not that much. How much I don't know."

Explaining the uses to which the Wood money was put, Mr. Procter said that the campaign was based on publicity.

"That makes it float," remarked Senator Kenyon.

Of all the money spent, 65 to 70 per cent. was used in educational publicity, through newspapers and other mediums, Mr. Procter said. Senator Edge of New Jersey said that he would assume from the previous testimony that something like $1,000,000 had been raised through contributions and Mr. Procter's advances and that therefore from $600,000 to $700,000 had been spent in educating the public.

"Do you mean to say that $700,000 was the limit of what was spent?" asked Senator Kenyon.

"No," replied Mr. Procter. "as I have said, I don't know what was spent, but whatever it was, from 65 to 70 per cent. of it went into publicity."

Monell and Wrigley Contributed.

The largest contributor, Mr. Procter said, aside from himself, was Ambrose Monell of New York, who, he believed, gave $20,000. William Wrigley, Jr., of Chicago, chewing gum manufacturer, also gave something, though he did not know the amount.

His knowledge of the names of contributors and the sums they gave was very slight, the witness said, and he asked the committee to get that information from A. A. Sprague, Treasurer at the Chicago headquarters.

A near clash between Mr. Procter and Senator Reed took place when the latter pressed Mr. Procter about a conversation with General Wood with reference to John T. King. Mr. Reed insister on knowing whether Mr. Procter talked to General Wood about it, and also what Mr. King said to Mr. Procter, if anything, about the Wood movement. The witness did not wish to lisguss the matter and appealed to Senator Kenyon.

"Does this come within the scope of your inquiry?" he asked.

Republican Senators were disposed to take Mr. Procter's side, reminding Mr. Reed that Mr. King is to appear as a witness.

"I know he is," snapped Senator Reed, "but what is there about this campaign that can't be laid bare? What are you all so afraid of?"

The examination proceeded, but the sum of the information elicited was that Mr. King had declined absolutely to give Mr. Procter any information concerning his reasons for leaving the Wood camp, and that Mr. Procter had discussed the matter with General Wood.

There was no way to tell, Mr. Procter said, how much was raised locally in various States and in large cities for the Wood fund. He said that eight or ten States raised money locally, but he was not informed as to the sums.

"Who asked you to take the direction of the Wood campaign?" Senator Pomerene inquired.

"I think a partner of Elihu Root in New York first mentioned it to me," Mr. Procter replied.

More Than $77,000 Spent in Ohio.

After some further questioning as to publicity methods Mr. Procter was excused, and Major Edwin Morgan of Alliance, Ohio, the Secretary and Treasurer of the Wood organization in that State, was called.

He said that the Chicago headquarters sent $25,000 to Ohio and that not a cent was raised by the State organization as such. Expenditures, he added, totaled $25,000.60, with bills remaining unpaid of $10,000 or $12,000. He explained that in the three largest counties in Ohio, the Wood campaigns were financed locally, and that neither the State nor the national organization sent in any money. These counties were Cuyahoga (Cleveland), Franklin (Columbus), and Hamilton (Cincinnati). Mr. Morgan had no means of knowing how much was contributed locally in those counties, he said.

All of the Ohio publicity was contracted and paid for from the Chicago headquarters, he said. He understood that a Columbus advertising agency received a $35,000 or $40,000 contract.

Senators tried to get an approximation of the Ohio expense, but because of the lack of figures on the three big counties they were unable to come any closer than $77,000, the total of the various amounts mentioned by Mr. Morgan.

"Where was the largest proportion of the vote cast in Ohio?" asked Senator Kenyon.

"In Cleveland, Columbus, and Cincinnati," replied Mr. Morgan.

"So in the counties where you got the biggest portion of votes neither the national nor the State organization used any money?" was the comment.

"That's correct; it was financed locally," Mr. Morgan replied.

The money that was spent was absorbed by rent, office expenses and postage, Mr. Morgan said, and perhaps some of it to help finance a woman's organization, which he said Major Gen. Glenn, U. S. A., retired, attempted to form in the State.

Mr. Morgan took a fling at the Hardings and Johnson workers, who, he said, had spread charges of the fabulous expenditures in Ohio on behalf of General Wood.

"It's just a case of sour grapes on the part of Harding and Johnson," said Mr. Morgan. "That's why they are making these charges, which are unfounded."

Colonel Alger Gave $50,000 for Wood.

The committee also obtained figures on the Michigan campaign from representatives of Senator Hiram Johnson and General Wood. Representative Cramton of Michigan, Senator Johnson's manager there, said that a total of about $13,000 was spent, of which $6,200 was sent by the California headquarters, something over $1,000 was raised locally, and the remainder was a deficit of more than $5,000.

Asked to comment on Wood expenditures, Mr. Cramton said that he had seen evidences of the lavish use of money in newspaper advertising. He said that at one time a lot of special delivery letters were sent into the State from Wood headquarters in Chicago and that the Wood managers offered a reward of $500 to learn who sent them.

"The letters contained an appeal to Catholic voters," he said, "and were sent by special delivery to the Secretaries of all the Masonic lodges in Michigan."

Charles A. Weissert, Secretary-Treasurer of the Michigan Leonard Wood League, told the committee that all the money spent there was raised locally. It totaled $24,311.72, he said, and was made up of four large and a number of small contributions. The largest contributor, he said, was Colonel F. M. Alger, Wood manager in Michigan, who gave $50,000; Russell A. Alger, W. C. Potter and J. C. Stones each gave $1,000.

Carlin Tells of Palmer Fund.

Ex-Congressman Carlin, in beginning his testimony, said that he could tell all about the Palmer campaign except in Pennsylvania, where he was told to keep "hands off." That instruction came from Bruce Sterling, Mr. Carlin said. He submitted a list of contributors and an account of expenditures.

The contributions, he said, totaled $59,610, and among the chief contributors were:

Joseph F. Guffey, of the Guffey-Gillespie Oil Company, Pittsburgh, $10,000; Frank L. Crocker, New York, $5,000; Francis P. Garvan, Assistant Attorney General, $1,000; ex-Judge J. H. Covington, $2,000; Bozack Michael, Scranton, Pa., $1,500, and John F. Crosby, Hartford, Conn., $1,000.

Mr. Carlin was asked to identify the contributors. He said that he did not know exactly who ex-Judge Covington was.

"Wasn't he the man who was with the Alien Property Custodian, and wasn't there some question about a fee he got?" asked Senator Kenyon.

The witness did not recall. His knowledge of the identity of the contributors was considered so incomplete that Senator Kenyon inquired whether money was contributed from any one. "some man who had failed to do so."

under Federal indictment." Mr. Carlin said that was not done.

"I'm growing very tired," said Senator Reed, "of having campaign managers appear here who don't know anything about the campaigns of the men they represent. The committee has had to contend with that right along. Frank Hitchcock came as representing General Wood, and if he doesn't know any more about the Wood campaign than he told us, and a good campaign manager is worth $1,000,000 a year, he ought to get about $2.50."

Mr. Carlin, continuing his accounting, said that the $59,610 did not include $10,000 used in Georgia. The Attorney General made no contribution himself, and displayed a lack of interest in his own campaign, Mr. Carlin said.

"The fact is," he said, "he has been forced into this campaign by the overwhelming force of public sentiment."

"As manifested in Michigan?" suggested Senator Kenyon.

"No, as manifested in Georgia," replied Mr. Carlin.

Mr. Carlin said, in reply to queries, that so far as he knew, only one of 500 delegates claimed for Mr. Palmer was a Federal officeholder. He knew of no postmasters or employes of the Internal Revenue Collector who were working for Mr. Palmer's nomination.

Explains Dupuy Tax Case.

Senator Kenyon asked Mr. Carlin whether he was counsel for the packers.

"I am not."

"For the Crucible Steel Company?"

"No."

"Aren't you counsel for Mr. Dupuy, President of the Crucible Steel Company?"

"I am counsel for Mr. Dupuy, former Chairman of the board."

"The Crucible Steel Company defrauded the Government of $9,000,000, or $10,000,000, didn't it?" continued Senator Kenyon.

"So I understand," said Mr. Carlin.

"And you helped defend them?"

"I did not. I have been counsel for Mr. Dupuy in matters relating to his personal income tax and that of Mrs. Dupuy. I have not and never have had any connection with or knowledge of the Crucible Steel Company matter."

Asked to explain his work for Mr. Dupuy, Mr. Carlin said that the Government "got after" the Dupuys because of their tax returns, and he was retained by a Mr. Ewing to represent Mr. Dupuy.

"Mr. Dupuy gets his income from Crucible Steel, doesn't he?" asked Senator Kenyon.

"He got a salary."

"Has there been any threat of criminal prosecution in the Dupuy case?" asked Senator Reed, after Mr. Carlin had explained that the Government claimed $1,500,000 income tax and $1,500,000 penalty, and that Mr. Dupuy conceded that he owed $36,000.

"Well, I suppose there is that threat if the law is not complied with," said Mr. Carlin. "But I have heard no threat: I understand that is always left until after civil liability has been determined."

Mr. Carlin explained the connection of Mr. Sterling with the tax matter by saying that Mr. Sterling's firm had been retained as counsel for a steel company whose name he did not recall, but which was involved in the Crucible Steel case. The Crucible case was settled for something over $9,000,000, which the company paid to the Government, he said.

"Can criminal cases be compromised and settled that way without somebody being prosecuted?" inquired Senator Kenyon.

"The law permits compromises on payment of the money," replied Mr. Carlin.

In a long discussion of the Dupuy and Crucible cases, in which committee members sought to get further information, Mr. Carlin said that the Dupuy case was not taken up with Mr. Palmer, but was discussed with assistants named Stewart and Callan. Mr. Callan, he said, left the Government service and went to work for an official of the Crucible Steel Company.

"Has Mr. Dupuy contributed to the campaign fund?" asked Senator Pomerene.

"No, and he has not promised to contribute."

Stovall Manager in Georgia.

The committee asked about the Georgia campaign and the witness said that Pleasant A. Stovall, former American Minister to Switzerland, was manager in that State. A man named Dunbar, formerly in the Alien Property Custodian's office, also assisted in Georgia.

The committee desired to know what Mr. Carlin had heard about Mr. McAdoo's campaign.

"I know very little," he said. "I've seen all the symptoms of a campaign. I've got literature boosting McAdoo, but where it came from or who sent it, I don't know. I haven't discovered any organization working for him. So far as I can learn, his campaign has neither headquarters nor tall quarters, but I will say that for a man who is not a candidate, Mr. McAdoo is doing very well."

"Can't you tell us who his manager is?" asked Mr. Kenyon.

"First, I heard Daniel Roper was, and then I heard he wasn't," replied Mr. Carlin. "I don't know."

Mr. Carlin stated that $1,500 was expended at the Chicago office on "men's work," and $2,730 on "women's work."

"What have you there?" Senator Reed inquired.

"All sorts of things," Mr. Carlin answered. "I sent some newspaper men there, stenographers and copyists."

Mrs. Halsey W. Wilson of Minnesota, was said to be the highest salaried employe on the list, at $1,000 a month.

"Mr. Carlin said that she was a very brilliant woman, formerly Secretary of a suffrage league."

S. T. Jones of Des Moines, Iowa, Manager for James W. Gerard's campaign, said that Mr. Gerard had spent $14,040, all his own money. He added:

"We sowed seeds of literature in South Dakota and left it to the sunshine and rain. We found that it took something more than sunshine and rain to make it grow after the votes were counted and decided not to go into any more primary elections."

The committee expects to hear Harry M. Daugherty, Manager of Senator Harding's campaign, and representatives of Nicholas Murray Butler and Governor Coolidge, tomorrow.

COOLIDGE SPENT NOTHING.

Headquarters Opened for Him Were Closed at His Request.

BOSTON, May 26.—Governor Coolidge said today that he had not collected or spent anything or authorized any collections or expenditures as a Presidential candidate.

His statement was given out in connection with a telegram in reply to a message from the Senate committee investigating expenditures of candidates for the Presidential nominations, asking him to designate some one to represent him before the committee in Washington tomorrow. The telegram said:

Mr. James P. Reynolds, at the instigation of my friends, opened headquarters last January at Washington in my behalf. At my request those headquarters were closed several months ago. Since that time I understand that Mr. Reynolds and others have been active in promoting the circulation of a book of my public speeches. I have asked my friends to communicate with Mr. Reynolds and have him report to your committee tomorrow as you have requested."

"HOW DID WOOD SPEND IT?"

Question of Women in the Wood League Answered by Iselin.

Around the question "How did General Leonard Wood spend the $500,000?" centred much of the interest in the meeting of the Business Women of the Leonard Wood League in the Imperial Hotel. This question was asked in ten different ways.

John H. Iselin, who announced that he would answer all questions, said that the money had been spent principally in the printing and sending out of pamphlets and books about General Wood, in hiring halls and for incidental expenses in placing Wood's name before the people.

"Every cent was honestly spent," he said, "and the accounts can stand the closest scrutiny, for there is nothing to conceal."

The presiding officer was Miss Alice Chittenden and the speakers included Miss Maude Wetmore and Mrs. Mary Hatch Willard. Miss Wetmore said that if General Leonard Wood were elected President he would make a clean sweep in Washington and there was room, she added, when she added that he would surround himself with men of intelligence which "the present Chief Executive has failed to do."

DARK HORSE IDEA LOOMS IN CHICAGO

Many Observers Think Campaign Fund Disclosures Have Hurt Party's Chances.

LEADERS STICK TO CLAIMS

Wood Men Give Figures to Back Statement That General Leads in Primary Votes.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 26.—The prospect that a "dark horse" candidate would be nominated at the Republican National Convention on June 8 was looming large here today.

Testimony before the Senate Committee inquiring into campaign expenditures by William Cooper Procter, that he had advanced $500,000 to help finance the campaign for General Leonard Wood, coming on the heels of the statement by the Lowden campaign manager, L. L. Emmerson, that more than $400,000 was disbursed to forward the candidacy of the Illinois Governor, has put new heart into the "dark horse" camps.

There were many whispered statements that with McAdoo, Cox, Davis or another Democratic nominee able to appeal to the voters as a candidate who had avoided heavy expenditures of money in the primaries, the Republican Party hardly could afford to go before the country behind a man on whose nomination $500,000 or more had been spent, even if it were proved that every cent was disbursed in legitimate channels and that the high cost of primary electioneering had added 50 per cent. to the bills during the last four years.

It was the gossip in political circles also that Senator Johnson had mapped his fight for the nomination from this time on along the lines that he could not, under the circumstances, accept the nomination of either Wood or Lowden, whom he has so bitterly denounced for heavy primary expenditures. Johnson men are claiming 236 delegates on the first ballot tonight, and on this basis, apparently, they must count on obtaining many Wood and Lowden delegates who, they hope, will desert those candidates because of the cost of campaign publicity.

Spreading "Elimination" Report.

Stories in circulation here even go to the extent of affirming that Senators Borah and Kenyon, and possibly Reed, with the sanction of Senator Johnson, went about their task before the subcommittee in Washington with the deliberate purpose of creating a situation which they hoped would eliminate both Lowden and Wood from the race.

Johnson managers on the ground here apparently are quite ready to follow that course to the end, and are spreading the report by formal statement and other means that they hold Lowden and Wood definitely eliminated. There was no statement today from Johnson headquarters concerning the testimony of Colonel Procter, the Wood campaign manager, but that admittedly was because it was felt advisable to await further disclosures as to the campaign expenses of the Wood camp and not from any consideration for General Wood.

Whatever may be the result of the testimony at Washington the dark horse feature of the pre-convention fight is the predominant topic of discussion in the convention city for the moment.

Political leaders and others who have come to watch the convention doings are talking about the dark horse situation along Presidential row and in the lobbies of the hotels. The names of Knox, Sproul, Coolidge, Beveridge, Allen, Hughes and others again are being brought forward.

Among the various reports going about is one that Senator Knox is not in the best of health and may be eliminated for that reason. There is much discussion also as to the condition of Senator Penrose; whether he will be a dominant figure at the convention and whether Governor Sproul will appear as the big figure in Pennsylvania politics during the convention if Penrose is unable to attend.

See Little Chance for Hoover.

There is no very strong renewal of the boom for Hoover. Leaders here seem to agree that, "while the lightning may strike," only a remarkable series of developments could result in Hoover being chosen. They believe Johnson would oppose him as bitterly as he will fight Wood or Lowden.

As to the chances of Senator Johnson himself there remains a strong conviction that he cannot hope to get away with the nomination. Johnson supporters contend that this is based large on the talk that the East and the "old crowd" would under no circumstances permit Johnson to be named. They say an entirely new situation now is confronted. However, the other leaders cling to their belief. Some express the belief that if the Senate Sub-Committee goes through with the investigation to the end, it will show a considerable sum spent for Senator Johnson. These anti-Johnson men want the committee to get the California leaders for Johnson on the witness stand and find out every cent spent in California. In other States, they hold, actual expenses for Johnson will approximate those of Governor Lowden.

There were no statements today by either Wood or Lowden managers on the Washington investigation. If they feel any concern about the developments they do not admit it and they cling to the contention that the fight is between Lowden and Wood.

Point to West Virginia.

The Johnson manager started the ball rolling today with the assertion that, as shown by the result in West Virginia, the Wood candidacy "is marching backward," that everywhere the Johnson candidacy is receiving unexpected support and that the Senator will go into the Convention with a number of votes which will be surprising.

The Johnson delegation from California, and others picked up along the route in Nevada, Utah and Idaho, will arrive here on Saturday, June 5, and march down South Michigan Avenue, headed possibly by a brass band, and certainly by M. H. De Young and National Committeeman W. H. Crocker.

Coming with the delegates and other Johnson rooters is Charles S. Wheeler, attorney and regent of the University of California, who will make the speech nominating Johnson for President. Wheeler was one of the two delegates from California in 1912 pledged to Roosevelt and Johnson, who were unseated by the National Committee, although the State had been carried by 70,000. The other delegate then unseated, Philip Bancroft, may also be along.

Claim 236 for Johnson.

The Johnson headquarters claim of 236 votes on the first ballot was made in a statement issued tonight, which said:

"Senator Hiram W. Johnson already has 236 pledged delegates who will vote for him on the first ballot and will stick with him to the last ditch. In addition to these, the movement to settle upon a candidate who can unqualifiedly win, which has been started among the unpledged delegates whose only desire is party success, will bring a surprisingly large number of votes to the Senator.

"His vote on the first ballot will be equal if not greater than that of any other candidate, and by the fifth or sixth ballot he will be nominated."

Leonard Wood leads his nearest opponent, Johnson, according to a claim made tonight by Wood headquarters by 166,000 votes in fourteen primaries in which both figured. It is said that Governor Lowden is third, 303,000 behind Wood. He was not entered in four of the fourteen primaries. Here are the figures:

PLAN TO CONSIDER BONUS BILL TODAY

Republicans to Call Up Measure Under Limited Debate—Democrats Deny Opposition.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—Republican leaders of the House adopted a new program today to bring action on the soldier relief legislation.

Chairman Fordney, in charge of the bonus bill, announced that he planned to have the measure considered tomorrow under limited debate, after which legislation could only be accepted or rejected under this procedure. Democrats favoring some sort of soldier relief legislation would be forced to accept the Republican plan or go on record as opposed to relief.

Chairman Campbell of the Rules Committee, in a speech in the House, said the legislation was being blocked by forty-nine anti-bonus Republicans, aiding the "solid Democratic opposition."

Several Democrats, challenging his statement, asserted that their opposition was not to the legislation but to the Republican plan to force action on it.

OUT TO SUCCEED HARDING.

Judge Wanamaker, a Johnson Backer, Announces Ohio Candidacy.

Special to The New York Times.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, May 26.—The Ohio political situation was again stirred up today when Supreme Court Justice Reuben M. Wanamaker formally became a candidate for the Republican nomination for United States Senator. He is a Hiram Johnson man and will have Johnson's support, it is expected, if Johnson is nominated for President. Wanamaker does not say how he stands on the treaty in his announcement.

If Senator Harding wishes to contest he must file his declaration soon, otherwise it is likely that the Harding support will go to former Governor Frank B. Willis.

In his statement Judge Wanamaker says in part:

"My hat is in the ring.

"In the courts I have stood for judicial reforms in the reduction of time of trials, talk, technicality, delay and expense, to the end that justice shall be equitably, speedily and substantially administered.

"In the Senate, if nominated and elected, I shall likewise stand for legislative reforms, through a change in the rules of that body, that shall reduce the talk, technicalities, delays and expenses to the end that we shall have a minimum of political buncombe and a maximum of practical business in the great work of readjustment after the war.

"I stand for the progressive principles of Lincoln and Roosevelt applied to the modern conditions of life, after a fair and full hearing of all parties interested in the Senate, the same as on the bench."

PRAISES DAVIS CANDIDACY.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTA, Ga., May 26.—In an editorial headed, "An Interesting Suggestion for the Democratic Nomination," The Atlanta Journal this afternoon comments favorably on the suggested Presidential candidacy of John W. Davis, United States Ambassador to the Court of St. James. The Journal says:

"When a newspaper as great, as well poised and as free from political opportunism as THE NEW YORK TIMES suggests a candidate for the Presidency of the United States the country is sure to listen with uncommon interest. For in this nation-serving journal which, while democratic in disposition, is independent of all parties, the public recognizes an exponent of America's soundest and, in the long run, most influential thought, though THE TIMES, as any observer will grant, is not given to chasing bandwagons or to tripping on sudden enthusiasms. It thinks before it writes and writes what it really thinks.

"Naturally, then, there will be a deal of consideration over its recent editorial urging upon the Democrats the name of a man whose distinguished ability and standing are accentuated by the high honors he has already received from the party. A man who is qualified not only to pass the tests and challenges of a trying campaign, but to discharge with credit to himself and with advantage to the country the duties of the Presidency. We mean John W. Davis, at present Ambassador to Great Britain at London.

"Those qualified to judge agree that Mr. Davis is among the ablest and altogether most admirable Americans of the time. Profound in his understanding of the nation's laws and institutions; devoted to her highest interest and honor; an executive of extraordinary grasp; a thinker of extraordinary breadth and penetration. In the dimensions and weakening compromises to which the Republican Party seems fated keen observers see large hopes and large opportunities for Democracy, provided a leader to whom the rank and file of Americans can confidently turn is nominated at San Francisco. The suggestion of John W. Davis in this connection will at least arouse high interest."

"M. I. T." MAY CALL HOOVER.

Talk of Him for President—Hoover Club at Harvard Quits.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., May 26.—Announcement was made here today that the Massachusetts Institute of Technology was inquiring as to the possibility of inducing Herbert Hoover to accept the presidency of the Institution as successor to the late Dr. MacLauren.

SEE JOHNSON LOSER BY FUNDS INQUIRY

FIND AID FOR DEMOCRATS

Will Make Campaign Ammunition of Disclosures, Republicans Fear.

Republican leaders refused yesterday to comment publicly on the disclosures in Washington before the Senate Committee investigating campaign contributions. Privately they admitted that the party might suffer. Practically every Republican leader questioned expressed the view that regardless of how much the investigation may have injured other candidates, it would hurt Senator Hiram W. Johnson most. Senator Borah, who fathered the inquiry, the Republican leaders said, acted for Senator Johnson, and for the sole purpose of injuring General Wood and Governor Lowden, his most formidable opponents. It was the consensus that what slight chances Senator Johnson might have had of winning the nomination had been lost by instigating the investigation which, whatever else the result, would furnish campaign ammunition for Democratic use in the general campaign.

As the date for the opening of the Republican National Convention approaches the campaign managers of Senator Johnson are working to counteract the impression that Johnson is too radical for the Presidency.

Interviews were made public last night at the campaign headquarters of Senator Johnson to show that business men in Johnson's State think well of him. One was with John H. Rosseter of San Francisco, United States Shipping Board official during the war, and who is President of the Pacific Mail Steamship Company and Vice President of W. R. Grace & Co. Mr. Rosseter is Chairman of the Finance Committee of Senator Johnson's Western campaign committee.

"If I did not know Senator Johnson to be a farseeing, constructive statesman, I certainly would not be for him," said Mr. Rosseter. "He demonstrated in California his strength to handle any problem, no matter what difficulties it might present, and the unanimity of the support he has received out there from business and labor alike is in itself testimony of the faith we have in him."

Dr. A. H. Giannini, President of the East River National Bank and of the Bank of Italy, representing twenty-three financial institutions on the Pacific Coast, said that it really was not necessary to go beyond the 160,000 majority which California rolled up for Johnson in the primaries to show how solidly his native State was behind him.

"Every big business man in California, with the exception of those who still cherish enmities engendered in the early days of Johnson's career, is heart and soul for his nomination," he said.

Colonel Thomas W. Miller of Delaware, one of General Wood's Eastern campaign managers, received a request yesterday to appear and testify before the United States Senate Committee investigating campaign contributions.

JOHNSON ANSWERS FARM QUESTIONNAIRE

Asserts There Is Nothing in Farmers' Platform to Which He Could Not Agree.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—Senator Johnson, of California, has replied to the questionnaire sent to all candidates for the Presidential nomination by agricultural leaders identified with the National Board of Farm Organizations.

The Senator states in his answer that there is nothing in the questionnaire to which he could not honestly subscribe. He says there is pressing need for co-operation between urban and rural citizens, and that he would support legislation making such co-operation general and effective.

He would regulate the packers, refuse to give assent to bills tending to curb free speech, free press and free assembly, and would require that the railway question be reopened if after a reasonable trial the roads do not give good service.

"This nation must have a free urban population and it must have a free rural population," Senator Johnson states, adding: "With one element bound and gagged, the other element is also without the means of wholesomely functioning. Destroy free speech and the right of peaceable assembly and you destroy liberty itself.

"Sometimes so-called anti-sedition measures are designed by mischievous big business to place insuperable barriers in the way of the farmer who is seeking economic as well as political liberty. Political liberty is of very little account when one is held in economic bondage."

Senator Johnson said the farm leaders were entirely right in demanding that the railways, now that they are in the hands of their owners, give good service. He said the present condition of the roads was deplorable, and an honest effort should be made to determine who or what is responsible for their apparent failure to function.

Senator Johnson said he heartily favored question three, in which the candidates are asked if they would see that the farm people of America are represented on general boards and commissions, whether or not the work is directly concerned with agriculture.

Senator Johnson said if elected he would appoint a Secretary of Agriculture who knows farm conditions and was in full sympathy with the proper aspirations of the tillers of the toil.

Farm tenancy, Senator Johnson said, was rightly characterized by agricultural leaders as a great evil and a growing menace, and he promised to do all in his power to obtain necessary information on the subject with a view to applying remedies.

Johnson Has 1,991 Lead in Oregon.

PORTLAND, Ore., May 26.—Returns including complete official figures from six of Oregon's thirty-six counties, unofficial complete returns from twenty-one, and partial unofficial figures from the others, tabulated today from Friday's Republican presidential preference primary gave Senator Hiram W. Johnson a lead of 1,991 votes over General Leonard Wood, his closest opponent. Political experts estimated approximately 1,500 votes remained to be reported.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—The Senate today reconsidered its action in passing the Nolan-Johnson $3 a day minimum wage bill, applying to Government employes, and on motion of Senator Thomas, Democrat, of Colorado, rescinded the passage.

PREPARE FOR STAND ON 'OPEN SHOP' HERE

Transportation Committee Will Define Its Position to Union Leaders Soon.

WANTS A FINISH FIGHT

Longshoremen's Overtures for Arbitration Are Rejected at Merchants' Meeting.

The Citizens' Transportation Committee—the war council of the city's business forces in their fight to free transportation facilities from tieups by labor disturbances—is preparing to take a definite stand for the "open shop" in transportation agencies. A "declaration of principles," setting forth the attitude of the commercial interests, is under consideration and, it was learned yesterday, will be presented to the union leaders within a few days.

The committee is not relaxing its efforts for a finish fight, despite negotiations which the union leaders initiated yesterday to settle the 'longshore strike and the alleged boycott of coastwise shipping piers by the union truckmen. All of the shippers are pooling funds for an independent trucking corporation and more than $500,000, the amount set Tuesday for the initial cost of the campaign, has already been assured.

The longshore strikers, through T. V. O'Connor, their international President, and Joseph T. Ryan, the Vice President, sought a conference yesterday with the merchants' committee, and asked the aid of the committee in bringing about arbitration of their differences with the four coastwise lines. They were told by Irvin H. Raymond of the Mallory and Clyde lines, who is a member of the committee, that there was nothing to arbitrate, since the National Adjustment Commission had already acted in their case and the longshoremen had refused to accept their findings. Mr. Raymond told the union leaders that their stand was unlawful and that the shipping companies would not negotiate with them until they had returned to work.

The union men were in a conciliatory mood, and, as one union man expressed it, were ready for "peace with honor." Mr. O'Connor, after the conference, was inclined to be optimistic of a settlement. "We are hopeful of ending the strike," he said. "I think that the committee is inclined to support our proposal for arbitration. We are willing to go back within five hours if arbitration is agreed to." Alfred E. Marling, Chairman of the committee, declined to make any statement as to the results of the conference.

The Transportation Trades Council, which has been accused by representatives of the committee of conspiring to tie up all shipments which had at any point been handled by non-union men, arranged for a conference with the committee today. In a letter to the Merchants' Association, William J. Kehoe, secretary of the council, charged speakers at Tuesday's transportation meeting with "perversion of the truth."

"We believe your speakers presented only one side of the case," he said, "which tended to show that our organization was un-American, disloyal and an illegal combination. Some of your speakers tried to show that this combination, through acts of violence and intimidation, had even gone so far as to compel Government agents to seek protection when performing their duties along the water-front.

"We at all times hold that conciliation and arbitration are the fundamental principles of the American labor movement and we adhere to those principles and suggest that it would be better for the welfare both of your association and our organization to meet and discuss the question along these lines. Every legitimate effort has been used by the organizations involved in the longshore strike to negotiate and reach if possible an amicable settlement. The companies have refused absolutely to deal with the men on strike or their representatives.

"We believe it is desirable and possible that this situation could be easily adjusted were the companies willing at least to grant the conference with that object in view."

WANT NEW STATIONS FOR UNLOADING FREIGHT

Committee to Confer with Railroad Heads—Terminal Added Near Jersey City.

Extension of the city's terminal facilities by the opening of new unloading stations for freight will be discussed with railroad heads today at a conference called by the New York Terminal Committee, which has been designated by the Interstate Commerce Commission to devise means for breaking the tieup in the Port of New York.

The Pennsylvania Railroad Company notified the committee yesterday that it had opened a new station on the meadows about five miles from Jersey City. More than 100 cars can be unloaded at a time at that place. The new terminal will be used exclusively for perishables, and it is expected to aid materially in relieving the congestion of perishables in Jersey City. A good road runs to the new yard, and the incoming foodstuffs can be easily transferred to trucks and brought to New York.

The need for several such unloading points in the present emergency is great, members of the Terminal Committee said.

"There is no use trying to get any more freight into New York with the present facilities," Deputy Public Service Commissioner Alfred M. Barrett said. "The lack of unloading space causes a great congestion of trucks. There are several new unloading points that are being considered. Among them are the barge canal terminals owned by the State, one of them in Queens, near the Queensboro Bridge, and the other at Hallet's Cove, near Astoria. There are no railroad facilities there, but the freight might be lightered to the two points and delivered thence by trucks."

Embargoes against business men who fail to call for their goods are contemplated by the committee. The railroads will be empowered to notify consignees who are adding to the congestion that no more shipments for them will be received.

'HONEYMOON EXPRESS' FLIES TO CONVENTION

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, May 26—Arrival here today of the aerial "Honeymoon Express" piloted by the bridegroom, with his bride and a kitten mascot as passengers, broke up business sessions of the Third Pan-American Aeronautical Congress while distinguished delegates from many countries joined in a reception for the couple, Lieut. and Mrs. E. A. Terhune, Jr.

Lieutenant Terhune and his bride left Boston, May 24, and flew to Springfield airport, there they discovered their friends in Boston had decorated the tail skid with old shoes. Yesterday morning they flew to Mitchel Field, Garden City, and in the afternoon landed at North Field Club, eight miles from here. This morning they came to Atlantic City, landing on the beach near the Steel Pier, where they were welcomed by the convention to which they are delegates.

Announcement of the formation of the Lawson Air Lines, was made at the business session of the convention by Alan R. Hawley, former President of the Aero Club of America. It will be the first "de luxe" service operating aerial Pullmans, to carry twenty-six passengers each, between New York and Chicago, with stops at Rochester, Syracuse, Buffalo, Cleveland and Toledo. It was organized by Alfred W. Lawson. The first trip will be made in July.

A squadron of navy seaplanes arrived from Rockaway, convoying a plane driven by Lieut. G. H. Hines, bringing a greeting to the convention from Secretary of the Navy Daniels.

THANK MISS BALDWIN.

British Grateful for Red Cross Worker's Services.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 26.—The British Army Council has sent an official letter of thanks to Miss Lilian Baldwin of the American Red Cross for her work at the repatriation camp at Winchester. During the war this was the rest camp for American soldiers on their way across England to the front, and after the armistice it was turned into a centre where American citizens enlisted in British regiments could be collected to await the opportunity to repatriate them. Miss Baldwin was in charge of the Red Cross canteen there, and so valuable were her services that after the last of the Americans had gone home she continued under the British Red Cross to keep the club open for British soldiers until the camp finally was closed a few weeks ago.

In their letter the army authorities said:

"The council have also been informed that by reason of the personal regard in which you have been held men in the camp have been in the habit of explaining their troubles to you and that through your intervention it has been possible to remove many causes of grievances, either reasonable or imaginary. The value of such services as these cannot be overestimated, as the circumstances attending the stay of these men at Winchester are such as to render the maintenance of discipline peculiarly difficult. The council, therefore, desire me to express in highest terms their unqualified appreciation of your ungrudging endeavor."

DRESS GOODS PROFIT CALLED ENORMOUS

INCREASE IN RETAIL MARGIN

Labor Advocate Declares Stores Add 60 Per Cent. to Price They Pay Mills.

WASHINGTON, May 24.—Enormous profiteering in women's dress goods was alleged by W. Jett Lauck, representing the railroad unions, in a survey submitted today to the United States Railroad Labor Board. "In the majority of dress goods of all kinds," said one survey, "profits are absorbing approximately half the price paid by the consumer."

In the case of unbleached cotton, the basis of most cotton fabrics, the survey stated that between 1910 and 1919 the increase in the cost of all labor plus mill expense and the salaries of officials was only 2 cents a yard, while the retail price increased over 20 cents, or ten times the increase of all labor costs.

The survey contended that the largest element in the advance of the retail price from 8 1-3 to 29 cents a yard was the increase in profit margins. These showed an advance of 12 cents—approximately six times the increase in the cost of labor, salary, and mill expense. The disparity between the increase in labor's share and that of the profiteer, it was asserted, was apparent in the fact that the labor item increased 115 per cent. while the mill profit rose 748 per cent. The mill profit in 1919 was said to be more than eight times as large as in 1910. The total cost of producing the basic cotton cloth, which sold for 29 cents, was only 14¾ cents, one survey says.

In the case of printed percale, said the report, while the increase received by labor amounted to only 1⅛ cents per yard and the increase in labor, salaries, and mill expenses combined to less than 2½ cents per yard, the retail price advanced in 1919, as compared with 1910, by 15 cents—twelve times the increase in the labor cost and six times the increase in the combined cost of labor, salaries and the mill expense. The increase in profit margins alone amounted approximately to five times the increase in the share taken by productive labor. Labor and mill expense together amounted to less than one-sixth the retail price, or only 4.1 cents per yard.

The survey claims the entire cost of producing blue denims, which retailed in 1919 for 50 cents was only twenty-five and one-eighth cents a yard. Approximately one-half of the price paid by the consumer went to the profiteer. The increase in the labor item was only one and one-ninth cents and in labor and mill expense combined only one and one-half cents, as contrasted with an increase in the retail price, of 31 cents per yard. The total profit margins for denim, it was said, increased by sixteen and three-fifths times, amounting to nearly fifteen times the increase in labor. The mill owners' profits actually increased 600 per cent.

A similar situation is said to exist in the case of various standard silks, wash satin and georgette crepe. With respect to these fabrics the report asserts that the cost of producing the goods is less than half what the consumer is forced to pay. It is asserted that the mill cost of georgette and wash satin is slightly over a dollar and a half a yard, while retail prices vary from $3.50 to $5 a yard.

"In retailing their goods," said the survey, "the department and dry goods stores usually add 60 per cent. to the price at which they buy from the mill. On fancy silks, especially those which are greatly affected by the change in fashions, they add 100 per cent. or more."

The report contends that the first step in the increased cost of woolen suits and coats is due to rampant profiteering in the woolen industry. The profits on woolens are said to have increased more than 350 per cent., more than four times as much in 1920 as in 1910.

FRENCH SENATE RAGES OVER BACHELORS' TAX

Bill Is Passed After a Challenge to a Duel Is Narrowly Averted.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 26.—Tumult broke out this afternoon in the august Assembly of the French Senate in the course of debate on the vexed question of a tax on bachelors. Two brothers, Senators Dominique and Jules Delahaye, had offered motions demanding the rejection of the tax which had been voted by the Chamber of Deputies. Another motion to exempt single women from the tax, however, received precedence in the discussion, a decision to which the two brothers took violent objection. In the midst of disorder such as has seldom been known in the Senate, Senator Hervey proposed that the whole question be referred to a committee.

While the vote was being taken by a show of hands, the two brothers attempted to speak, and Senator Alexandre Bérard, who was presiding, was compelled to put on his hat and suspend the session.

In the lobbies the discussion was carried on at fever heat, and M. Hervey suddenly thrust his visiting card at the brothers Delahaye, as if challenging them. Other Senators at once crowded around and prevented an exchange of cards.

When the sitting was resumed the tax was voted after a long discussion.

"TIGER" BACKS POINCARE.

Says His Resignation from Reparations Board Was Justified.

PARIS, May 26.—Light is thrown on the financial side of the Treaty of Versailles by an interview with Georges Clemenceau, former French Premier, obtained by Alfred Capus, editor of the Gaulois, and published in that newspaper today.

"Several persons know," said the former Premier, "that in the Peace Conference discussion of a fixed indemnity lasted for three weeks. We should not forget that a fixed sum for indemnity was the Anglo-American idea from the very beginning and that our allies never abandoned this point of view. They even made a most careful valuation of the sum Germany could pay, which was exactly 75,000,000,000 marks in all.

"Out of our share we would have to pay for the reconstruction of devastated regions, and I need not tell you we could not agree to such a solution. Discussion was long and ardent, because the Anglo-American idea as to Germany's powers of paying was firmly rooted, but finally an agreement was effected, and that solution was embodied in the Treaty of Versailles.

"Isn't that solution one that might be called an 'open account system?'" M. Clemenceau was asked, "by which it is proposed to exact from Germany everything she owes us, but by successive instalments as we are in a position to fix the indebtedness?"

"Quite right," the former Premier replied, "and with the occupation of the Rhineland as a guarantee both of the amount of the debt and the good faith of the debtor and with the Reparation Commission and the Permanent Control Organization. I was in complete agreement with President Poincaré on this plan. When I saw him accept the Presidency of the Reparation Commission I thought his acceptance the logical consequence of our mutual conception."

When the interviewer interjected that M. Poincaré had resigned from that post M. Clemenceau declared: "I approoved, as he could do nothing else, since our system had been thrown over."

PRICE CUTS TREBLED SALES.

Special to The New York Times.

OMAHA, Neb., May 26.—The price war in which Omaha merchants have participated for ten days increased volume of sales two or three times above normal, according to a check of conditions just made by W. Metcalfe, Secretary of the Association of Retailers of Omaha. Most of the Omaha merchants say that beginning Monday the trade war will be over and old prices will be resumed.

"Reports to our office indicate that the buying public in its selection of goods still wants the best," says Mr. Metcalfe's statement. "Instead of purchasers trying to see how much they can get for their money, they have been trying to see how fine an article they are able to buy with their cash.

"The reductions have helped business by bringing people down town with the intention of buying, and even dealers who did not offer reductions benefited.

"While the price war will close Saturday night, indications are that this is only the beginning of a period of special sales to foster buying.

"The check of business shows a tremendous volume of buying in the ten days of the price war. One big department store announced today more sales in the last week than during the entire month of December, including the Christmas sales. Another big store reported three times the amount of business in the same length of time since the store was established forty years ago.

"Retailers figure the buying has been so general that the slack trade which will follow the return of prices to the higher level will hold back purchasers and bring a cut in factory prices."

BRASS PIPE BOMB EXPLODES IN ARMORY

Connecticut Guard Called to Duty After Blast Damages Building in Hartford.

HARTFORD, Conn., May 26.—An explosion of a brass pipe bomb occurred in the basement kitchen of the State armory here late tonight. The First Battalion, Connecticut State Guard, numbering 350 men, was manoeuvring in the drill shed of the armory at the time and several officers of the State Guard were in their offices on the second floor.

The explosion caused great excitement, but no one was injured. Seven windows were broken and the kitchen was damaged.

Within a few minutes after the explosion Colonel Charles W. Burpee, commander of the First Infantry, had a large part of the battalion on guard duty around the armory and the State Capitol, near by. The men carried rifles with fixed bayonets. No one was allowed to approach the armory unless he had an official errand. Persons found in the armory and on the grounds immediately after the explosion were taken to the police station and questioned, but all were released. City police and detectives were called to the armory and police guards also were stationed at the East Hartford bridge over the Connecticut river and at the Municipal Building.

On May 1 last the State Guard was called out for duty at the armory and the Capitol, and rumors of a bomb plot were current, but no unusual incidents occurred.

FOUND 'W. J. B.' MARKED ON LIQUOR BOTTLES

So Sailors at Baltimore Said They Thought Concoction Had Commoner's Approval.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, May 26.—Customs officials have been kept for ten days busy fining ship Captains and sailors for attempting to bring liquor into the United States. Today they took eighty-six quarts of liquor from the Shipping Board steamer Lake Ricco from Chile.

On every bottle the initials "W. J. B." were stamped on the label, and members of the crew stated with all seriousness that the letters represented the approbation of William Jennings Bryan. They said they understood that it was all right to have the liquor in their possession because the famous Nebraskan had approved it. Surveyor Hayward fined Captain Lassen, master of the ship, $176, the value of the liquor, and confiscated it.

BANDITS LOOT NEAR BERLIN.

Raid Governor's Castle, Bind Him and Escape with Rich Booty.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, May 25.—At 1 o'clock this morning a band of robbers broke into the village of Paaren, twenty miles from Berlin, and imposed a brief reign of terror. In a two-horse wagon they drove out from the capital to the village and went to the castle of the Governor of the province, announcing themselves as the advance guard of a Red army. They demanded a list of the inhabitants for billeting troops.

When the Governor admitted his visitors, who were armed with carbines and revolvers, he was thrown to the ground, gagged and bound. Then the advance guard stripped their victim and robbed the house of all portable valuables, including 50,000 marks' worth of bullion.

Meanwhile the oGvernor's wife, who had hidden in the cellar when the robbers entered, slipped out of the house and alarmed the neighbors, who reached the scene just as the robbers were about to drive off. The latter whipped up their horses and galloped off, firing salvos at the approaching villagers as they swept by.

A hastily formed band of cyclists took up the pursuit along the road to Berlin and overtook the thieves, all but two of whom jumped from the wagon and disappeared in a wood. Capturing the two remaining thieves the cyclists handed them over to the Berlin police, but no trace was found of the others, who got away with most of the booty.

BOLSHEVIKI GAIN IN PERSIA.

Have Occupied Resht, but British Are Reported Back in Batum.

LONDON, May 26.—Bolshevist forces continue to pour into Persia and have occupied Resht, from which British troops have retired toward Teheran, says The Daily Sketch, which disputes the accuracy of information received here yesterday regarding the situation in the Middle East.

Notwithstanding denials, the newspaper declares that Indian reinforcements have been landed at Batum, to be followed by other troops as soon as transport is available. Referring to the arrival of Prince Firous Khan, Persian Minister of Foreign Affairs, in this city, The Daily Sketch says Persians are confident of their ability to repel a Bolshevist invasion with the aid of a British staff sent to Teheran and are asking a loan for which they are prepared to offer substantial guarantees.

WOOLEN COMPANIES AND WOOD INDICTED

shown to prove that Mr. Wood ceased being helpful to the investigators about two weeks ago.

"The profits of the companies in 1919," said Mr. Smyth, "during which there was a strike of most of their important mills lasting five months, were $16,512,414.70. This information has been supplied from printed statements submitted by the President to the stockholders. The output during this period was only 40,000,000 yards, whereas the normal output of their mills was 70,000,000 yards per annum, the company operating 46 cloth mills.

$1.20 Profit on Tricotine.

"In the present year, when apparently for the first time the cost plus system of fixing the price was adopted, the amount of profits being realized exceed on an average from 300 to 400 per cent. over those of 1919. For instance, on an article known as tricotine for women's wear the profit for 1919 was 40 cents per yard, while for the same goods for 1920 the profit per yard is $1.60.

"In a straight worsted style the profit per yard in 1919 was 32 cents; in 1920 it is $1.37. In another style the 1919 profit was 62 cents and the 1920 profit is $1.98. In another style the 1919 profit was 41 cents and in 1920 it is $1.83. In still another cloth the profit was 54 cents in 1919 and $1.80 in 1920.

"These are only a few examples selected at haphazard, showing an average increase of more than 300 per cent. between the two seasons.

"The ratio of profit is much increased and worse for the consumer when it comes to the companies dealing in stock that had been manufactured and placed in their warehouses in 1919, where the cost was ascertained before the opening of the season, which was not the case with the incidents already cited.

100 Per Cent. Over Cost.

"In the latter class the percentage of profits instead of being 35 per cent. over cost, are as much as 100 per cent. over cost. For instance, one style, which according to the companies' inventory, cost them $1.62, was sold to a New York merchant for $3.25. Another style, which cost the companies $1.90, was sold to a customer for $3.90. Another, which was inventoried by the companies at 1.97 was sold to a merchant for $3.95. Another inventoried at $1.98 was sold at $3.92½. Another, inventoried at $3.59, was sold at $6.20.

"This inventory surplus from the preceding year approximates four and one-half million yards.

"In view of this increase, and notwithstanding that the manufacturing and selling companies are subjected to an expense, on account of the same man being President of both companies, of nearly a million dollars compensation for commission and salaries, the 1920 statement should prove a most interesting document if the companies are permitted to carry on this campaign of profiteering, which they so boldly started out to inaugurate at the beginning of this year.

"The American Woolen Company is the largest manufacturer of woolen cloth in the United States, and to a large extent dominates the trade in that industry. The Department of Justice therefore feels that it has unearthed one of the most important cases of profiteering known since the amendment to the Lever act went into effect.

Companies Withheld Records.

"When the accountants for the Government commenced to develop a mass of facts which I have only been able to touch upon lightly in this talk, the original open frankness of the companies' officials came to a sudden end, and for the last few weeks we have been met with nothing but refusal to allow us to inquire further into the records of the companies. Many further developments of the companies' methods of doing business are expected to be made as this case progresses, when the Government will have an unhampered opportunity of going more fully into the records.

"The investigation, which has been conducted by Homer F. Harris and his brother Orville D. Harris, expert accountants, under the supervision of Frederick W. Bisgood, of my office and myself, the whole inquiry being directed from Washington, has disclosed already a most astounding condition of affairs with regard to these companies and their President.

"It was not until we felt convinced that the facts which were developed warranted judicial action that we consented to place the matter before the Grand Jury.

"Originally this investigation was started at the invitation of Mr. Wood, who desired to have the approval of the Department of Justice on what was being done by his companies in fixing prices for 1920. Messrs. Harris, on behalf of the department, accordingly started the investigation, the developments of which were quite different from what were expected by the companies when their invitation was sent out.

Claimed 12½ Per Cent. Profit.

"Mr. Wood claimed to these accountants that the profit they proposed or were charging for 1920 business was 12½ per cent. above cost. An analysis of such data as was furnished to them prior to the companies changing their attitude and refusing further information developed, however, that the American Woolen Company was receiving 25 per cent. profit above cost.

"Although Mr. Wood is in receipt of enormous salaries both from the manufacturing company (the Massachusetts company), the selling company of the same name (the New York company), and the constituent mill companies, he received commissions from the manufacturing an selling companies which in 1919 amounted to $515,482.96. This is calculated as a part of the manufacturing and selling expense."

The accountants have a mass of correspondence which reveals, they said, that Pearry C. Wiggin, controller of the companies, in reply to a request from them, said the President's salary and commissions had no bearing on the case. He said they were included in the salary and expense list of the companies. The letter that finally severed already strained relations between Mr. Wood and the investigators was received from Mr. Wood on May 15. It complained that a newspaper story telling of the huge profits of his companies must have been inspired by information given out by the investigators.

The investigators who began their work in January said none of the dealers whose names are mentioned as buyers in the indictment furnished information except with the greatest unwillingness.

Lever Act Upheld.

The decision of the Circuit Court of Appeals upholding the constitutionality of the Lever act was in the case of C. A. Weed & Co. of Buffalo against U. S. Attorney Lockwood. An injunction was sought to restrain the U. S. Attorney from proceeding criminally against the company under the act. The original decision was handed down by Judge Hazel. Judge Manton wrote the opinion, and concurring opinions were written by Judges Ward and Hough. The opinion ran in part:

"In regulating civil and commercial life in war time, the nation through the Congress is exercising the first law of nature—self-defense—wherein the limits are incapable of predetermination. But it is surely within those limits to fix prices by legislative fiat and punish every man varying therefrom; the present statute does not go that far, for practically it asks the usually softhearted jury to issue the fiat.

"The defendant is not prevented from selling its stock of wearing apparel at just and reasonable rates and charges because it has been prosecuted for selling these particular garments at what is alleged to be an unjust and unreasonable rate for a wrongfully convicted it will have a perfectly adequate remedy by writ of error direct to the Supreme Court.

May Curb High Prices.

"We think that while a state of war exists Congress may declare that the public interest in the price of food and wearing apparel warrants legislation declaring an unreasonable and unjust rate or charge in handling or dealing in the necessities.

"The appellant complains that no orders were issued with reference to wearing apparel, but this was a power which the President could have exercised had he thought the circumstances warranted it. He likewise need not make orders in reference to fixing prices as to wearing apparel. Such orders, if issued, would not add to the terms of an act of Congress and make conduct criminal which such laws leave untouched.

"He can neither abridge nor enlarge the criminal responsibilities under the statute. Indeed, it is obvious that he could not fix a maximum rate of charge on wearing apparel as a foundation for laying indictments. The statute fixes it in the terms of unjust and unreasonable rates and charges.

"Since we are still in a state of war and the wartime emergency has not expired, we are of the opinion that Congress could legislate, as it did under the authority of it war powers without contravening Article 1, Sec. 8, Clause 18 of the Constitution, which forbids legislation that deprives the citizen of property without due process of law. During the recent war the struggle between economic resources was all-important. It did much to make for the morale of the army and navy. Food control as a subject of war legislation has been approved.

"Wearing apparel, declared to be one of the necessaries, is well within this sphere of legislation. To, so legislate does not interfere with the police powers of the State. Food and wearing apparel control during a war emergency are properly the subject for war legislation and by limiting charges for such necessaries, Congress does not take property without due process of law."

Mr. Wood was said by his lawyers to be out of the city last night. They added that he would not come here until Friday morning, as agreed.

RULES AGAINST PARTS OF LEVER ACT

may knowingly commit waste or wilfully permit preventable deterioration of such foods and feeds in or in connection with their production, manufacture or distribution; may hoard such product; may monopolize or attempt to monopolize such products; may engage in any discriminatory and unfair, or any deception or wasteful practice or device, or may make any unjust or unreasonable rate or charge in handling or dealing in or with such products, and may conspire, combine, agree or arrange with any other person to limit the facilities for producing or to restrict the production in order to enhance the price or exact excessive prices for such products with impunity, while all other persons are to be punished as criminals for doing the acts, including those who produce, supply or distribute the other necessary fuel.

"Those who produce foods to feed the soldiers and sailors, those who produce feeds to feed the horses and mules required by the army, and those who produce fuel to transport the soldiers and propel the ships of the navy are all alike helping to win the war, and are all alike in the same general class.

"The second provision in amended Section 4 that 'Nothing in this act shall be construed to forbid or make unlawful collective bargaining by any co-operative association or other association of farmers, dairymen, gardeners or other producers of farm products, with respect to the farm products produced or raised by its members upon land owned, leased or cultivated by them,' is as unwarranted as the one just considered.

"The indulgence to the excepted class is in respect to the farm products produced or raised upon land owned, leased or cultivated by the members of it. But this does not differentiate the instant case from the Connolly case. My conclusion is that the classification in amended Section 4 is arbitrary and not natural or reasonable; that such section is repugnant to the 'due process' clause of the Fifth Amendment and is therefore void.

"I further conclude that original Section 4 is insufficient to found a criminal charge upon, because there is no penalty provided for the violation of it. It does not of itself create an offense, as that word is used in the criminal law, and there is no general penalty clause in the statute to cover it.

"Section 20 deals with persons carrying on or employed in commerce among the several States—in any article suitable for human food, fuel or other necessaries of life, and it prohibits the storing, acquiring or holding or destroying of any such article for the purpose of limiting the supply thereof to the public or affecting the market price thereof in such commerce.

"The first proviso excepts farmers, gardeners and other persons, as in the products of land cultivated by them and is objectionable for the same reason given above in considering a similar exception in amended Section 4.

Calls One Class Favored.

"The second proviso, that farmers and fruit growers, co-operative and other exchanges or societies of a similar character shall not be included within the provisions of this section carves out an excepted class for which no reasonable basis can be seen. This proviso is not limited to the necessaries produced by the excepted class, but it applies to farmers, fruit growers, co-operative and other exchanges or societies of a similar character, without reference to where or by whom the necessaries are produced. These persons are set apart as a favored class and are given the privilege of storing, acquiring, holding or destroying necessaries for the purpose of limiting the supply thereof to the public or affecting the market prices thereof in interstate commerce without any restraint whatever, while all other persons who commit such acts are to be punished as criminals. It is arbitrary legislation and cannot stand. Section 20 is, therefore, void.

"While apparently conceding that Congress under the war power could validly enact the Lever act, at the time of its passage, defendants contend that it does not follow that the act continues in force, regardless of an actual condition of peace, until Congress sees fit to terminate its operation."

MINERS SEEK LIGHT ON LEVER DECISION

Anthracite Workers Halt Convention to Await Interpretation of Judge Anderson's Ruling.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., May 26.—Awaiting official interpretation of Judge Anderson's decision in the Federal Court at Indianapolis relative to the Lever act, the tri-district conventoin of anthracite mine workers, in session here today, to consider disposition of their wage controversy, adjourned until tomorrow without taking any action.

The delegates insisted on adjournment in order that they might be advised by John L. Lewis, International President of the United Mine Workers, as to whether the court's ruling would curb the Government's use of the injunction in the event of a hard coal workers strike.

Despite opposition of their officials to strike agitation, the delegates adopted a motion today which would permit the taking of a strike vote. The motion provides that a separate vote shall be taken on each of the propositions before the convention, which are as follows:

Acceptance of Secretary of Labor Wilson's contract, granting wage increases of approximately 1.85 per cent., and recognition of the United Mine Workers of America.

Handing of an ultimatum to the operators, to be followed by the submission of the entire controversy to a Presidential Coal Commission if rejected by the employers.

Declaration of war on the coal operators by ordering a strike despite probable government opposition.

Thomas Kennedy, President of District 7, Chairman of the convention, warned the delegates that "a strike was out of the question," and declared the only "honorable road" out of the situation was to submit the entire dispute to a Presidential Commission.

While admitting that the anthracite miners were "the best fighters in the world," Mr. Kennedy declared that "men of iron" could not win a strike under present conditions.

Condemning those who had talked strike in the face of President Wilson's warning and offer to assist in effecting a settlement, the speaker declared that, though the miners might differ with the President in many things, "when all is said and done the man who lingers in the White House now, sick nigh unto death, has been the best President for the working man since Abraham Lincoln. When in any administration was there a man who sat in the Cabinet with a union card in his pocket?"

The action of Judge Anderson in summoning President Lewis and Vice President Murray to appear in court in Indianapolis was "contrary to the wishes of high Government officials," and was declared to be "proof of the necessity of having Federal Judges elected by the people for a term not exceeding six years," in a resolution adopted by the convention to be sent to President Wilson.

The delegates also pledged their support to their international officers "in their hour of trial, to the end that justice shall prevail and the rights of American labor shall be sustained."

WANTS QUICK DECISION.

Government Asks Supreme Court to Expedite Lever Act Ruling.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—The Supreme Court was asked today by the Government to expedite a decision on appeals from Federal court decrees in Colorado holding unconstitutional portions of the Lever act designed to prevent profiteering. The proceedings grew out of injunctions granted the A. T. Lewis & Son Dry Goods Company enjoining enforcement of the statute.

"Some Federal courts which have passed upon the legislation in question have upheld its constitutionality, while others have ruled adversely there," the Government's motion said. "The result is much confusion and uncertainty, to the embarrassment of the Government and the public."

PITTSBURGH, May 26.—The United States Grand Jury here today returned indictments against five men, formerly employed by railroads at Newcastle, Pa., charging them with having violated the Lever act by conspiring to limit facilities for the transportation of necessities.

agent in New York, has been appointed Governor of Lower California in place of Esteban Cantu.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—The confidential agent in Washington of the New Mexican Provisional Government has been advised from Mexico City that the revolutionary leaders have no disposition to harm military and political prisoners, and that the members of the late President Carranza's entourage who were brought to Mexico City and placed under arrest would be released as fast as they make their depositions in connection with the investigation being made into the assassination of Carranza.

The American Government has indicated its interest in the fate of these prisoners, especially that of Senor Ygnacio Bonillas, the former Mexican Ambassador to the United States, who was one of those arrested, by asking the American Embassy in Mexico City to make inquiries as to the status of Bonillas. The Embassy replied to the Department today that Bonillas is still under detention in the Mexico City penitentiary, but that it was stated in the Mexican Capital that no apprehension is felt as to his safety.

REPORTERS TO HOLD INQUIRY.

Obregon Intrusts Investigation to Four Newspapers.

MEXICO CITY, May 26 (Associated Press).—Four newspaper men will investigate the death of the late President Carranza and report their findings to General Obregon.

Following the receipt last night of the report rendered by the commission named by Generals Obregon and Gonzales to conduct an inquiry into the killing of President Carranza, General Obregon decided upon the innovation, and requested the managing editors of the newspapers Universal, Excelsior, Heraldo and Democrata to appoint one reporter each to conduct a full and impartial investigation.

The managing editors each selected a reporter, and those chosen conferred this morning regarding the method of the investigation.

A formal investigation was recommended by the commission of four named some days ago by Generals Obregon and Gonzales to inquire into the tragedy at Tlaxcalantongo. The commission submitted its report last night and cited ten points which the members had agreed had been proved from stories of witnesses.

It was added that in a number of points many other stories purporting to tell the actual circumstances could not be confirmed and were unworthy of credence. The commission's report may be summarized as follows:

Colonel Herrera joined the Carranza party at Futia, State of Puebla, on May 20, following a conference with General Francisco de P. Mariel, to whom he surrendered last March. Herrera pledged allegiance anew and promised to defend Carranza, which promise was accepted by General Mariel, who told the fugitive President that Herrera was willing to fight for him. General Mariel then left the Carranza party and did not go to Tlaxcalantongo.

Herrera Chose Sleeping Quarters.

"When Carranza reached Tlaxcalantongo he was led by Herrera to the hut where he was to sleep. Herrera was with Carranza when the beds in this shelter were assigned to the President, Manuel Aguirre Berlanga, Minister of the Interior; Mario Mendez, Chief of Telegraphs; Gil Farias, the President's private secretary, and Captains Amador and Suarez, his aids. General Murguia and other members of the party were taken to different houses in the village. Before retiring Carranza ordered Captain Suarez to assist in placing sentinels, all of whom were Herrera's men.

"Herrera later told Carranza that a messenger had informed him his brother was injured, whereupon Herrera left the village, promising to return. At 3 o'clock on the morning of May 21 three of Herrera's men entered the President's hut, stating they had been ordered to report to him what the situation was, adding that nothing new had occurred. Carranza listened to the report and then told the men to leave."

The report then says this move was probably for the purpose of ascertaining if all in the hut were in bed and whether Carranza had changed his position.

"Half an hour later," the report continues, "the hut was attacked from all sides. President Carranza was heard to cry: 'I can't get up; my leg is broken.' He then begged for a carbine so that he could defend himself, but was answered by a volley which ended his life instantly.

"The other occupants of the hut fled, as did those in the other shelters, and there was great confusion in the village. Herrera, at the head of his men, captured 'many' of the party, who were taken twelve miles away, while others were left in Tlaxcalantongo. Four or five of these prisoners were forced to sign a statement that Carranza had committed suicide. This statement was dictated by Manuel Aguirre Berlanga, and written by Paulino Fontes, Director of Mexican National Railways."

These facts are alleged to "prove that a conspiracy was prepared in advance by Herrera, which inspired confidence in him by Carranza, and ended in the President's betrayal."

DE LA HUERTA OUTLINES POLICY

Facilities to Foreign Capital, End of Alcoholism and Gambling.

MEXICO CITY, May 26 (Government wireless, sent broadcast)—Señor de la Huerta, the Provisional President of the Republic, has telegraphed to General Obregon and the Congress announcing his arrival at Culiacan, on the way to Mazatlan, where he was to embark on a gunboat.

In an interview given to the press Señor de la Huerta outlined his program as follows:

To give every facility to foreign capital.

One of his first steps would be to give a better interpretation to the statutes relating to industrial establishments. This interpretation would have a bearing in the first place upon the development of petroleum, allowing enterprises to work without fear of governmental action.

He would make war on alcoholism, rigidly prohibiting it, so as to arrive at its extinction, and would also move against gambling.

He would propose larger powers for Congress and smaller ones for the Executive, making a definite declaration about the Constitution of 1917.

He ended his statement by announcing that he was in favor of putting an end to the exploitation of the masses. He declared that no man and no group of men should pretend to govern in an arbitrary manner.

'WHOM CAN I TRUST,' CARRANZA EXCLAIMED

'I Will Fight Them All,' He Told Times Correspondent Before Leaving the Capital.

THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent in Mexico City had an interview with President Carranza on the night of March 6, as the President was preparing to leave the Capital, in the course of which Carranza plainly revealed his despair over conditions in the Republic.

The interview was embodied in a dispatch which the correspondent filed to be sent by cable, but owing to the fact that the telegraph line to the coast was cut about that time, the telegraph company returned the dispatch. It was sent by mail and was received yesterday. The correspondent writes:

"With a view to economising his men, President Carranza has decided to abandon Mexico City in order to place a larger number of men in the field. Carranza leaves Thursday night.

"The President gave an exclusive interview to THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent today before leaving for Vera Cruz. He said he was much distressed at the turn of affairs for the country's sake, as he had done everything in his power to place the country on a sound footing. The financial progress of the country was proof that the Government had worked in the interests of the people. Finances were increasing to a point where the Government had a surplus which would be used to start payment of the international debt.

"The country, he said, would always remember that ambitious military leaders, thirsting for power, had again plunged it into war. They were unable to wait until the people were given an opportunity to express their wishes by means of the vote, but decided to elect themselves.

"He was leaving Mexico City, the President said, but would continue in office until the country was again free from revolution. Both candidates (Obregon and Gonzales) had charged him with forcing Bonillas on the country as President, but, said Carranza, "I am only looking to the interests of my country. Neither one of these candidates is capable of bringing prosperity to Mexico. Obregon is a better man than Gonzales, but my experience with both has taught me that they are not the men for the position.

"I do not blame Obregon for this trouble, as I have known for over a year that he was ready to start trouble if not elected. The Obregon Congressmen in Congress have always fought Government measures and have always preferred their own interests against the interests of the country, but Obregon was frank, as he was openly against me."

"But Gonzales," said Carranza, with his voice trembling with anger, "is the most unfit man of all. Not only do I know his personal unfitness to handle Government money but also his moral and civil weakness. Why, only three days ago in this room (his private office) Gonzales came to me saying that if I would give him command of the army and repay the money he had spent in the election campaign he would be loyal and would take the field against Obregon.

"But by this time I knew that Gonzales was plotting against me and I refused to allow him to return to the army. Several friends of Gonzales came here, asking me to withdraw Bonillas. I told them that if they could arrange with Bonillas, good, as I was not helping either side, but was willing to permit the people to choose their own President." Carranza, during the conversation, several times rose from his chair and walked about the room, showing signs of great nervousness.

Finally he exclaimed: "I cannot trust any one. I do not know whom to trust. My most intimate friends, men whom I made, have turned against me.

"But I will fight it out.

"Will you accept an invitation to make this trip with me?" he suddenly said to THE TIMES correspondent. "We leave tonight."

The correspondent, however, declined the trip, as he had had information that there would be trouble on the road.

TWO AMERICANS HELD, PROBABLY BY VILLA

C. M. Carr and Man Named Donald or Macdonald Taken Prisoner Near Jiminez.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—Investigation was ordered by the State Department today of the circumstances attending the kidnaping of two Americans in Mexico.

The American Consul at Chihuahua was instructed to conduct the inquiry and there were indications that no representations would be made to the new Mexican Government unless the investigation develops that the men were seized by others than forces of Francisco Villa.

Homer C. M. Carr, one of the captives, is a mining engineer employed by the American Smelting and Refining Company, who went to Mexico from New York City. The identity of the other prisoners was uncertain. The consular report gave the name as "Macdonald." The records of the department show two men of that name, both mining engineers in Mexico, one of them in the Parral district, near Jiminez. There also is M. C. Donald of Vermont, Tex., who went to Mexico to work in the oil fields.

EL PASO, Tex., May 26.—Advices reaching here say Homer C. M. Carr was traveling from Chihuahua City to below Torreon when he was taken from the train by Villa soldiers. His headquarters had recently been at Chihuahua City.

Doubt was expressed here concerning the report that a man named McDonald had been captured with Carr. First reports received in El Paso of Carr's capture came from Barnard McDonald, manager at Parral for the American Smelting and Refining Company.

Milk Prices—and The Prices of Other Foods

WHILE the price of everything you buy has been soaring, you should know that the average price of milk has shown a lesser increase than any other food you eat (66% over pre-war prices). It is now the cheapest of any food of animal origin, and gives more food for your dollar than anything that comes to your table. In addition to this milk is not comparable with any other food. It stands alone. It contains everything your body needs. There is no substitute for it.

The fact that milk prices have not increased as other foods have is due largely to the advanced methods of distribution employed in the milk trade. No handling and rehandling. We take the milk from the farmer and bring it to you.

SENATE ADOPTS ITEM WILSON HAD VETOED

TO BEGIN JULY 1, 1921

Last of the Regular Supply Measures Is Passed and Sent to Conference.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—The $440,000,000 Sundry Civil Appropriation bill, the last of the regular annual Government supply bills, was passed by the Senate today and sent to conference.

The bill carried an amendment giving Congress authority to determine what Government publications shall be published, but authorizing those now being issued to be continued until June 30, 1921. Except that power to control Government publication is vested in Congress instead of in the Joint Congressional Printing Committee, the amendment is similar to the one which resulted in the President recently vetoing the Legislative Appropriation bill.

The Senate also adopted, without debate, an amendment appropriating $1,500,000 for the use of the Bureau of Internal Revenue in guarding intoxicating liquors held in warehouses and for enforcing the National Prohibition act.

Another amendment was adopted authorizing the Government to pay the railroad fare home from Washington of war workers who resign or are dismissed from service between now and July 1 next.

Other legislative riders added by the Senate include authority to extend use of the $300,000,000 revolving fund of the Interstate Commerce Commission from five to fifteen years. The commission now is arranging for long-term loans from this fund to the railroads for obtaining more cars.

The Senate accepted an amendment by Senator Robinson, Democrat, of Arkansas, appropriating $225,000 for continuance of the Federal Employment Service, of that amount $25,000 is to be used for the mobilization of workers to harvest the wheat crop in various parts of the country.

Wilson. "It would seem to me that there was one way of getting to the bottom of this thing, and that would be to have the Federal in Pennsylvania produce their books and show where their sugar has gone to."

After asserting that sugar would go to 25 cents, Mr. Wilson remarked that refiners should be classed as public utilities. He added:

"I do not think they have any right to sell to an outsider. The whole toll business has been centred to three concerns—Carnikow-Rionda, Minford and Lamborn. They are agents for the Cuban Cane, a $50,000,000 'war baby.' It was overcapitalized. In spite of the fact that they have had four of the best years they ever had, they are still $25,000,000 in debt, and they have just floated a bond issue of $25,000,000."

Names Factors in Control.

Q.—That is the Cuban Cane? A.—That is the entire end of the business. That is the stock end of the game, but Cuban Cane will control 35 per cent. of all Cuban cane raised and, naturally, are very much interested in refined sugars up here. Mr. Spreckels, who is at the head of the American Sugar Refining Company, and, incidentally, I know he was on the Board of Directors of the Cane, worked in very nicely. The sugar business is practically in the hands of three or four people today.

Q.—Who are these three or four people? A.—Well, I have named them for you.

Q.—You mean those three concerns you have named and Spreckels? A.—There are the Federal and Warner Sugar Refining companies in Pennsylvania, and Lamborn, Minford and Carnikow-Rionda. They form a very great nucleus. There may be a few more.

Mr. Wilson also declared that there were hundreds of unlicensed brokers operating, each of them taking a profit. "Eliminate them," he remarked, "they have no place in the game."

The last witness summoned was Frank H. Grether, sugar merchant, 70 Wall Street. Before his examination was completed, the committee adjourned until next Wednesday at 2:30 o'clock in the City Hall.

RETAIL FOOD PRICES FALL.

Downward Trend in Virtually All Market Commodities.

The recent slump in wholesale prices of fruits, vegetables, meats and other commodities was reflected to some extent in many of the retail stores and markets yesterday, but other retailers are still clinging to the old prices. Market men said that virtually all commodities have a downward trend and that by the end of this week the consumer should be able to make purchases at a big saving over last week.

There was a decrease of 2 cents a pound in the wholesale price of creamery butter yesterday, the quotation being 58 cents. There is a plentiful supply of butter on hand, the domestic shipments being augmented by arrivals from abroad. The price of creamery butter to the consumer will be around 60 cents by the end of the week, a market authority predicted last night. The price now is 62 to 66 cents a pound. He said that the extras might sell for from 62 to 65 cents a pound.

Many other food commodities showed further decrease in price yesterday. Onions sold from $1.50 to $1.75 a crate, or at about 3 cents a pound. The consumer is paying 10 to 15 cents a pound. The wholesale prices of old crop potatoes made further declines yesterday, but the new crop potatoes advanced $1 a barrel. Some extra fancy and well graded from South Carolina sold as high as $15.

Beef was a half cent lower yesterday; veal calves 1 cent and lamb 1 cent. The fish market has advanced 2 or 3 cents a pound in the last few weeks, due, it is said, to the limited supply, as a result of a storm on the coast.

HAIL VIENNA, FIRST IN MUSIC

Three Weeks' Historic Review Led by Strauss and Weingartner.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, May 26.—A music festival arranged by the Vienna municipality, opening today and continuing to June 13, promises to be the greatest ever held, according to advance comment published here.

The festival programs will embrace representative productions of both classical and modern music of Viennese origin, the selection being designed to show Vienna's position as the world's music centre, which she is determined to maintain in her present time of misery.

All the artistic and musical bodies in the capital, including orchestras, opera and theatre companies and choirs, are participating. The principal conductors are Richard Strauss and Felix Weingartner.

LAWSON GIVES NEWSPRINT.

Releases 100 Tons for Distribution to Smaller Newspapers.

CHICAGO, May 26.—Victor F. Lawson, publisher of The Chicago Daily News, has released 100 tons of newsprint to be distributed to smaller newspapers in need of supplies.

J. L. Fearing, Western Manager of the International Paper Company, said that the action of Mr. Lawson and other large publishers in releasing part of their tonnage at the request of the International Paper Company, George H. Mead Company and other concerns had saved many papers. He thought there were signs of early adjustment of the paper situation.

His Royal Highness Crowned This Customer

LAST Saturday an old customer came into my Times Square store, picked out a 7¼ straight-brim straw, tried it on, took a peek in the mirror, thought it looked good, decided to keep it, and gave the salesman $3.45.

A Silent Salesman

This man knew his size, and he knew where to find it. He knew what he wanted, and he got it. He knew there was only one price, and he paid it. There were no questions asked, no comments made. It was Self-Service with a Silent Salesman—and the customer was the salesman.

But when the sale was completed, the silence was broken. In making a final inspection of this straw hat, he noticed on the lining the words:

"Made in England"

He asked the salesman in a joking sort of way whether it was a Sample or a Mistake—whether it was born in Old England or New England—and said he thought only the high-priced fellows sold genuine English hats.

Now, the fact is, I've been buying some English hats for the last fifteen years, but I have never said anything about it. I didn't think it was important enough to write home about. I didn't buy English hats to get an imported flavor. I like baseball better than cricket. I think good American hats are just as good as English hats. The only reason this hat was marked "Made in England" was because the Government required it.

Ireland to Iceland

I went to England to get good merchandise at a fair price. I would have gone from Ireland to Iceland, if I had to, to get what I wanted. I went to Old England rather than let a New England Manufacturing Profiteer freeze me out, or freeze me up.

Baltimore is the center of the straw hat industry in this country, and after I had given the factories in Baltimore all they wanted to take at the price I was willing to pay, I still had an order of about 20,000 dozen that I wanted to place. I thought I knew where to place it, and I went there.

This particular factory had made thousands of dozens for me in the past fifteen years. But this year they wanted the same rate for 10,000 dozen as they would for one dozen. Every other year they were mighty glad to get my order to keep their organization together and the wheels turning during their dull period.

Profiteering in Straws

As the demand for straw hats was greater than the production, they thought they'd take advantage of a shortage in straws this season and would make more money by selling to a lot of little fellows at a long profit, rather than take a large order at a small margin.

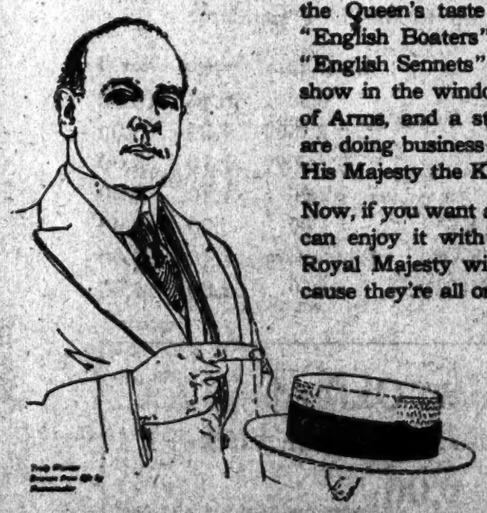
Of course, I couldn't do business on that basis, and I guess they couldn't. That factory is out of business today. That's why I bought more than 200,000 English hats last year for this summer.

When the cables announced my buyer was filling up the English factories, the next boat that left New York looked like a Hat Buyers' Convention. I guess every big buyer that could pack his grip in time sailed for England.

But it was too late. They couldn't beat the boat. I kept the cables warm while they were on the water. My buyer was placing orders while they were playing pinochle. When they arrived, prices went up, sterling went down, raw materials were scarce, and money was tight.

100,000 "English Sailors" Arrive

Well, the answer is, I've got more than 100,000 "English Sailors" in my stores now and the "reserves" are coming in on every boat.



These English straw bonnets are styled to the Queen's taste and are just the same "English Boaters", "English Sailors" and "English Sennets" that the Piccadilly shops show in the window with the Royal Coat of Arms, and a statement explaining they are doing business "By Special Warrant of His Majesty the King".

Now, if you want a little Royal Luxury, you can enjoy it with the compliments of his Royal Majesty without a Luxury tax, because they're all one price—$3.45.

They're all one Price $3.45

CHICAGO CONCERN IN ARNSTEIN INQUIRY

Surety Company Seeks to Show Corporation Was a "Blind" to Sell Stolen Bonds.

PHILIP KASTEL TESTIFIES

Says Arthur C. Ecrement Was One of Principals in Company to "Handle Land Scheme."

Philip F. Kastel, who went on the witness stand yesterday at the resumption before United States Commissioner Gilchrist of the bankruptcy proceedings instituted against "Nicky" Arnstein by the National Surety Company, was questioned about the organization recently of a corporation in Chicago in which he admitted that Arthur C. Ecrement, who was brought to this city recently from Chicago to be questioned in the bankruptcy proceeding, and a Professor Dufraene, were the principals.

"What connection has the formation of that corporation with this bankruptcy?" asked Eugene F. McGee, counsel for the witness, who objected to being compelled to reveal the details of the organization of the corporation.

"We want to show," replied Saul S. Myers, counsel for the petitioner in the bankruptcy, "that this corporation is a blind, and that its purpose was to issue stock and to obtain loans on stolen bonds which were to be put up as collateral."

Kastel said the corporation was to be capitalized at $3,000,000 to "handle a land scheme." He said he was not an officer of the corporation, the name of which was not revealed during his testimony, and that Ecrement and Professor Dufraene asked him to act as the corporation's fiscal agent.

The witness said that on several occasions he called on "Morty" Bernstein, who died several weeks ago, while Bernstein was a patient in the Post Graduate Hospital and in the Lenox Hill Hospital, in the latter part of October last. Joseph Gluck, leader of a band of dishonest messengers for brokerage houses in the financial district, confessed in the bankruptcy proceeding that he handed over to "Nicky" Arnstein and "Nick" Cohen, who is still a fugitive from justice, more than $600,000 worth of stolen securities, and that in the latter part of October last he accompanied Cohen to the Post Graduate Hospital, where Cohen gave some of the stolen securities to Bernstein, who disposed of them.

"When did you see 'Nick' Cohen last?" Kastel was asked.

"I don't know the man," he replied.

"Did you ever receive any stock or bonds of any description from 'Nick' Cohen?"

"No, Sir," said Kastel.

"Did you ever receive any stock from Morty' Bernstein?"

"No, Sir," the witness replied.

Kastel said Bernstein sent for him while the latter was a patient in the Post Graduate Hospital and asked him to pay his bills at the hospital. He later called on him when Bernstein was a patient at the Lenox Hill Hospital, where Bernstein died. He advanced $800 to $900 to Bernstein, he said.

Kastel admitted he dined Tuesday night last with "Nicky" Arnstein, Mr. McGee and William J. Fallon, McGee's law partner, and another lawyer.

"When was the last time you saw Arnstein before that occasion?" he was asked.

"In the latter part of January or the early part of February. I met him in this city."

Mr. Myers developed that the meeting was shortly before "Nicky" Arnstein and "Nick" Cohen fled the city, following statements made by Gluck and others arrested in connection with thefts of $2,000,000 worth of securities from brokerage houses in the Wall Street district. Kastel denied he communicated with Arnstein in Chicago or in Toronto.

Kastel said he was a native of Montreal, Canada, and that Professor Dufraene and Ecrement were natives of the same city. Kastel took more than an hour and a half to examine the minutes of his previous testimony in the bankruptcy before he would sign it for the court record. He was excused as a witness three hours after he took the stand.

TEN YEARS FOR BOND THIEF.

Judge Mulqueen Imposes Maximum Sentence on Michael Rost.

"It is about time the authorities took notice of the wholesale bond robberies in this city which are coming to be a satire on justice," said Judge Mulqueen in General Sessions yesterday when he sentenced Michael Rost, 33 years old, of 229 East 103d Street, to ten years in Sing Sing for criminally receiving securities stolen from DeCoppet & Doremus, stock brokers, 42 Broadway, on March 3 last.

Rost was convicted by a jury a week ago, after Irving Fordon, a stock broker at 63 West 125th Street, testified Rost brought the securities to his office and asked him to dispose of them. He said he found they were stolen from DeCoppet & Doremus by a dishonest messenger, and notified the police, who arrested Rost.

Assistant District Attorney Sheridan said he had been informed Rost was acting as a "go-between" for persons who have been accused before the Grand Jury in other bond robberies.

"The Judges should impose the maximum sentence on every person who is connected with such robberies," said Judge Mulqueen. That is what I shall do in this case."

CADET REGIMENT REVIEWED.

Afterward 600 Members and Their Guests Dance.

The 49th Regiment of the Corps of Cadets of New York was reviewed last night by Brigadier General William Chapin, Major J. Wesley Lyon, supervising officer of the New York Zone of Military Training, members of the board of directors and the Boy's Committee of the Rotary Club of New York and officers of the Women's Motor Corps. About six hundred boys were in line commanded by Captain Arthur B. Chase. A feature of the review was an exhibition drill by a company made up of employes of the Metropolitan Insurance Company.

After the review members of the regiment and guests closed the evening with a dance. The Metropolitan Company band furnished the music for the drills and the dance.

CIVIL WAR IN ALBANIA.

Provisional Government Is Said to be Unable to Control.

LONDON, May 26.—Messages from Durazzo picture Albania as in the throes of civil war, the ultimate consequences of which it is impossible to forecast, according to an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Rome today.

The Provisional Government seems incapable of dominating the situation, and its call to the colors for the establishment of a national army remains unanswered, the message declares.

The Greeks, who formerly were anxious to occupy Northern Epirus, have decided to delay the occupation, fearing complications and attacks by bands. The civilian population, it is said, is petitioning the Italian commanders not to withdraw their garrisons from the interior.

Methodists Favor a Mandate.

DES MOINES, May 26.—The acceptance of a mandate over Armenia by the United States was favored in a resolution adopted today by the Methodist Episcopal General Conference. Instructions were given officers of the conference to telegraph to President Wilson and the Chairman of the Committee on Foreign Relations of the Senate the substance of the resolution and to send full copies by mail.

President Wilson's voice as arbitrator would be a tocsin which would summon them to the performance of the charitable task they have so far shirked. Therefore, unless President Wilson sees some way to enforce his decisions the value those decisions would have is to be doubted.

But if America assumes the mandate the question takes on an entirely different aspect, for it would be America who would maintain the boundaries Mr. Wilson would lay out. That solution would be most welcome to the Allies.

I use the figures of 30,000 to 40,000 troops as what would be needed because those were the figures mentioned by Foch at San Remo. The estimate of the money needed was $50,000,000 for the first eight years, at the end of which the Armenians calculate that they can support their own nation.

It is easy to gain an idea of the wholesome influence American troops would have in Asia Minor from reading the news of the day from Turkey. Mustapha Kemal is holding his independent Parliament at Angora and explaining why he will not recognize the Sultan's authority, since the Sultan is under the British thumb in Constantinople. He declares it is his duty to prevent the enforcement of the Turkish treaty and the consequent dismemberment of the Turkish Empire. At Constantinople yesterday, when the Government began the consideration of the treaty terms, 5,000 Turks took part in a demonstration against it. East of Smyrna Turkish regulars are fighting Greeks. The Nationalists of Thrace declare that they will oppose by force the Greek occupation which is about to begin. The French are having their own troubles in Syria, and over in Persia the British have to fall back before the Soviet troops of Red Russia. Georgia and Azerbaijan are said to be half-way Bolshevist, and Red propaganda is being pushed in Eastern Armenia.

Kemal says that before the treaty is signed he will have occupied all the Asiatic side of the Straits, and to enforce their treaty the Allies would have to make him get out. Over at Trebizond, which Wilson believes should be Armenia's port, Kemal's officials hold sway.

These are a few of the facts which show why the Allies would like to have America accept the Armenian mandate.

WOMEN DEMOCRATS SEEK LABOR VOTES

CAMPAIGN TO COVER NATION

Suggestion for Winning Hoover Supporters for Their Party Also Is Indorsed.

Plans to bring the woman labor vote into the Democratic column were projected yesterday at the first meeting of the Executive Committee of the Woman's Bureau of the National Democratic Committee at the Waldorf, where headquarters have been opened.

The women represented several States and in addition to the campaign for the votes of women workers they adpted a suggestion designed to capture the woman's Hoover vote. This offensive is based upon the assumption that Hoover will not be the Republican candidate. So soon as that is an established fact the Democratic women will seek to convince every woman who would have been for Hoover that the Democrats can more nearly offer the things which attracted them to Hoover than can the Republicans.

According to Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, First Vice Chairman, who presided, the appeal for labor votes will be carried to the very gates of the factories and doors of the office buildings.

"It will be a countrywide campaign," said Mrs. Fairbank, "and will be buttressed, we believe, by two strong weapons. First, we shall try to bring home to every woman who works and every woman interested in the welfare of those who do work, that the Democratic Party has done a great deal for them in the last seven years. Second, we shall try to learn exactly what the working women want at the hands of a national Administration and then see that every constructive measure is both pledged and produce by the Democrats. We think that double appeal will win."

Homer S. Cummings, National Democratic Chairman, and William Cochrane, Chairman of Publicity, came from Washington to address the gathering. Among those who attended were Mrs. Caroline Ruutz-Rees of Connecticut, Mrs. Otto H. Wittpen of New Jersey, Mrs. Esther G. Ogden of New York, Resident Vice Chairman; Miss Virginia Firman, Mrs. John Blair, Mrs. Robert Bruere, Chairman of the Woman in Industry Committee; Mrs. Francis A. Shinn, Chairman of the Publicity Committee; Mrs. Harriman N. Simons, Chairman of the Committee on National Organizations of Women; Mrs. Abram I. DRINK MILK FOR FIRST TIME.

Starved Austrian Children Brought to England by Fund.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 26.—Children from starving Austria arrived at Folkestone today in charge of a medical officer of the Ministry of Health, several English governesses and Austrian nurses who were refused permission to land.

This is the first company of Mid-European children to come to England under the authority of the "Save the Children Fund." Every child had been medically examined three times and one party represented the best specimens of childhood which Vienna could give, yet every one was undernourished and very many were undersized.

The children belong to all classes. One is the daughter of the head of a department which corresponds to the British Ministry of Health. Another is the child of an officer of high rank in the Austrian Navy. Many belong to the peasant or working classes. One of the women who accompanied the children said:

"Five out of every ten children in Austria are tubercular. Most of the rest suffer from heart disease or rickets. These children, the best we could find, were well enough to stand the journey to England. One loaf of black bread and four ounces of meat in a week, no milk or butter, no sugar since January, a few potatoes for those who can afford them—what can you expect? It is a wonder that the children have survived."

Today some of the children who had never seen a banana before ate the entire fruit, skin and all, and those who never had tasted milk drank it as if it were some treasure from a King's table.

Southern Roads' Representative Urges Need of New Equipment.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—Charles H. Markham, President of the Illinois Central Railroad, in opening today the case of the Southern railroads for higher freight rates before the Interstate Commerce Commission, advocated an expenditure of at least $600,000,000 for new equipment for the nation's transportation system. Railroad history, he said, showed continued progress in efficiency, and accordingly the roads should operate as successfully in the future as in the past if given the tools in the shape of equipment to work with.

For the Southern railroads Mr. Markham asked an increase in freight rates to enable the carriers to earn $136,049,091 annually, which he claimed would represent a return of 6 per cent. on the aggregate value of the carriers, which he estimated at $2,267,484,847.

Proposed coal and coke rate advances in the Eastern territory were explained to the commission by E. B. Crosley, Vice President of the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad. Carriers propose that the advances on coal and coke be made on the same general basis as on class and commodity traffic.

COMPROMISE ON ARMY BILL.

Conferees Reach Agreement on National Guard Provisions.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—A compromise on National Guard provisions of the Army Reorganization bill was reached today by the Senate and House conference. Under it the enlisted personnel and officers of the National Guard would remain State troops, but National Guard officers would be members of the Federal forces through commissions in the Reserve Corps. Another clause would authorize a National Guard officer to head the Militia Bureau of the War Department and direct National Guard affairs.

The compromise broke the deadlock on the bill and is expected to pave the way for complete agreement, in view of the previous agreement by the Senate managers to yield on the Senate plan for voluntary military training.

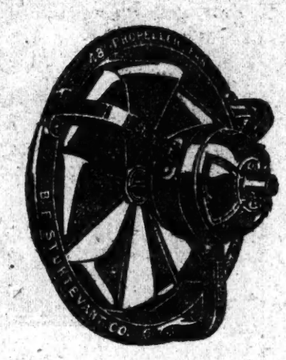
CAMBRIDGE, England, May 16.—Use of motor cars and motor cycles by undergraduates when attending lectures has become such a nuisance that the Vice Chancellor of the university here has issued an edict against the practice.

Sturtevant
PUTS AIR TO WORK

Men Can't Work Efficiently in Dust- and Gas-Filled Air



Fine flying dust and gases, vapors, or chemical fumes are a menace to your men's health. Vitiated air lowers vitality and cuts down interest and close application to work. Good ventilation is an insurance against disease and is bound to be reflected in better work and more contented workmen.

Where large volumes of steam, gases, and foul air are to be moved, install

Sturtevant Propeller Fans

They are designed for use as mechanical ventilating fans to move a large volume of air against small resistances and discharge it directly out of the building. Fans of the propeller type have been developed for all conditions of service—for small theatres, restaurants, club rooms, kitchens, laboratories, foundries, and factories. For the work for which these Propeller Fans are designed to do, they are most satisfactory and economical.

In Sturtevant Propeller Fans are embodied all the experience, both engineering and manufacturing, that has distinguished Sturtevant apparatus as quality equipment for three generations.

Let a Sturtevant representative call and tell you the proper fan to use. He will gladly co-operate with you in making the right selection. Write, wire, or phone for him.

STILL DEADLOCKED ON JUNE MILK PRICE

Dairymen's League, in Ultimatum to Distributers, Says 'Time for Discussion Is Past.'

CONFERENCE LASTS ALL DAY

President of Borden Company Announces "There Probably Will Be No Strike."

Committees representing the Dairymen's League and the New York Milk Conference Board were in almost continuous session all day yesterday and until late last night, when it was announced by I. Elkin Nathans, Secretary of the Conference Board, that the deadlock over the June milk price still continued.

The league representatives delivered an ultimatum to the Conference Board Committee in the morning. They demanded $2.83 a hundred pounds for 3 per cent. milk, an increase of 28 cents over the May price.

"The time for discussion as to the June price is past; it now remains only to make such price effective," John D. Miller, Vice President and General Counsel of the league, told the representatives of the distributers.

The Conference Board received its committee's report at its headquarters in the Flatiron Building, following which one of its members was again in conference with league representatives for several hours. This was followed last night by another meeting of the Conference Board. What took place at these meetings was not made public.

Patrick D. Fox, President of the Borden's Farm Products Company, announced that his company would not advance the milk prices to the consumer in June "under any circumstances." He added that there probably would be no milk strike.

The Dairymen's League gave out extracts from the remarks made by Mr. Miller to the Conference Board committee as representing the League's position in the controversy.

Wins $100,000 and Takes Vacation.

Having won $100,000 in a Havana lottery, Captain Juan Linares, a pilot, of Matanzas, Cuba, decided to take a vacation. He left there thirty-eight years ago.

HIS JOB TO KEEP ORDER.

Regent of Hungary Sure Oldtime Prosperity Will Return.

BUDAPEST, May 21. (Associated Press).—"Always do your best and never mind the rest," Admiral Horthy, Regent of Hungary, upon whom depends the immediate fate of the country, said to the correspondent today.

"It is a case now of keeping order in Hungary," he continued. "This I am doing. Go wherever you like and you will find people working where there is work to be had, particularly among the agriculturists. Concerning White Terrorists, it is true there was a reaction against Communists, whether Jews or Hungarians. It is asking too much of human nature to expect our people not to commit some acts of violence against those who ruined our country. Gradually this spirit of violence has been controlled.

"Serbia claims that we are preparing for a new war, asserting that we are importing arms. I only wish we might, as our small army needs them.

"Our money is slowly recovering its exchange value as order is established and as crops become better. I am sure our old time prosperity will return. Hungary is an excellent field for investment, as foreign capital is discovering already."

Asked when former King Charles would return, the Regent said:

"Upstairs there is the ancient crown of St. Stephen awaiting some wearer. There is an order not to speak about who the wearer will be until the country is in a better condition."

RAIN ASSURES CRIMEA CROPS

Fruits Estimated at 50,000 Tons, but Canneries Are Handicapped.

SEBASTOPOL, May 24 (Associated Press)—Rains have assured abundant crops in the Crimea this year, and there is every indication that the region will become self-sustaining within a few months.

The fruit crop is unparalleled. It is estimated at 50,000 tons, which could be exported were shipping facilities available. The canneries are without capital, sugar or other supplies.

BEGIN RESTORING LOUVAIN.

German Government to Spend 5,000,000 Francs Gold on Library.

BERLIN, May 26.—Restoration of the Louvain Library has been begun by the German Government at a cost of more than 5,000,000 francs gold, in execution of the agreement with Belgium, says the National Beitung.

Restoration of paintings carried off during the war is also proceeding, the newspaper says.

According to the same authority, Germany had restored to France up to April 1 5,000,000,000 marks in cash and securities and large quantities of art works, documents and archives, and to Belgium about the same amount.

What really explodes in your engine

With Sluggish Gas: 8 parts of air 1 part gasoline
With TYDOL Gas: 15 parts of air 1 part gasoline

How to make the 15 to 1 adjustment

Fill gasoline tank with Tydol. Run engine till warm. Lift hood. Turn gas adjustment on carburetor, decreasing gradually flow of gas.

This is 15 to 1 adjustment.

Tydol will operate on rich, wasteful mixtures required by inferior gas. But you can use 15 to 1—more air, less fuel.

Held back
—by the car in front

SEVEN million cars on American roads today! That's why you get tied up behind a slow car so often. The string of traffic seems endless. You hang out the side and wait for your chance.

Now! Jam on the gas. Does your engine cough and begin to knock? You haven't a chance in the world to get through the hole.

That's when ordinary sluggish gas hurts most. Such gasoline vaporizes slowly. With such fuel you can never be sure of real pickup.

Made to run strong on the famous 15 to 1 mixture Tydol Economy Gasoline vaporizes fast. Tydol lets you run through a boulevard or cut the main trunk highway with snappy pickup. It reduces engine trouble and gives you more miles to the gallon. Even where Tydol costs more than ordinary gasoline it is always an economy. Fill up with Tydol. Know what real pickup means. WILL RUSH ACTION ON PULPWOOD BAN

WILL ANSWER TO PRESIDENT

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—The resolution authorizing the President to appoint a commission to treat with Canada on the embargo placed by the Dominion on pulpwood for use in making newsprint paper was favorably reported to the House today by the Foreign Affairs Committee. The resolution has already passed the Senate.

Chairman Porter of the committee said this afternoon that he would ask tomorrow for a special rule so that the resolution could be brought up in the House within a few days. Its passage will be practically automatic. The amendments inserted in the Senate resolution by the House committee were for the most part of minor importance, except that the commission is directed to report to the President instead of to Congress by Dec. 1, 1920. The alteration was thought necessary because reports on subjects involving international dealings should be made to the President.

It is expected that the President will appoint the commission immediately after the resolution is perfected and that the commission will at once enter into conference with Canadian authorities.

In its report the Foreign Affairs Committee suggests by implication that if Canada is unwilling to rescind the embargo on pulpwood this country would be justified in preventing the exportation of coal, sulphur, kaolin and dyes to Canada. Mutual embargoes on the products of the two countries would result in shutting down paper mills on dary, says the report, which follows in full:

"Your committee has made an exhaustive investigation of the shortage of pulpwood in the United States and finds it is largely due to those embargoes which were laid upwards of ten years ago and that with the exception of one or two mills on the Pacific Coast there has not been a paper mill constructed in the United States since those embargoes were laid and no additions built to present mills. The spruce, pine and hemlock, which alone can be used for the making of print paper, have been rapidly reduced in quantity and quality until there is none available for the Eastern mills except in small portions of Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Minnesota and Michigan. In these States the supply is rapidly diminishing and becoming more inaccessible.

"The reports of our consuls, together with the newspaper clippings printed in the hearings, will show conclusively that it has been the policy of the Dominion of Canada for upwards of ten years to force American paper manufacturers to move into Canada, in order to secure an adequate supply of pulpwood. This a number of them have already done. These embargoes are limited to the Crown lands but the testimony shows that quite recently, during the last year, strong efforts have been made to prohibit American manufacturers from buying pulpwood from the owners of land in fee. The testimony also conclusively shows that we must have pulpwood from the Crown land and three Dominion provinces (Quebec, New Brunswick and Ontario), otherwise our paper mills will eventually be compelled to close down or move into the Dominion of Canada. Canada must have coal, sulphur, kaolin and dyes from the United States or suffer a similar misfortune.

"It is true that the Dominion of Canada, or the provinces mentioned, have a legal right to lay these embargoes, but on the other hand, we have the same legal right to lay embargoes on the products of the United States; and if we adopted the same policy as Canada the paper mills in both countries would have to cease operation.

"Your committee feels confident that the appointment of the commission to confer with the Dominion and provincial governments, as provided in the resolution on this matter which is of such grave importance to the people of the United States, would bring about an amicable adjustment of the matters in dispute."

Girl Who Killed Husband is Freed.

PATERSON, N. J., May 26.—Mrs. Edna Mensing, seventeen years old, who accidentally shot her husband, Henry, last Monday morning while attempting to waken him by the "click" of a revolver she thought unloaded, has been set free, the Grand Jury this afternoon failing to find sufficient evidence to warrant an indictment for murder, the charge upon which she was arrested.

The funeral of the husband will be held at the home of his mother, Mrs. Caroline Mensing, High Avenue, Clifton, tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock.

HEAVENLY HARMONY.

General Wood has discovered a certain "falling off" in Republican unity. He urges all good Republicans from this day forth to "preach harmony." But haven't they the services of the greatest Preacher of Harmony ever known? Chairman HAYS has long been flitting from State to State, and from Legislature to Congress—also from boss to boss—seeking to induce the lion and the lamb to lie down together. He has found the answer to the old puzzle: How can two walk together except they be agreed? That answer is: Ignore your differences and pool your animosities. JOHNSON and LODGE are to leave off glaring angrily at each other, in order to concentrate their united fury upon President WILSON. PENROSE and PERKINS need not try to love each other better so long as they can intone in unison a hymn of hate against the Democratic Administration. Thus the recipe for Republican harmony is simple. It was anticipated by CARLYLE in his proposals for a Heaven and Hell Amalgamation Society.

There are, however, some things that cannot be mixed, and some personalities that refuse to be amalgamated. For example, one wing of Republicans declares the soldiers' bonus to be only a debt due from a grateful country, while the other denounces it as an unblushing attempt to loot the Treasury. How can these two wings be made to flap together? The answer from the distraught Republican caucus in Washington is that they can't be. And what sort of harmonizer is HIRAM JOHNSON just now? Like the founders of Massachusetts, he seeks peace with a sword in his hand. Mayor THOMPSON of Chicago is going after harmony with a club and a knife. It is not astonishing that even well-poised General WOOD is worried. Neither he nor any other Republican who keeps his eyes open is in the mood to burst into song over the heavenly harmony of his party.

CAUSES OF CREDIT TROUBLES.

Recently the Federal Reserve Bank has been outspokenly criticised in Congress. Regarding its policies and activities in the present credit situation there was an implication of censure in the inquiries which were addressed to it upon motion of Senator MCCORMICK. Governor HARDING'S reply shows the Federal Reserve able to defend itself as to its alleged sins of omission. It would have been surprising if, as critics charged, it was unaware that the crops are to be moved this Fall, although the last crops are still blockaded along miles of railway and in many elevators. Senator MCCORMICK'S suggestion that there was danger of "something approximating a panic" resembling that of 1907 was not happily made, for the conditions are unlike, and in 1907 there was in existence no such protective force as the Federal Reserve Bank.

Governor HARDING puts the world war first among the causes of the disturbance. Other causes are extravagance, public and private, inefficiency of labor resulting in declining production, shortage of transportation, thus obstructing the circulation of both goods and credit, and the vicious circle of increasing wages and prices. With justice the Governor remarks that these causes of credit congestion are "physical rather than financial." The borrowings of the Treasury absorb credit, and, as it happens, loans secured by Government war obligations exceed all others by about half. The blame for the manner of financing the war rests on so many shoulders that nobody is particular need be censured, but this does not apply to the fact that a year after the war's end Congress leaves the Treasury with a deficit which the Federal Reserve is expected to advance.

The Council would suggest the wisdom of Congressional relief from the burden of Government financing by a policy of rigid economy, the revision of the tax laws, " " " the enactment of the budget system, the budget to include provision for the gradual payment of the short-time obligations of the Treasury. These would of necessity preclude unwise appropriations, such as the proposed soldiers' bonus.

The Federal Reserve began its precautions half a year ago, before Congress or the Interstate Commission acted, and is even now looking forward with as much prevision as can be expected. Governor HARDING'S reply ends with a recommendation to the Interstate Commerce Commission and the Shipping Board. There is no relief for the congestion of credit more natural or wholesome than the free circulation of goods, and the stoppage of that circulation is traced to the fact that the trade of the country has increased 48 per cent. within three years, while the facilities for its transportation have increased less than 2 per cent. The completion of the movement of the last crop would provide credit to move the coming crop. If "frozen loans" were liquefied, "the resultant release of credit "would have a most beneficial effect "upon the general situation." Therefore, the board recommends increase of railway and shipping rates and facilities. If they are supplied, "the board "sees no occasion for apprehension "in connection with the movement of "the crops now being grown."

The whole is a reassuring statement from our highest authority. The country is fortunate that the Federal Reserve has both the disposition and the resources to cope with any situation visible on the financial horizon.

REASONING IN HIGH PLACES.

Governor SMITH was expected to sign the 2.75 beer bill, and he did. He was also expected to furnish good reasons for signing it, but he did not. His memorandum displays a sudden deference for the wisdom of the Legislature. Experts differ radically, the Governor says, over the question whether 2.75 beer is intoxicating; in these circumstances, he asks, what better guide can he follow than "the "legislative declaration that such "beer is non-intoxicating"? The State certainly did not know before that the Legislature was composed of chemists, dietitians, physiologists and laboratory researchers. But Governor SMITH, the more impressed the more he looked at the Legislature, went on to say: "If representative govern-"ment means anything, it surely "means that when a substantial ma-"jority of both houses makes its "declaration upon a matter of this "sort it is representative of the ma-"jority sentiment of the State." Not so did the Governor reason when he vetoed the Lusk bills, passed by an even more substantial majority of the Legislature.

It should not be demanded of Executives that they be always consistent and logical in giving reasons for what they want to do. But they need to be on their guard against trying to put in the place of facts mere phantoms. One such phantom, with which lawyers and judges like gravely to amuse themselves, is "the mind" of the Legislature. That is to say, they go behind the record, behind the language of the statute, and pretend to discover what was the secret intellectual process of the legislators. Some one was once praising the late JAMES C. CARTER for his power of abstract thought, and finally declared, as a climax: "He actually believed that the Legislature had a mind!"

In this matter of chancing it with 2.75 beer the Legislature was doubtless minded to do something. This was not, however, in New York any more than in Massachusetts, really to give the workingman his beer again. "This bill will not provide beer," said Governor COOLIDGE with cruel precision when he vetoed the similar Massachusetts act. What it was intended to provide he did not say. There was no need that he should. Everybody understood that it was meant to provide friends against the day of evil—that is, Election Day. One can hardly imagine Bishop BUTLER ever elected a Governor or a President, but if such a man were an Executive he could refresh the public mightily by piercing through shams to realities. Things are what they are; the consequences will be what they will be; so why should we wish to deceive ourselves?

A TOUCHING APPEAL.

To the connoisseur and collector of political habits, manners and moralities, few documents can be more precious, as surely none can be lovelier, than Mr. HENRY CABOT LODGE'S entreaty for "the spirit of national unity." With the problems, domestic and foreign, that face the country "we must all deal " " " as "Americans and without any section-"al leanings or prejudices. The "Republican Party should make its "appeal, North and South, and East "and West, to all Americans who love "their country without regard to sec-"tion or difference of long ago, now "happily dispersed and gone, we be-"lieve, forever." In short, the Republican Party, long so sharply sectional, yearns for some Southern electoral votes. What fitter missionary for the Solid South, what more persuasive evangelist of harmony, could be selected than Mr. LODGE?

In the South that name is one to bathe in tears and hale with gratitude. It was Mr. LODGE who introduced into the House of Representatives thirty years ago the Force bill. Into the details of that measure for the Federal supervision of elections it is unnecessary now to enter. For a fair description of it we shall not resort even to the lucid and calm statements of Southern Representatives such as Mr. HOOKER of Mississippi and Mr. HEMPHILL of South Carolina. A Northern Democrat, Mr. OUTHWAITE of Ohio, gives a temperate account:

"This bill is intended, not to have fair elections, but to prevent any elections being held by the people in several districts in this country. " " " This bill confers absolute power on the Chief Supervisor of Elections. When Louis Napoleon was President of the French Republic and determined to become its Emperor, he had no more control of the vote of the people, no more absolute hold in his hands of the plebiscite, than this bill places in the hands of the machine-running power of the Republican Party. " " "

"Tell me why this bill gives such absolute power to the Chief Supervisor of Elections. He convenes courts; he makes appointments of a multitude of officers; he appoints the Supervisors and Inspectors; he sends out "discreet" individuals, to go from house to house accompanied by a United States Marshal, to inquire into the condition of the voter, or into his rights. What does this mean? If the bill is not partisan, why do you provide for appointing twice as many Republican Supervisors as Democratic Supervisors? Why do you arrange for an unlimited number of Republican Deputy Marshals? Why do you repeal that feature of the Federal jury law which provides for mixed juries and arrange to have juries packed by Republican officials?

In January, 1891, the late Senator STONE of Missouri, then a Representative, criticised Mr. LODGE, and in a regrettable passage of his speech referred to Mr. LODGE as the "Oscar Wilde of American statesmanship." "I suppose," said Mr. LODGE, "the "allusion was really meant to convey "the idea that the statesmanship of "Massachusetts and of New Eng-"land is 'effeminate.' That is a "very easy accusation to make. It "is a view which naturally is taken "of a high civilization by a lower." (Laughter on the Republican side.) "It is the view which would naturally be taken of the civilization of the "public school by the civilization of "the shotgun." (Applause on the Republican side.)

Now the champion of the civilization of the public school tenderly supplicates the civilization of the shotgun. What Southern heart is not stirred by this entreaty of a beloved old friend? What Southern lachrymal duct doesn't overflow?

THE QUEST FOR OIL.

It may be that what Sir AUCKLAND GEDDES, the British Ambassador, has to say about the allegation that his Government designed to acquire an oil monopoly was prompted by instructions to counteract or tone down the recent perfervid talk of WALTER HUME LONG in London. Great Britain, Mr. LONG said, would be culpable "at this moment of great national importance" if available oil lands were not acquired throughout the world. "We are on "the threshold of tremendous oppor-"tunities," he declared, "and the na-"tion must take care to occupy the "house, or others will take it and with "it the key to all future success. " " " If we secure the supplies of "oil now available in the world, we "can do what we like." Lord FISHER has insisted that "oil is one of the things that won us the war." It was his opinion that "oil is the very soul of future sea fighting." During the war, in January, 1916, WALTER RUNCIMAN, President of the British Board of Trade, proclaimed that the future policy of the nation would be to control oil as well as coal.

Of late British pioneers have obtained concessions of oil-bearing lands in various parts of the world, and they have been conspicuously active in South America. For nearly twenty years W. K. D'ARCY, an Australian, has been working concessions in 500,000 square miles of territory in Persia, and today the capitalization of the Anglo-Persian Oil Company is £20,000,000, the British Government owning, it is said, two-thirds of the voting stock. Palestine and Mesopotamia, from which the Turks were driven during the World War by British and Indian troops, were to be "exploited" for oil by an inestimable Government But it is one thing to plan control of available oil lands throughout the world and another to match the petroleum resources of the United States and Mexico. Great Britain is no doubt trying to do so, but the opportunity is not denied, or should not be withheld from, American promoters and prospectors. It is largely a question of the employment of capital and of enterprise. The Americans are afield, belated perhaps, but not out of the competition. It is right that the Government should see that their interests are protected and that when other countries discriminate against aliens in the matter of concessions there should be counter-legislation, like the "Act to promote "the mining of coal, phosphate, oil, "shale, gas and sodium on the pub-"lic domain" by the present Congress.

In his talk to the Pilgrims the British Ambassador gave some figures of oil production. The United States, he said, produced from its own soil 70 per cent. of the world's yield and it controlled about three-fourths of Mexico's 16 per cent. of world production. The showing of the British Empire was by comparison insignificant—but 2½ per cent. "In time of emergency British interests control," said the Ambassador, "about 5 per cent. of the world output." At the same time, the fact that much British capital is invested in oil fields in the United States must not be overlooked. The American supply at the present rate of consumption may not last more than twenty years. It would be good news to hear that oil lands in new territory, Asiatic or South American, were prolific.

There should be no uneasiness among competitors of the British if wells spouted copiously in Mesopotamia and Palestine under mandatory government, which the covenant of the League of Nations requires to be conducted for the benefit of the native peoples, with regular reports to the Council. It is difficult to see how Great Britain could "exploit" the Near East without being found out. At present, Sir AUCKLAND GEDDES points out, wells are not being drilled in Palestine and Mesopotamia because the new governments have not been organized.

GERMAN DEMOCRACY GETTING ON.

It may be only a coincidence that the German Government is publishing documents highly damaging to the old régime just on the eve of the election of a new Reichstag. In this country we fear that they would be called campaign documents. For there have been reports that the Monarchist Party would make a strong effort in the voting of June 6. Most observers of German politics expect a considerable reaction away from the Social Democrats and toward the Right. But such a movement will certainly be made more difficult by publication at this juncture of added official testimony to the blundering and blindness of the former rulers of Germany. The people may not think that the present Government is a miraculous success, but at best they would not wish to set up again their old idols, in whom, it is now evident, the admixture of clay went a good deal above the feet. If the Ebert Government had in mind such an effect, it would be a fair inference that the Germans are making rapid progress in the use of electoral wiles practiced by other democracies.

Incidentally, the new Bernstorff dispatches relating to Colonel HOUSE may at first excite the thoughtless to laughter. "He has been very useful to me," wrote the German Ambassador complacently. But who knows that Ambassador SPRING-RICE did not write the same thing to the Foreign Office in London, and Mr. JUSSERAND to that in Paris? It was all along the chosen rôle of Colonel HOUSE to be useful to all. He was one of the most unobtrusive and serviceable go-betweens that ever lived; and BURKE said that the world is governed by go-betweens. Temporarily out of a job, Colonel HOUSE, if seeking a new one, would be fully entitled to advertise himself as "a useful man."

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Well-intentioned and Far from Hopeless.

In a single Ohio city, Columbus, 2,000 professional and business men, it is reported, have agreed to give one day's work a week all this Summer to farmers in that part of the State who are now unable to get the labor they must have if they are to raise more than enough food to supply their own needs. The plan is an excellent one, or, at any rate, it is the only method as yet proposed that promises something of practicality in the way of meeting a really serious exigency.

The word "give" is used in the dispatch outlining the Columbus scheme. The implication of it might be that the urban workers do not expect to be paid for their periodical services, but will treat their excursions into the country as weekly picnics. It is to be hoped, however, that this is not the case, for, on the one hand, the farmers can well afford to pay reasonable wages and are quite willing to do so, and, on the other hand, free service is almost always poor service, because done with little sense of responsibility and with next to no power of control by the employer.

What labor of this sort is worth will have to be decided by experience. Farmers are prone to consider city folk of small use on farms, but, as a matter of fact, there are only a few things done by the ordinary agricultural laborer that cannot be done as well or better after a few hours of instruction by anybody with intelligence and the will to work, and a good many farmers have learned in the years of the war that the mysteries of field and stable are not so far beyond amateur solution as had been supposed.

Probably the chief difficulty encountered by the new workers will be due to their bringing unaccustomed muscles into action, with resulting pains and soreness, and whether or not that difficulty would disappear under a one-day-a-week system, as it does when the work is continuous, is a little doubtful.

Worthy of Wide Imitation.

However unenthusiastic on farms or off of them, may be opinions of the Columbus remedy for farm labor scarcity, it at least shows realization that crop prospects in this country are now disquieting, and an honest effort to "do something" for the relief of the situation. Nobody has offered a better proposal, and its superiority to all the scolding of men who go where wages are highest is obvious.

With modification to be made later, after it has been tested in practice, the plan promises to prove workable. Really to affect crop prospects, of course, it would have to be adopted wherever farm labor is lacking, and that is pretty well all over the country. Meanwhile, whoever can make a garden ought to do so. What helped during the war will help as much in peace, and this is a truth that should be deeply pondered by every member of the great commuter tribe. Most of them already are gardeners to some extent, but the hearts of most of them turn rather to flowers than to vegetables. That was a pardonable, and even commendable, inclination in the good old days when we were all so much happier than we then knew, but now conditions have changed and habits should change with them.

Too Anxious About the Money.

It is not pleasant to read that a sometime member of the American Expeditionary Forces—an officer, too—who has, or thinks he has, information as to the present whereabouts of the evasive BRADDOCK, has refrained from telling what he knew until convinced that there is no trick or catch in the offer of a reward as phrased. He balks, it seems, or at any rate it is reported, at the word "delivered," declaring that he cannot deliver the fugitive to the authorities, but can disclose where he is to be found.

Of course, hesitation or refusal, for such a reason as this, to assist in bringing to justice a violator of the law, is an evidence of bad citizenship, and therefore something of which any man ought to be ashamed. But the whole system of offering rewards for the apprehension of criminals or for the production of evidence leading to their conviction tends toward the demoralization of all to whom it appeals. The best that can be said for it is that it often, or sometimes, brings to their deserts guilty persons who, if no reward had been offered, never would have been caught.

He who, when able to assist in the execution of the law, refuses to do so unless paid, certainly is a poor specimen of humanity, and he probably would not be much wronged if suspected of a willingness to accuse the innocent if by so doing he had a chance to acquire what is called "blood money." The professional detective earns his salary, but the amateur—the chance possessor of needed information—is safer from reproach when he does his duty for no other reward than the commendation of his own conscience.

Why Did They Employ a Stenographer?

There is difficulty in taking as authentic some of the documents now in course of publication in Berlin. Suspicion of them does not arise from any inherent unplausibility or incredibility of the statements ascribed to the high and mighty personages who wrecked the German nation and did little less or better for the rest of the world. It starts from the difficulty of seeing why any record should have been made of certain face-to-face conversations between men who had met in the dark days of the war to discuss their own apprehensions and to express opinions with what they knew was dangerous frankness.

For example, it is more than easy to believe that at a conference between General LUDENDORFF, Field Marshal von HINDENBURG and Admiral von HOLTZENDORFF the latter would have said, and the other two have admitted, that "his Majesty is not familiar with the situation or the sentiments of his own people." But why should a statement so terrible, and one that went so far toward convicting themselves either of treachery or cowardice, have been put in writing? In all probability it was true, but it was a thing to be whispered, not set down in black and white, by men as canny as these in protecting their own interests.

A HISTORIAN'S ESTIMATE.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Will you publish in THE NEW YORK TIMES these few lines of a French Republican, who has been always a great friend and admirer of the American democracy? I was Gambetta's first Secretary, after his death the editor of his paper, member for about twenty years of the Chambre des Deputés, one of the authors of the Revision of the Dreyfus Case, military writer under the name of Polybe, &c. But I am, by profession, a historian. As I know something of the past, I read sometimes in the future. And I love justice.

I sincerely believe that President Wilson has made a number of mistakes. He is a man, and men are not gods or demigods, or even infallible popes. But I am quite certain that Wilson's name will be written in history on the same glorious tablet with Washington, Lincoln and Roosevelt. He is a political man, with some of the professional deformations of party politics; but he is a statesman of the largest size, and all of us—I mean the people who know something of our contemporary history, who do not follow the upper mob or the mob from below in its exaggerated enthusiasms and its nonsensical hatreds, who are not accustomed to howl with the wolves and to shriek with the parrots, who are no snobs, who remained afar from the Wilsonian snobism and who keep afar from the anti-Wilsonian snobism—we are waiting for the hour when full justice will be honorably rendered to your President.

Full justice implies some reserves. I could express important reserves. When President Wilson spoke of "peace without victory" he was mistaken. When President Wilson spoke of a French imperialism he was mistaken: Paris is not Berlin. But how could a Frenchman, who knows and remembers; how could a civilized man, who knows and remembers; how could he forget that Wilson succeeded in bringing into the war not some of the American people, but the whole of the American democracy; that Wilson in the Spring and the Summer of 1918 was one of the men who saved humanity from Ludendorff's most violent attack; that Wilson is the man who revived the old Greek, the old Christian, the old philosophical idea of a society of nations?

The fourteen articles were not perfect, but they greatly helped the victory of Liberty and Right. The fourteen reservations implied some truth, as our Voltaire said that there is some truth in every error, but they have eclipsed for an hour the great glory of the United States. Why does Germany not observe the treaty that Germany has signed? The world was happy under the pax Romana. The world would begin to be out of trouble if the Congress had consented to sign the pax Americana.

I, as a Frenchman, as a stanch Republican, as a historian, I refuse to be ungrateful. I remain grateful to Joffre, to Foch, to Clemenceau. I remain grateful to your splendid American boys. I remain grateful to the officer who went to Lafayette's tomb and simply said: "Lafayette, we are here!" I remain grateful to Roosevelt, who was the St. John Baptist of American intervention. I remain grateful to Woodrow Wilson, who did the deed.

JOSEPH REINACH.
Paris, May 5, 1920.

JOHN W. DAVIS FOR PRESIDENT

To the Editor of The New York Times:

To those who intimately know John W. Davis, your editorial article in the latest Sunday TIMES, entitled "A Great Democrat," has given an unbounded pleasure. May I unreservedly subscribe to every statement contained in your tributes to his ability and character?

It is true, as you state, that "the record of the offices Mr. Davis has held, honorable as it is, cannot be considered as the measure of his qualifications." Certain it is that as lawyer, legislator, advocate and Ambassador, his career has been both brilliant and successful, and in every sphere of his work he has made an enviable and unassailable record of honorable and faithful service.

Without the slightest risk of exaggeration, it may be said of him that his natural endowments, his broad and varied experience and his clean and sturdy character fully equip him for the greatest office in the gift of the people; that his immunity from class prejudices and factional feelings, in these times of strain and stress, strongly emphasize his availability as a Presidential candidate; that his unusual intellectual acuteness, his convincing eloquence and his powers of physical endurance especially qualify him for participation in any political contest, however exacting and arduous; that his admirable mental poise, his energy and industry in his work, of whatever sort, his power of decision and firmness of conviction, invest him with the very character of leadership to be so greatly desired in these times of reorganization and reconstruction.

With all these admirable qualities of statesmanship, so rarely combined in one person, his warm and genial personality give absolute promise of his success at the polls, if he should be chosen as the Democratic nominee at the San Francisco Convention.

JAMES W. EWING.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

May I be permitted to say that THE TIMES in its editorial article, "A Great Democrat," referring to the qualifications for the Presidency of John W. Davis, American Ambassador to Great Britain, has rendered a distinguished service to the country?

It is a matter for congratulation that this great metropolitan newspaper is so independent, so broad of vision and so vitally interested in the real welfare of the country, as against the selfish interest of the politicians, to bring such a virile candidate to the fore.

Congratulations to THE TIMES, and may the American people awaken and answer its clarion call!

CECIL B. TRACEWELL.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I am only one of the many who have been much pleased at your editorial article of May 23 recommending John W. Davis for the Democratic nomination for the Presidency.

It may be of interest to recall, as an evidence of the personal and professional esteem in which Mr. Davis is held by his fellow practitioners, that as far back as 1905, when he was only in his thirty-third year, he was elected President of the West Virginia State Bar Association.

THE NEW YORK TIMES was the first paper, outside of West Virginia, in whose columns I saw John W. Davis mentioned as a Presidential possibility. Over a year ago in one of your dispatches from Paris (I think from Mr. James), reference was made to the fact that Mr. Davis had been summoned from London to assist in the drafting of the regulations for the government of some of the German territory to be occupied under the terms of the treaty (the Saarr Basin, as I recollect), and his work in that connection was described as displaying not only the greatest ability but also qualities of the highest statesmanship, and the opinion was expressed, by many Americans then in Paris, that he was regarded as the best selection by the Democratic Party as a Presidential candidate in 1920.

W. G. PETERKIN.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

After having read your editorial article suggesting John W. Davis of this city, and who is now Ambassador at the Court of St. James's, as the logical nominee for President of the United States by the Democratic Party, and realizing the power of your paper, I feel like expressing myself to you in this letter.

I am a Republican, but have a personal acquaintance with Mr. Davis, and whose ability I fully recognize.

I would suggest an absolutely independent ticket for an all-American party with John W. Davis as the candidate for President—a platform made up comprising the best issues for the successful operation of our Government regardless of their being Democratic or Republican policies.

At this particular time in our nation's history I believe that men should be big enough and broad-minded enough to lay aside personal ambition and partisan relationship and legislate for the interests of the country.

I believe the ballot at this particular time with this party as suggested should be so marked as to indicate to the present members in our House and Senate that, regardless of the party they were representing and by whom they had been elected, when the Administration became effective, they, the present members, would be expected by the people and so instructed by the wording on this ballot to lay aside their party feeling, policies and prejudices and vote at all times during this Administration for legislation as outlined in the platform of this all-American party.

HUD S. CAMPBELL,
General Manager, the Campbell Sheet Glass Machine Company.
Clarksburg, W. Va., May 25, 1920.

"Well-Deserved Praise."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your leader on John W. Davis is admirable and just. Your praise is well deserved. When he was in Congress and Solicitor General I was Chairman of the American Bar Association Committee to suggest remedies for delay in litigation. He considered carefully the bills recommended by the association, supported them with vigor, argued ably in their favor and did much to promote their passage.

This diplomatic service shows tact, energy, breadth of vision, appreciation of international relations. He is, as you say, a great Democrat and would make a great President.

BLASCO IBANEZ'S CRITICS.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Permit me to comment on and differ from the criticisms in today's TIMES of the two Latin-American gentlemen in regard to Blasco Ibañez's remarkably timely and interesting series of articles which, fortunately for THE TIMES and for Blasco Ibañez, are creating such a lively curiosity concerning Mexican things, thanks to the genius of this master of fiction, whose powerful pen is unequaled in the vivid portrayal of characters and events.

It seems to me, and I believe it would to the largest number of Ibañez's readers, Spanish or English speaking, that there is no purpose, evident or otherwise, in these articles showing that he is "slandering," as your Latin-American correspondent infers.

In the first place, these articles do not appear to be intended as an analysis of Mexico, because the author so far but graphically describes, as has never been done before, with the utmost sincerity and candor, the conversations he actually had with the principal actors of the Mexican drama—I can see no comedy in it—and what was told to him by them and had been the current gossip.

Surely if there are men and things in Mexico that appear or want to appear in a decidedly unfavorable light just now, it is indeed not the fault of Ibañez, who is simply reporting what he has seen and heard first-hand and under every circumstance afforded him. I fail to see why banquets or festivities in his honor, which he undoubtedly appreciates, should make him report differently.

The critic believes it to be a joke that a visitor of one and one-half months should be able to learn of current Mexican affairs. I do not see why any one should need any more than, or as much as, that time when he goes straight to the heart of the actions and the ones performing and responsible for them, with every facility accorded him, and who has studied Mexican history and culture and the Mexican exponents of it today, especially when that person is Blasco Ibañez.

The critic fears that what Ibañez says of the pro-Germanism of certain Mexican officials that were—which every well-informed person in this country as well as in Mexico (where the writer resided for a number of years, and because of that loves Mexico and the Mexicans, but is not blind to their faults) knows to be a fact—"may have a misleading effect in this country." Unfortunately for both countries, that "effect" has been in existance for a long time, but there are very few persons of any education here who would blame Mexico or the Mexican people in general for the machinations of the German plotters (fortunately with no bad results to the Allies).

Neither do I see why the Spaniards in New York—of whom I am proud to be one—should experience any "humiliation" for the expressions of Blasco Ibañez. Far from it; nearly every Spaniard here and elsewhere is indeed happily proud that Blasco Ibañez, after many years of being recognized as one of the master novelists in Spain, is now being known in his full value in the United States.

We Spaniards also hope that the United States will become more deeply acquainted as well with other great contemporary masters of literature in this golden age of Spanish letters, such as Benevente, Pardo, Bazan, Palacio Valdez, Baroja, Galdós, Asorin, J. Ramón Jiménez, Unamuno, Valle-Inclán, Quintero, Linares Rivas, Rueda, Marquina, Villaespesa, Machado, Canedo, Gabriel y Galán, Rubén Darío, Menendez y Pelayo, Rodriguez Marín and many others who, like Blasco Ibañez, merit their high reputation in the twenty-one Spanish speaking countries of the world.

NATURE IS READY.

Got th' garden planted an' th' sprouts are showin' class.
Goin' t' git th' mower out an' polish off th' grass.
Ter spread a little "shadder" fer a feller in th' sun—
Ready fer th' Summer and the blazin' of th' days—
Ready fer th' singin' of th' orioles an' jays.
Natur', buddin' bravely, holds her promise in her hand—
There with force eternal t' supply th' big demand;
They ain't a bit devoted to a shovel or a hoe—
Rather hang around a shop, a movie or a store,
Soakin' in th' dollars jes' t' git a dollar more.
Diggin' fer' th' pennies in a palace or a pit—
Nothin' seems t' matter if ye git yer little bit.
Beatin' up th' quarters an' th' nickels an' th' dimes—
Got t' git another or you're way behin' th' times.
Competition's mighty fierce—money's mighty sweet.
Ever stop t' think about th' cattle an' th' crops
Pourin' from th' country t' th' feller in th' shops?
Ever stop t' think about th' tenderness an' care
Little seeds require fer t' put them anywhere?
'Taters need attention, an' so does corn an' wheat.
Takes a man an' muscle t' produce th' things t' eat.
How about a-packin' up th' Movin' Pictur' Show—
Get out in th' country where ye've half a chance t' laugh.
Loneliness has vanished from th' countryside at large

'UNFIT' SHIP CHARGE ANGERS DANIELS

RESENTS 'STIGMA ON NAVY'

Senator Pittman, Quitting Committee Hearing, Tells Chairman He Will Protest on Senate Floor.

WASHINGTON, May 26—Cross-examination of Secretary Daniels by the Senate Naval Investigating Committee was concluded today at a session marked by heated clashes between the Naval Secretary, together with Senator Pittman, Democrat, of Nevada, on the one hand, and Chairman Hale on the other. Rear Admiral Sims, whose charges against the Navy Department brought about the investigation, will take the stand in rebuttal tomorrow. Chairman Hale indicated that the Admiral would be the last witness and that his statement would be brief.

In the course of a tilt with Senator Hale today Secretary Daniels threatened to carry to the full Senate Naval Committee a protest against the Chairman's conduct of the inquiry. The Secretary charged that a "steam roller" was being used on him, and characterized as "unfair and unjust," and a "stigma on the navy" a long compilation of statistics that Chairman Hale sought to read into the record.

The tabulation, Senator Hale said, was compiled in his office from figures submitted by Mr. Daniels, and related to the state of preparedness of the major ships of the navy just prior to the declaration of war by the United States.

Mr. Daniels retorted that the Chairman had misinterpreted the department's figures, and that in the Hale compilation the dreadnought Arizona was listed as having been "unfit to fight" on Feb. 2, 1917.

Daniels Resents "Stigma on Navy."

"The Arizona 'unfit to fight'?" Mr. Daniels went on. "It is laughable. I decline to answer any questions based on such a tabulation and denounce it as unfair, unjust and a stigma on the American Navy. I will carry my protest to the full Naval Affairs Committee if necessary."

Chairman Hale said he would in some other manner designate the columns marked "fit to fight" and "unfit to fight," and then put the compilation in the record.

Secretary Daniels demanded that the Senator take the stand as a witness and take the oath before submitting evidence. This the Chairman refused to do, and Mr. Daniels then demanded that the person who made the compilation be sworn as a witness. Again he was overruled by the Chairman.

Senator Pittman at this point protested against the tabulation going into the record, and left the room after the Chairman had announced he would not yield in his stand. Secretary Daniels thereupon made a point of no quorum.

Chairman Hale polled the committee. He and Senator Keyes, Republican, of New Hampshire, voted, and the Chairman announced that he was authorized to cast the vote of Senator Ball, Republican, of Delaware. The tabulation then went into the record without further words.

The remainder of the session was devoted to a discussion of technical details of the navy's co-operation in the War, and a long debate between the Chairman and the Secretary regarding the contribution of the North Sea mine barrage, an American project, toward ending the submarine campaign. Mr. Daniels characterized the barrage as the navy's greatest contribution toward defeating the U-boat campaign, while Senator Hale sought to show that the project actually had little influence on ending the war.

Pittman Also Plans Senate Protest.

In quitting the committee hearing, Senator Pittman had warned Chairman Hale that he would protest on the Senate floor against the character of questions which the Chairman had asked Mr. Daniels.

"That would be interesting, but I doubt if you would get very far," retorted Chairman Hale. "We would get further if the Secretary would answer my questions."

Secretary Daniels said he had answered every question asked him to the best of his ability.

"Yes," replied the Chairman, "but at very great length."

The questioning of the Secretary centred largely around his statement at the conclusion of the war that in April, 1917, the navy was ready "from stem to stern."

"That statement was an epigram," said Mr. Daniels. "It sums up the whole story of the navy's part in the war."

Following the altercation over classifying ships as "unfit to fight," Secretary Daniels declared that he was "impotent" in the face of Chairman Hale's insistence that the table go into the record, but declared that he would insist upon his right to make a full reply before the Senate Naval Affairs Committee "in justice to the navy."

PLAN REFERENDUM ON WOMEN ELDERS

Presbyterian Assembly Sees Time Not Ripe for Admitting Them as Preachers Also.

BRYAN URGES SINGLE CODE

Predicts That as 'Next Constitutional Amendment' After the Nation Gives Suffrage.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, May 26.—William J. Bryan attended the sessions of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church here today, making a short speech this afternoon and a long speech late tonight. Before beginning at 10 o'clock his talk to the evening audience he announced that he would speak "ten minutes on home missions" and would then continue "as long as anybody will stay to listen on anything else."

Vice President Marshall, it was announced, is expected to come from Washington to speak tomorrow evening.

Mr. Bryan, in his remarks said he was ready to shout "Hallelujah" when the Woman Suffrage Amendment should be added to the Constitution of the United States. He also predicted that in the near future another such amendment would be written into Federal law.

"The time is not far distant," he said, "when our own Constitution will have written into it a single standard of morals. Under it there will be no segregation of sin. There will be no licensing of vice. And penalties for immorality will be visited alike on man and woman.

"Immorality," added Mr. Bryan, "has been one of the greatest sources of corruption to American life. The time is ripe to abolish unfair discrimination, and man, if he is to have the commendation of his church, must live up to the standards of morality he has laid down for woman."

Referendum as to Women Elders.

The Assembly voted this afternoon to send down an overture to its Presbyteries throughout the United States, asking whether they wish the constitution of the church to be so amended as to admit "properly qualified and elected women to ordination as ruling elders, with all the rights and duties pertaining to this office."

The Presbyteries will report back to the Assembly a year from now, and if it is in the affirmative, the Assembly two years hence will in all likelihood have women commissioners.

It was decided that there was not sufficient desire to have women ordained as ministers as yet, therefore this matter was dropped.

The Rev. Dr. S. Hall Young, a missionary, forty years in Alaska, submitted the report of the Special Committee on the official relation of women to the church. This committee was appointed last year at St. Louis.

See Women Preachers "Not Forbidden."

"Your committee is of the opinion that the Scriptures do not forbid either women elders or women preachers," said the report. "The call to minister in holy things is of God, and is not limited to one sex; when this call is heard by a woman it is not seemly in man to say her nay."

"The sub-committee," continued the report, "appointed to investigate the usages of other ecclesiastical bodies, corresponded with leading representatives of seven Protestant denominations, receiving courteous and informing replies in any case.

"Three of the denominations, namely, the Methodist Protestant, the Christian and the Congregational, ordain women to the ministry. However, but few women have availed themselves of the privilege.

"The other four denominations interrogated, the Lutheran, Baptist, Episcopal and Methodist Episcopal, do not have women preachers, nor does there seem to be any particular inclination in these churches to accord them this office.

Sexes Equal in Counsel and Oversight.

"Where women preach their labors are generally limited to small fields. In practically all of these seven churches women are admitted to every other official position in the church except the ministry. They serve on official boards, are Trustees and deconesses, and there is a growing tendency to admit them to official equality with men in the matter of counsel and oversight in the government and service of the church.

"If the experience of other denominations is to be considered in helping us to reach a decision, the evidence is favorable to women in the office of eldership, but is, on the whole, unfavorable to women in the ministry."

In the case of the appeal of the Rev. Dr. Robert C. Hallock against the Presbytery of Chemung for licensing Mrs. William A. Chapman to preach, the Assembly sent the case back to the Synod of New York and it came before the Judicial Commission at the Fall meeting of the Synod.

"The applicant had three counts in his plea—first, that licensing of a woman to preach was irregular; second, that it was unconstitutional, and, third, that it was unscriptural.

Deny Synod Here Settled Merits.

"The Judicial Commission refused to pronounce upon any of these counts but the first, that the licensing was irregular. It directed that the license of Mrs. Chapman be rescinded, reminding the Presbytery that the proper way to reach such a license would be by overture to the Assembly.

"The fact that the Presbytery's attorney moved that the Synod overture the General Assembly that women be granted the right of licensure and ordination, and that the motion was voted down, was taken by some of our Presbyterian papers to mean that the Synod of New York had gone on record as opposed to giving to women the right to preach. The officers of the Synod's commission made it plain that this was not the case. The Synod did not act on the merits of the question, but only upon the irregularity of such licensure under the present order of things, and the impropriety of the Synod's sending up such an overture."

So drastic were the changes urged for the Church's own New Era movement in a report presented by the Rev. Dr. John E. Laird, Chairman of the Commission on Bills and Overtures, that there was threatened for a time a session as lively as both of yesterday's sessions, when the Interchurch was discussed. Just as in that debate, too, the complaints of the New Era today were mainly against the high cost of administration.

Amid the shouts of the Assembly it was voted to send the report on the New Era reforms back to Dr. Laird's committee, instructing him to have his recommendations printed and distributed among the Commissioners, so they could study the proposed "clipping of the wings" of the movement, which is the authorized agency of the church to campaign for benevolences and evangelical work.

Southerners for Interchurch.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., May 26.—The General Assembly of the Southern Presbyterian Church, after an all day debate, voted 137 to 103 tonight against withdrawal from the Interchurch World Movement.

An attack on the movement was launched by the Rev. Dr. Joseph I. Vance, of Nashville.

There was a wrangle over whether or not Dr. Vance should be allowed to speak, and it finally was decided to hear him, permitting him to "give information only."

Dr. Vance ascribed the criticism under which he said the Interchurch Movement had fallen to its "prodigality," and expressed the opinion that "When it comes to its senses and begins again to handle its duties with rational judgment, the Interchurch would recover from the disfavor under which he said it had fallen.

BABE'S EIGHTH POKE HELPS TAME TIGERS

Upper Right Field Stand Is Christened Ruthville by Roaring Rooters Who Crowd It.

DETROIT SUBDUED, 4 TO 1

Mogridge Pitches His Best Game of the Season, Allowing Only 4 Hits —Yanks Bunch Their Singles.

Babe Ruth whaled it again yesterday. The Yank blunderbuss ripped the first toss chucked at him wide open in the second inning and slugged his eighth home run of the season into the Ruthville section of the right field stand. This wondrous welt of the thumper gave New York plenty of encouragement to go ahead and beat Detroit by a score of 4 to 1. A chorus of 18,000 throats was in full cry as the ball sailed on its journey, and the cyclone of cocal approval rattled the windows in Harlem.

Ruth has become the most alarming menace big league pitchers have ever bucked against. An extra outfielder stationed in the upper grand stand may be necessary to curb the clouter. But that wouldn't stop Ruth, for they would also have to plant another outfielder out in Manhattan Field, and maybe before the season is over another would have to be scouting flies out in Eighth Avenue.

Not in many, many baseball years has a player become such an idol as Ruth is in the right field grand stand. Every day the same ardent admirers inhabit this section and pay homage to the home run king. Ruthville is Babe's own kingdom, and its population is growing every day.

It was not only Ruth's long-distance batting which won him roars of the admiring thousands yesterday, but he broke out in a display of fielding skill and long-distance throwing which boosts the respect for him as an outfielder. In the fourth inning yesterday Bush shot a fly to the short outfield and three Yanks raced for it. Ruth came all the way from right and grabbed the ball in short center. Again, in the fifth, Hale soaked a long single to right and, being fleet of foot, he tried to scoot to second. With a rifle-ball toss, Ruth cut him down at second base. Even the Georgia Gem, T. R. Cobb, was unnoticed yesterday at the meeting of the Babe Ruth Admiration Society.

Mogridge Southpaws the Victory.

George Mogridge southpawed the Tigers into submission in the best game he has tossed this season. He allowed the hard-hitting Michigan crew only four safeties, and it was only when he got a bit wild and passed two batsmen in the seventh that the Tigers were able to make any of their bangs hatch into a run. The Yanks didn't slam George Dauss very hard, but they were able to group their hits in braces in three different innings, the second, seventh and eighth.

Aaron Ward was out of the New York lineup yesterday, being ill with tonsilitis. Bob Meusel was at third and made a couple of fine stops. Ruth and Pipp did most of the little hitting that was done, but in the seventh Mogridge contributed his bit with the stick by shooting a single to left which scored a run. The Yanks beat Detroit, not because the Tigers were so weak, but because Huggins's men played good baseball and made the most of their opportunities.

Mogridge got a warning from Umpire Rigler in the second inning when, with one out, Harry Heilman poked a double to right. Flagstead soaked a hard liner to Peck, who pulled it down and easily doubled Heilman, who had long since left second and was on his way home.

Ruth was the first Yank up in the home lads' portion of the second. The low mumbling of the crowd, a warning of an impending outbreak of noise, rumbled over the field as the killer came to the plate. Dauss's arm wound up and the ball streaked toward the plate. Despite that long, graceful ease which marks Ruth's flawless form with the flail, Babe swung around and met the ball with an impact packed up by the strength of his Herculean shoulders. Ticketed on its excursion journey to Ruthville, the ball rose gradually and was only stopped in its upward course when it dented the seats in the upper right field tier.

Babe had whaled it again.

Babe Courteous to the Applause.

When Babe crossed the plate and headed for the bench it sounded like old Vulcan's factory working overtime. The applause of the populace has become sweet music to Ruth, and there is a grin of satisfaction on his face as he lifts his cap half a dozen times before he disappears into the Yankee rathskellar.

When the crowd became composed again, Del Pratt cracked Dauss for a single. Bodie sent him along with a sacrifice, much as Ping hates to be a martyr. Lewis's out a first sent Del to third, but he was rooted there, as Hannah fanned.

Dauss threw out Mogridge in the third and Peck was safe when Hale made a low toss after chocking his swift grasser. Hale tossed Meusel out a first and Wallie Pipp bruised a double to right, sending Peck home with the Yanks' second run. It was a close pitching battle then for a few innings, both Mogridge and Dauss refusing to permit any libarties with their service.

The Detroits looked dangerous in the first of the seventh. After Bush had flied to Ruth and the subdued Cobb had hoisted to Peckinpaugh, Mogridge got a bit wabbly and gave Veach a pass. While the untamed spirit had possession of him, Mogridge also passed Heilman. Flagstead, a dangerous lad with the bludgeon, was up next. He was dangerous, too, and spanked a two-bagger to the left field fence, Veach scoring, while Heilman went to third. This slam of Flagstead's whizzed between third base and Meusel, and the substitute third baseman didn't even flirt with it. The crowd breathed more easily when Hale hoisted a rocket to Lewis.

Bodie Doubles to Left.

Those Yanks were not through yet. Ping Bodie jammed a double to left and Lewis's sacrifice planted him at third. Hannah got a pass and Mogridge aided his own cause when he punched a single to left which scored Bodie.

With Ayers pitching in the eighth, Pipp singled to left, and again the crowd in Ruthville extended its arms to welcome another clout from the home-run king's club. Ruth this time pounded a single to right and Pipp went to third. The ball was relayed to third by Young, who made a bad toss to third to head off Pipp. Ruth took second when Young's bad throw got past Hale.

Pratt lofted a sacrifice fly to Flagstead, Pipp scoring. Ruth tried to get to third after the catch, but he was trapped between the bases. The inning ended when Bodie flied to Bush.

Curves and Bingles

Ruth is galloping far ahead of his home-run record of a year ago. He plastered his eighth into the mezzanine on May 26. Last year he hit his eighth in Philadelphia on July 5.

Dauss gave Babe an intentional pass in the third and was hooted by the crowd. Stanage, behind the bat, jumped out of his position before Dauss pitched.

It can safely be said that Ruth has recovered from his illness and is ready to shoot at the fences on the road.

Duff Lewis didn't travel very fast in the seventh when he was thrown out by Stanage after the Tiger catcher had handled the ball long enough to count the stitches.

Mogridge caught Stanage napping off first in the third, and when Nallin called him safe Wallie Pipp was so surprised that he raised his hands toward the azure as much as to say, "Pity the blind."

Ruth has the greatest repeating bat in the game. It was probably made by the Winchester Arms Company.

While Heilman was at the bat a blistering foul tip hit Umpire Dinneen. The foul was a failure; Dinneen wasn't a bit hurt.

The Giants are back today after a successful swing through the West. They won seven and lost five against the strongest on the circuit.

SHOOTS OF GRIMES LAY PIRATES AWAY

Robins Wind Up Series in Pittsburgh with Victory and Go Into Third Place.

PITTSBURGH, May 26.—Bill Grimes is dead, according to well substantiated reports of long standing. This is a different Grimes from the one now pitching for Brooklyn, it should be stated to avoid possible confusion. The latter Grimes is quite alive, sits up when it seems necessary and takes a good deal of solid nutriment.

He took nourishment this afternoon at the expense of the Pittsburgh Pirates. Those hardy buccaneers were just hanging around today not doing anything at all except lead the National League, when along came this man Grimes and his pals and got rough right away. They won a ball game from the gentlemanly home team and made Pittsburgh's perch at the top a very precarious and shaky one. The score was 3 to 2.

To speak accurate1, it was Grimes who turned the trick almost single handed. He was the eagle who led the Robins and the latter were merely supernumeraries. If the Brooklyn gang had been composed of nine Grimeses this afternoon the score would have been about 40 to 0. In the first place Burleigh held the local crowd to five widely scattered hits. In the second and final place he led the Ebbets Field delegation in batting with a triple and a brace of singles and drove in two of his comrades' runs. Grimes was bad medicine for any team to swallow today.

Gives Pirates Their Only Run.

Nevertheless, the Brooklyn twirler, just to show that there was nothing superhuman about him, indulged in some little eccentricities that nearly tossed the game away. For one thing, with the bases loaded in the second and Schmidt at bat, he allowed a grudge against Teutonic cognomens which should have vanished months ago to guide his arm and whanged Mr. Schmidt in the ribs, forcing a perfectly valid run over. For another thing, in the fifth, with two out and Caton on second, he uncoiled one of his saliva flourishes for one of the wildest wild pitches on record. Caton had time to score, get back to the bench and forget all about the affair before the ball was retrieved. Thus it was that, despite the fact that the Dodgers outbatted the Pirates about three to one, getting fourteen safe drives off Wisner, they outscored them by only the narrowest of margins. Grimes was bound to be the villain as well as the hero in this game.

The Robins did quite well during their stay in this bustling town. They played before great crowds, and they won three out of five from the league leaders. They gained a notch in the standing by today's victory, and departed for home this evening nestling in third place.

As may readily be surmised, the Brooklyn batsmen wasted a good many hits in the course of the matinée this afternoon. They frivoled away a couple in the opening inning. Ivy Olson greeted Wisner with a single to centre in this period, and was forced a minute later by Baird. Johnston filed to Southworth. Wheat singled to left, Baird stopping at second. Wisner put on steam and fanned Myers. The Pirates went out as fast as they would be marshaled to the plate in their half.

Two more Brooklyn wallops went into the debris in the second. Konetchy singled to begin operations and had a front seat at first base to watch Kilduff fly out and Miller fan. Grimes produced a single to left and Koney got to the half-way station. Cutshaw took care of Olson's grounder.

Pirates Get One-Run Lead.

The Pirates took the lead in that inning. After Whitted had popped a little fly to Koney, Nicholson got a life on Olson's wide throw to first. Cutshaw doubled over Johnston's head into deep right, and Nicholson stopped on third. Grimes walked Grimm and the bases were full. Then came Schmidt, little dreaming that he was destined to play honeysuckle with what has a bee. He was stung amidship on his sturdy frame with one that got away from Grimes, and groaned his way down to first while Nicholson capered across the plate. Wisner hit into a double play.

Each team got a futile single in the third. In the fourth the Robins went into the lead, getting a quartet of hits and a span of runs. After Koney had flied to Southworth Kilduff doubled to centre. Miller bounced a single off Wisner's shins and Kilduff got to third. He scored after Grimes's long sacrifice fly to right, and Miller got to second on the same blow. Olson singled through short and Miller crossed the plate. Baird singled to right, Olson stopping at second. Johnston grounded to Grimm.

In the next inning the Pirates drew up level with the visitors. After Wisner had fanned Caton doubled to left. Grimes struck out Carey, and then unleased a wild pitch on which Caton tallied from second. Grimes fielded Southworth's tap.

Neither side threatened in the sixth and seventh. In the eighth the Superbas put over what proved to be the winning tally. After Konetchy had flied to Carey Kilduff singled to right. Miller popped up a little fly which Wisner absorbed. Burleigh Grimes, conceiving that to be the proper occasion for the coup de grâce, flogged a triple to right, scoring Kilduff. Olson flied to Nicholson. The home plate was as impregnable as Gibraltar from then on for both teams.

JERSEY CITY TEAM EASY FOR SYRACUSE

Special to The New York Times.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., May 26.—With Carlson pitching poorly and receiving miserable support from his teammates the Skeeters went down to defeat at the hands of the Stars, 10 to 3, in the third game of the series today.

Syracuse took a long lead in the second inning. Three runs filtered across the plate when Carlstrom singled, McAlpine was hit by a pitched ball, Carlson misplayed on Bemes's sacrifice, Neibergall singled, Harscher sacrificed and Hyde made a poor throw.

Doubles from the war clubs of McCann and Zitmann gave the Skeeters a run in the third, but in the sixth the stars broke loose and tallied five times.

CARDINALS DEFEAT REDS.

Hits by Stock and Hornsby Break Tie in Eighth—Score Is 10 to 8.

ST. LOUIS, May 26.—St. Louis defeated Cincinnati in a wild game today, 10 to 8. The visitors tied the score in the eighth, mixing four hits with two bases on balls off Jacobs for three runs. St. Louis won in the eighth when Stock tripled and scored on Hornsby's single. The latter also scored when Duncan, after letting Hornsby's drive get away from him, started for the club house, apparently thinking the game ended.

SHAMROCK LEAVES CRADLE FOR WATER

10-MINUTE TRIP DOWN WAYS

Speedy Looking Green Sloop Guarded with Extreme Care—Will Be Rigged Without Mere Delay.

Shamrock IV., challenger for the American's Cup, was successfully launched yesterday, that important event being witnessed by a fairly large and decidedly enthusiastic crowd. From the time when the challenger started to slide down the ways in her secure cradle, at Robert Jacob's yacht yard at City Island, at 9:35 o'clock last evening, ten minutes elapsed before the strange but speedy looking craft was afloat.

No chances were taken in the launching, and once she was afloat the crew warped her alongside of the end of the pier where the big derrick is located. Her mast is to be stepped the first thing this morning. The big sloop was gaily dressed for the occasion, international code signals being spread to the gentle breeze, from stem to stern, with the Royal Ulster Yacht Club's insignia at the stern and the house flag of the Rear Commodore of the Royal Ulster Yacht Club atop the jury mast.

It was a busy day for Charles E. Nicholson, designer and builder of the challenger. Bright and early yesterday mornin: he started his final inspection of the green racing craft, in search for some defect which might require special attention before she took to the water, but after the most careful inspection he could find nothing wrong. It was one day in which the designer was unable to get his customary early morning round of golf, which is largely the reason for his excellent physical condition.

Lipton's Representative on Hand.

It was Shamrock day for him from morning until she was afloat, and when she made such slow progress down the marine railway the affable naval architect who, disregarding all precedents, has turned out a most unusual craft to contend for the Cup, was the most uncomfortable person within the confines of Jacob's yard. Now that she is afloat, he was happy and confident that his creation would make a creditable showing.

Among those present at the launching were Thomas H. Graham, Commodore Lipton's business representative in this country; Willard U. Taylor, his legal representative; Colonel Duncan F. D. Neill, his yachting representative; Charles E. Nicholson, designer and builder of the old craft; George Ratsey, who built her sails; Mrs. William P. Burton, wife of the amateur skipper of the yacht; Claude Hickman, her navigator; Aemilius Jarvis, Canada's premier Corinthian; Miss Jarvis, Lloyd Phoenix, one of this country's foremost offshore Corinthians, whose yacht Intrepid has carried the Stars and Stripes over the seven seas; Robert and Bartholomew Jacob, who have altered the yacht; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur E. Aldridge, Mr. and Mrs. James Robbins, Mrs. Charles Sarves and Mr. Shieren.

New Speedometer Attached.

When the Shamrock IV. was safely afloat, Mr. Nicholson told of a Swedish marine speedometer which had been installed. This device records on deck the speed at which the yacht is traveling. One end of the device extends through the bottom of the hull and the pressure of the water against this extended part records the speed. Mr. Nicholson said the device was needed because the 23-meter Shamrock was not here to race with, and some idea of how fast the challenger was traveling was necessary.

Nothing is expected to delay the rigging of the Shamrock IV., and it is expected that she will be ready for her first trial by next Monday morning. More than one of those who saw the yacht yesterday before she was launched, and afterward, were of the opinion that her designer had a surprise in store for the New York Yacht Club as regards both her rating and her speed.

The Shamrock IV. was designed and built by Charles Nicholson at his yards in Gosport, England, and after being completed took part in an extensive series of races against the 23-meter Shamrock and showed her heels to that speedy international rule racer throughout the series. Under jury rig the challenger started for this country late in June, 1914, and was off the Lily Isle of Bermuda when the great World War broke out. She put in at Bermuda and arrived here soon after, having been towed and convoyed from Hamilton.

All idea of an international race was given up soon after, if not before, she arrived here, and she was hauled out at James Shewan's yard, South Brooklyn, where she remained until last Autumn, when she was towed to Robert Jacob's yard at City Island and hauled out. A special house was built around her, and at the time of the fire in the yacht yard last Winter she narrowly escaped being destroyed, as did the Vanitie, one of the America's Cup defense candidates, which was hauled out near by.

A Much Improved Craft.

Last October, Mr. Nicholson paid a hurry up visit to this country and saw the Vanitie, which afforded him some further ideas regarding the type of craft possible under the American rule. Upon his return to England he planned certain changes in the challenger, including the cutting off of considerable lead from her keel and the alteration of her entrance. A new stempiece was shaped ahead, shipped to this country and attached at the City Island yard, the work being one of the most interesting bits of marine surgery ever undertaken, and as a result of it the challenger is a much improved craft.

The present challenger represents the fourth attempt of Sir Thomas Baronet to "lift" the Cup, and, while the Shamrock may have to allow either the Resolute or the Vanitie, whichever is chosen as defender, considerable time, still it is not liable to be as much as is generally expected, and, in windward work she is expected to be a wonder.

William P. Burton, who will sail her, is considered to be the best amateur skipper in all Britain, and no professional has a record equal to his. Captain Turnbull, the professional aboard the challenger, also is the best in his line in England, and the crew is made up of the best sailormen in British waters.

When rigged, the challenger is to have a few trial spins on the Sound, after which she will be towed to Sandy Hook for her real trials against the 23-meter Shamrock, which is expected to arrive here early in June.

RESOLUTE'S MAST STEPPED.

Latest Steel Spar, Used in 1916, Is Built of Longitudinal Slabs.

Special to The New York Times.

BRISTOL, R. I., May 26.—Having had two days for preparing another rig for the cup defender Resolute, a steel mainmast was stepped in the racer this afternoon at Herreshoff's, and the craft was taken from the Herreshoff boat shops to an anchorage in Bristol Harbor for greater safety and convenience.

The spar that was used is not the one that was held in reserve when the Resolute started for New Haven a week ago, but another steel mast that was used on the Resolute in 1915, and which has been in storage since 1916.

It is constructed with longitudinal slabs of metal and is heavier than the wooden pole mast that collapsed off New Haven last Saturday, as denoted by the flotation line.

Babylon Meet Is Sanctioned.

The Babylon Post, 94, American Legion, yesterday received sanction to conduct a track and field meet at Babylon, L. I., Sunday.

Harvard 'Varsity Crew Not to Compete in American Henley

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., May 26.—At a meeting of the 'Varsity crew squad tonight it was decided that Harvard would be represented at the American Henley regatta only by a second crew. The 'Varsity oarsmen decided not to make the trip, as they are to break in a new shell for the race with Yale and did not care to take the boat with them to Philadelphia on account of its newness. Dr. Paul Withington was today appointed head coach of the Harvard freshman crew, and will prepare the Crimson youngsters for the coming Yale regatta.

PURSES INCREASED AT BELMONT PARK

Westchester Racing Association Aims to Enlarge Fields and Improve Sport.

In an effort to attract larger fields and bring about racing for the balance of the present meeting Major August Belmont called a special meeting of owners and trainers at the clubhouse at Belmont Park after the close of the racing yesterday and announced an increase in purses in all events, beginning with those to be run today. Hereafter no purse will be less than $1,000, and there is to be an increase of $200 in all the cheaper races. Major Belmont also announced that the Westchester Racing Association was making plans for stimulating interest in the sport and had in mind a plan to introduce a cup race over a considerable distance and also another event for three-year-olds.

Since the opening of the meeting at Belmont Park on Monday the fields have been noticeably small, and this has been particularly true of the feature events. It was quite evident that horsemen were not satisfied with the conditions prevailing in the races and would not enter their horses. At the same time there are more than one thousand horses stabled at tracks on Long Island, a majority of which cannot be suitably placed, according to the horsemen. It was to induce the horsemen to enter their horses that the meeting was called yesterday.

SHIFT IN COLUMBIA CREW.

The Columbia 'Varsity crew yesterday completed its preparations for the Childs Cup race at Philadelphia tomorrow afternoon. The final practice spin, which was scheduled for yesterday morning, was called off in favor of the task of loading the 'Varsity shell on a box car and starting it on the trip to Philadelphia. At noon today the oarsmen will entrain for the Quaker City, accompanied by the track and field squad, which will compete in the intercollegiates at Franklin Field tomorrow and Saturday. The final workout on the Schuylkill has been ordered for this afternoon, although Coach Rice may send his men out for another practice tomorrow morning.

Rice continued his experiments with the Blue and White 'Varsity, the main result of his tinkering being the demotion of another oarsman to the junior boat. Herman, who rowed at No. 5 against both Yale and the Navy, was the oarsman to be shifted. He vacated No. 3 seat, to which he had acceded on Tuesday, in favor of Saacke, who came from No. 7 in the junior 'Varsity. The latest change makes the 'Varsity still lighter, Saacke weighing twenty-one pounds less than his predecessor. The average weight of the shell is now 166, seven pounds lighter than the crew that rowed in the last two races.

The boating and individual weights of the 'Varsity follow:

Bow, Frost, 164½; No. 2, Park, 160; No. 3, Saacke, 179. No. 4, Curry, 170; No. 5, Swinburne, 165; No. 6, Waldecker, 166; No. 7, Van Houten, 180; stroke, Leys, 170; coxswain, Brush, 105. Average weight—166½.

LETTERS IN MORE SPORTS.

Columbia Athletes and Fencers Added to Honor List.

The University Committee on Athletics, which met yesterday at Columbia, awarded athletic insignia for the present year in two sports, fencing and track, that had not been covered in the committee's previous awards. The track "C" was voted to seven field and track athletes, and the track insignia, "tCt," to nine other athletes. The former group included the first-place winners of the Brown and Dartmouth meets. The only winner to receive the minor insignia was U. Schrecker, who captured the half mile in the Dartmouth meet by a sensational dash past H. G. Hudson and Captain Charlie Shaw in the last few hundred yards.

Seven members of the fencing team received a "tCt," these including Captain Millard J. Bloomer, Jr., H. W. Forster and E. T. Stelle. The latter was a runnerup in the intercollegiate sabre competition at the Hotel Astor. Four freshmen foilsmen also received class numerals.

The Athletic Committee announced that it had received a recommendation from the Insignia Committee advising that insignia for the handball team be awarded in the future. No insignia for this sport is provided for at present, but it is probable that next year's team will receive a "bCb" for their intercollegiate contests.

The awards were as follows:

Track "C"—Captain Charles Shaw, Manager L. C. Owens, Victor Graeb, K. C. King, R. G. Hudson, Walter Higgins, E. Taylor and A. Stewart. Track "tCt"—J. Lowenkopf, U. Schreckter, D. Caldwell, C. Applebaum, F. F. Fargo, E. Lockett, H. Morvin, R. Burit, H. Staub.

THUNDERSTORM IS VICTOR AT BELMONT

Carries Heavy Load in Hollis Selling Stakes, but Captures Race Handily.

Proving that he had sufficient class to offstand the heavy burden he was obliged to carry, Richard T. Wilson, Jr.'s Thunderstorm scored an easy victory in the Hollis Selling Stakes at six furlongs, which was the feature at Belmont Park yesterday. In doing so he provided one bright spot in an otherwise gloomy day for favorites, as five of the public choices met with defeat. Thunderstorm carried an impost of 130 pounds and had little trouble in disposing of his two rivals, He beat Flying Orb by three lengths, and Service Star finished last three lengths further back.

It was another day of small fields, particularly for the feature event, but this condition may not prevail again following the action taken by Major August Belmont at the close of the day's racing. The feature event was a very disappointing race from the standpoint of the public, as among the three starters but one stood out as a horse of any quality and the official handicapper had endeavored to make a race of it by a great disparity in the weights. It was a race such as but little deserved to be made a feature, and it is to be hoped that the management will be able to get larger fields for the chief events in the future.

A far more interesting contest was the Mineola Handicap. The field in this race was larger and contained better horses, but the race was marred by the fact that S. C. Hildreth's Alibi, the favorite, was left at the post and the real contender thus taken out of the contest. The race was won by Milkmaid, the very dependable filly owned by Commander J. K. L. Ross, which took the measure of Lion d'Or and Tailor Maid among others. No credit should be taken from Milkmaid, as she ran a game race, as she always does, but the race was unsatisfactory because of the failure of Alibi to show what he could do against the filly at the difference in the weights.

This was the second victory for Thunderstorm this season and he has proved to be a very good colt. It was a case of class against weight, and Thunderstorm gave thirty-two pounds to Flying Orb and twenty-nine pounds to Service Star. This seemed to be such a great handicap that Flying Orb, which scored recently, found many backers. In fact placed, according to the horsemen. It was to induce the horsemen to enter their horses that the meeting was called yesterday.

GARLAND SELECTED AS THE FOURTH MAN

Yale Tennis Captain Is Choice of Committee for Davis Cup Team.

Charles S. Garland of Pittsburgh, Pa., captain of the Yale team and former national junior champion, has been chosen as the fourth man to represent the United States on the Davis Cup team which will sail for England next week. This decision was unanimous and was reached yesterday at a meeting of the committee, which includes Julian S. Myrick, George T. Adee, Robert D. Wrenn, Harold H. Hackett, George W. Wightman, Beals C. Wright and Samuel Hardy.

When William M. Johnston, William T. Tilden, 2d, and Richard N. Williams, 2d, were announced as members of the team some time ago, the fourth place was left vacant, the committee stating that of the available men who could make the trip abroad, Wallace F. Johnson of Philadelphia, Richard Harte of Boston and Garland were being considered. Subsequently, Harte defeated Johnson in a Church Cup match and Garland defeated both Johnson and Harte in special matches.

The fact that Harte was in poor physical condition led to the belief that the matches had hardly given him a chance to show his best tennis, but in view of the fact that another series was impossible, because of the short time before sailing, the committee decided to choose Garland.

"There is no doubt that the committee has chosen a thoroughly capable player in selecting Garland as the fourth man on the team," said Mr. Myrick, its Chairman, in announcing the decision. "Not only has he established a fine record in the United States, but he has also had experience abroad, which, under existing circumstances, makes him the logical choice. His record at Wimbledon last year when he carried Kingscote to five sets in a semi-final match, shows that he compared favorably then with the best players in England.

"In reaching its decision the committee has been guided by the form shown in matches this Spring, and, furthermore, has made its choice with the idea of giving young players in this country experience in international matches so that future teams may be able to maintain the prestige of American tennis. Other things being equal, therefore, the committee was inclined to favor young players in selecting the fourth member of the team.

"The committee wishes to record its sincere appreciation of the sportsmanship and interest shown by Mr. Harte and Mr. Johnson, both of whom did everything they could to meet the committee's wishes. By playing their preliminary matches they enabled us to get a line on the best men available, sharing the general desire to name the strongest possible team to represent the United States in the effort to bring the Davis Cup back to this country."

ATTABOY II. FIRST HOME.

Defeats Older Horses in Handicap at Louisville.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 26.—Atta Boy II., a son of Rabelais, which has been making a good showing against three-year-olds, proved this afternoon at Churchill Downs that he could also take the measure of more mature horses by capturing the Pendennis Club Handicap, a test at a mile and a sixteenth. Japanese Tennis Champion Sensation in Paris Tourney

PARIS, May 26.—Zeno Schmitzu, the Japanese tennis player, who holds the championship of Japan and India, is proving the sensation of the world hard court titular tournament being played here. The Oriental racquet wielder reached the semi-final round yesterday by eliminating Nicholas Mishu, the Rumanian star, in a five-set match which the latter defaulted, due to exhaustion. Mishu won the first and third sets, while Schmitzu took the second and fourth. The fifth and deciding set was long drawn out, and the Rumanian finally was forced to default owing to his inability to continue the gruelling game. All the English players had been previously eliminated, and there were no American entrants.

MISS GROVE WINS FROM TENNIS STAR

The first real upset of the women's invitation tournament at the Pelham Country Club occurred yesterday afternoon, when Miss Margaret Grove, who has been playing unusually good tennis all through the event, defeated Miss Florence Ballin in straight sets, 7—5, 6—2, thereby entering the semi-final round. The remaining brackets were occupied by Miss Eleanor Goss, last year's winner, and Miss Helene Pollak, Mrs. Edward Raymond having advanced to the semi-finals on the previous day.

The semi-final round was also reached in the women's doubles, while a good start was made in the mixed doubles, with a remarkably large and well-balanced entry list.

Miss Grove won her victory over Miss Ballin chiefly through the persistent steadiness of her game. The West Side girl hit harder and made many a brilliant shot, particularly in her drives and deep court play, but Miss Grove kept the ball coming back with such regularity, and mixed her pace so cleverly, that she eventually forced her high ranking opponent into costly errors. The first set was a close struggle, but after Miss Grove had settled down to a narrow margin, she played more and more confidently, whereas Miss Ballin's generally dependable game went gradually to pieces, the second and deciding set being scored against her 6—2.

Miss Pollak again demonstrated her superiority over Miss Edith Sigourney, who finished second to her in the national indoor tournament, defeating the Bostonian decisively at 6—1, 6—2, and Miss Goss clearly earned the decision over Mrs. Rawson Wood, although carried to 8—6 in the second set.

Miss Ballin and Mrs. Theodore Cassebeer scored a notable victory in the doubles over Miss Sigourney and Mrs. Briggs, after losing the opening set at love, and Mrs. and Miss McLean pulled out an even harder match against the Philadelphia team, Miss Walsh and Miss Thayer.

In the mixed event Miss Walsh and Fred C. Baggs made the greatest advance, the Florida champion and her chopping partner scoring over Miss Leslie Bancroft and Sigmund Spaeth after a narrow escape in the second set. Among the other significant winners were Miss Holden and Vincent Richards, Mrs. Hartmann and Alfred Hammett, Miss Grove and J. H. Steinkampf, Mrs. Briggs and S. Howard Voshell, and Mrs. Morris and Alex. Iler.

A tennis dinner and dance were held at the clubhouse last evening. Yesterday's summaries follow:

Singles—Third Round—Miss Eleanor Goss defeated Mrs. Rawson Wood, 6—3, 6—3; Miss Helene Pollak defeated Miss Edith Sigourney, 6—1, 6—2; Miss Margaret Grove defeated Miss Florence Ballin, 7—5, 6—2.

Doubles—Third Round—Mrs. Theodore Cassebeer and Miss Florence Ballin defeated Mrs. B. F. Briggs and Miss Edith Sigourney, 0—6, 6—1, 8—6; Miss Goss and Miss Helen Gilleaudeau defeated Miss Caroma Winn and Miss Gertrude Della Torre, 6—0, 6—3; Mrs. Rawson Wood and Mrs. Marshall McLean defeated Miss Phyllis Walsh and Miss Mollie Thayer, 4—6, 6—4, 7—5.

Mixed Doubles—First Round—Miss Goss and D. M. Blodgett defeated Mrs. B. F. Stens and Ingo Hartmann, 6—4, 6—2; Miss Jacqueline Green and H. L. Bowman defeated Miss Davies and H. J. Fitzgerald, 6—3, 6—0; Miss Holden and Vincent Richards defeated Miss Mulqueen and Murray Vernon, 6—2, 6—3; Miss Gould and Willard Botsford defeated Mrs. S. H. Waring and Fred Letson, 6—1, 6—4; Miss Grove and J. H. Steinkampf defeated Mrs. Sohst and Norman Johnson, 7—3, 6—2; Mrs. Briggs and S. Howard Voshell defeated Mrs. Welte and R. J. Leonard, 6—3, 6—4; Miss Gilleaudeau and Mr. Lockhart defeated Miss Sigourney and R. L. Baggs, 6—2, 6—4; Mrs. Victor and Carl Jolliffe defeated Mrs. Pritchard and L. H. Second Round—Miss Walsh and F. C. Baggs defeated Miss Bancroft and Sigmund Spaeth, 6—2, 8—6.

DWIGHT TENNIS TEAM WINS.

Defeats Fordham Prep on Courts, Three Matches to Two.

The Dwight School tennis team won its eleventh consecutive victory yesterday afternoon when it defeated the Fordham Prep. team on the Fordham court three matches to two. In the singles, Walsh, Fordham, defeated Robb, 7—5, 6—0. Glore, Dwight, defeated McLean, 6—2, 4—6, 8—2, and Joel, Dwight, defeated McCann, 6—2, 6—1. The doubles were divided, Walsh and McCann of Fordham, defeating Robb and Robinson, Dwight, 5—7, 6—4, 6—4, and Glore and Joel, Dwight, beating McLean and Kramer, 6—4, 4—6, 6—4.

HAMMER WINS ANOTHER.

Boy Billiardist Scores Fifth Victory in Six Games.

Herbert Hammer, the 12-year-old billiard sensation, increased his lead in the Spanish-American straight rail tournament at the Broadway Billiard Academy last night when he registered his fifth victory out of six games by defeating Edward Pita, 75 to 65, in fifty-one innings. Hammer had a high run of seven, while Pita's best effort was five. Considering the fact that Pita used "oil" liberally throughout the match, playing Hammer safe at almost every opportunity, the youngster made an excellent showing, from time to time executing difficult shots.

Had Hammer retaliated by playing Pita safe occasionally he undoubtedly would have won by a much greater margin. He was continually playing for position, however, with the result that when he missed he invariably left his opponent a set-up. These helped Pita to keep in the running as long as he did. The standing follows:

Player.	Won.	Lost.	P.C.
H. Hammer	5	1	.833
R. H. Jenkins	3	1	.750
A. Wickers	3	1	.750
A. V. Ryan	2	4	.667
E. Pita	2	4	.333
R. Millan	0	3	.000
J. B. Sunye	0	4	.000

GYMNASTIC EVENTS TO BE HELD HERE

National Championships and Olympic Tryouts Are Awarded by A. A. U. Officials.

Two important gymnastic events were awarded to clubs in the metropolitan district yesterday as a result of a mutual agreement by officials of the American Olympic Committee and the Amateur Athletic Union. The national A. A. U. gymnastic championship tournament was awarded to the West Side Y. M. C. A. and will be held Thursday evening, July 8, and the final Olympic Games gymnastic tryouts were awarded to the Twenty-third Street Y. M. C. A., to be held Wednesday evening, July 14.

The award of the national title tournament to this city was made as a result of the inability of the newly formed Indiana Association to conduct the fixtures. This tournament had originally been allotted to Indiana, and was scheduled to be held at Indianapolis, but at the eleventh hour the new association found it impossible to promote the competition. Frederick W. Rubien, Chairman of the National Championship Committee, called a meeting of the committee and it was then decided to hold the event here, a week before the Olympic tryouts.

It was also decided to hold the national A. A. U. 100-yard straightaway and 440-yard championship swims for men in connection with the final Olympic swimming tryouts for men at Chicago on July 10 and 11. These events will replace the 100-meter and 400-meter swims originally planned, and they will serve as final Olympic tryouts at these distances.

WOMEN GOLFERS IN SCARSDALE TOURNEY

New Jersey Team Scores Victory Over Westchester—Mrs. Jackson a Competitor.

Metropolitan women golfers who flocked to the Scarsdale Golf and Country Club yesterday for the last of the intra-district team matches had numerous surprises, not the least of which was the appearance for the first time as a New Yorker of Mrs. H. Arnold Jackson, who has twice held the national championship. Mrs. Jackson, who last won the title in 1914 at Nassau, and who as Miss Kate C. Harley won it in 1908 at Chevy Chase, was formerly of Boston, more recently of Chicago, but now plans to make her home in New York permanently. She has joined the Greenwich Country Club.

The addition of Mrs. Jackson promises considerable more strength for the New York team in the Grierson Cup matches at Philadelphia early next month, for it is a foregone conclusion that she will be selected a player on this group for the important tri-city tournament which corresponds for women to the Lesley Cup event. Assistant District Attorney Denies Alleged Intimidation in $10,000,000 Suit.

Charles F. Murphy, leader of Tammany Hall, was a witness yesterday before the Extraordinary Grand Jury, which has now been in existence for nearly ten months seeking to indict the perpetrators of what Foreman R. F. Almirall described as "an overshadowing crime" and investigating different members of the District Attorney's office.

The interview with the Tammany leader yesterday after he had left the Grand Jury room was briefer by about three words than his usual interview. When he was asked what he had testified to, he made a sweeping gesture in the direction of the Grand Jury room and a single inarticulate sound.

Mr. Murphy was called in the investigation of Assistant District Attorney James E. Smith. Louis N. Hartog, who has brought suit for $10,000,000 against Charles F. Murphy and the Corn Products Refining Co., charging that they ruined his business by unfair methods, had charged that Mr. Smith sought to influence him to drop the suit. Mr. Hartog was questioned by the Grand Jury several days ago. He is reported to have said that threats were conveyed to him for the purpose of intimidating him in case of his persistence in the $10,000,000 suit. The suit has not yet come to trial. Assistant District Attorney Smith, who was also before the Grand Jury yesterday, said that there was not the slightest foundation for the charges against him.

The Extraordinary Grand Jury will take up today the testimony made public by Commissioner of Accounts David H. Hirshfield alleging attempted subornation of perjury by Assistant District Attorney James E. Smith in the Porter and Henry cases and describing the alleged "frame-up" of Police Lieutenant Charles Becker, who died in the electric chair for the murder of Herman Rosenthal. Subpoenas have been issued for Commissioner of Accounts Hirshfield, Assistant Corporation Counsel George P. Nicholson, Inspector Joseph Faurot and others, who will be asked to tell what they know of the manner in which Bernard Freedman and Jacob Goldman came to bring forward their charges that Mr. Smith had tried to induce them to perjure themselves against Porter and Henry. The men came forward voluntarily, according to Commissioner Hirshfield.

POPE RECEIVES O'CONNELL.

Gives Archbishop of Boston a Paternal Message for America.

ROME, May 26.—Cardinal O'Connell, Archbishop of Boston, was received by Pope Benedict today at a private farewell audience. The Pontiff again expressed the satisfaction he had felt in seeing the Cardinal in Rome, especially during such a historic period as that of the sanctification of Joan of Arc and the beatification of Oliver Plunket. He gave the Cardinal a paternal message of benevolent love for America.

Cardinal O'Connell expects to leave Rome Thursday morning, stopping at the Fiuggi mineral springs, where he intends to rest about a week before proceeding to Naples. He will sail from Naples on board the Canopic early in June.

Lackaye and Emerson to Debate.

John Emerson and Wilton Lackaye, rival candidates for the presidency of the Actors' Equity Association, will debate the issues of the campaign at a meeting to be held at the Hotel Astor next Sunday afternoon. Interest in the fight for the Equity leadership has been particularly keen among the players. The election will take place on June 4.

Rothapfel to Direct the Capitol.

S. L. Rothapfel, formerly director of the Rivoli and Rialto theatres, will become director of the Capitol, at Broadway and Fifty-first Street, on Friday of next week. Control of this house was recently acquired by the Goldwyn Film Company. The Capitol will close on Tuesday and will reopen on Friday with a slightly altered policy and reduced prices.

MORGAN OFFER PLEASES AMERICANS IN LONDON

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 26.—American diplomatic circles here heard with a good deal of gratification today of J. P. Morgan's offer of his London mansion as the American Embassy.

Secretary Colby's comment that the house is not large enough for both residence and office is held to be beside the point, as there is already an American chancery in Grosvenor Gardens, held by a United States Government lease for a term of years.

The need of an official home for the American Ambassador has been felt by American residents in London for a long period. Diplomatic representatives of other nations have possessed stately embassies which, like the French, German and Russian, have become landmarks of London, as the British Embassy is of Washington. There is no doubt here that the prestige of the United States would be greatly increased if her Ambassador could have a similar official home.

Mr. Morgan's offer, moreover, it was pointed out today by an American particularly qualified to discuss it, was of especial value because it would bring up for settlement the principle that Congress should undertake the responsibility of keeping up the embassy. That would relieve the American Ambassador of a heavy burden and make the choice of a fitting representation of the United States very much easier.

The Morgan mansion is considered to be quite suitable for the American Embassy, but THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent understands that, even if it is decided not to accept it, it would be very easy at the present time for America to acquire a fitting home for her Ambassador. A great many of the first London houses are now in the market and their owners would be glad to sell to the American Government.

REGRETS APATHY TO LEAGUE

C. F. Higham, M. P., Says America Cannot Afford to Stand Alone.

The United States cannot afford not to take her place in the League of Nations and co-operate with the other nations in the effort to prevent future wars was the opinion expressed yesterday by Charles F. Higham of London, a member of Parliament, who arrived here to attend the convention in Indianapolis of the Association of Advertising Clubs of the World, of which he is European Vice President. He said he did not speak in a spirit of criticism, but as one who had gained much from sixteen years here before he went to England to live.

"I am sorry that the United States hesitates on the question," he said. "The belief prevailed in England that she would be the first to enter any plan that had as its goal the elimination of war. While the League of Nations may not be the best means of accomplishing this desideratum, it is one method that leads in that direction. America cannot afford to stand alone."

Mr. Higham directed the advertising campaign of the British government in the war. He was elected to Parliament as a Conservative from South Islington, London. He said he came here with his parents when he was fourteen years old and lived in Brooklyn until three years ago, when he went to London to enter business.

He said that the United States and Great Britain should unite to dominate world trade. Germany was working quietly and steadily to recoup her lost world commerce and unless the English speaking countries took advantage of the opportunity they would find themselves in a commercial battle with their old enemy.

"There is no doubt that between us we can enjoy unparalleled prosperity for the next twenty-five years," Mr. Higham declared. "There should be friendly competition between the two countries, but don't let us fight each other in the world markets."

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Holbrook Blinn will be starred in "Bordeciand," a play by Porter Emerson Browne, which William Harris will soon present out of town.

George White's "Scandals of 1920" opened at the National Theatre in Washington last night after several postponements. The production will come to the Globe Theatre a week from Monday.

Thomas Burke, author of "Limehouse Nights," will dramatize several of his sketches for the Keith vaudeville houses.

Leo Ditrichstein will close his season in "The Purple Mask" in Brooklyn this week, and will immediately begin rehearsals of Brieux's "Our Americans Visitors." The play will be presented here in the Fall, but not with Mr. Ditrichstein in the cast.

MUSIC NOTES.

The City Chamberlain and Mrs. Philip Berolsheimer have given six free scholarships for students in the Gallinari Organ School next year to winners to be announced at the school's commencement at the Swedenborgian Church, 114 East Thirty-fifth Street, this evening.

By gift of Elkan Naumburg, a third series of special holiday concerts on the Mall in Central Park will open next Sunday afternoon with a Memorial Day program by an orchestra under Frans Kaltenborn.

The Viennese cantor, Don Fuchs, appearing Saturday evening at Carnegie Hall, will sing airs from "Andrea Chenier" and "Samson and Delilah," as well as ritual numbers with the Jewish Choral Society, led by A. W. Binder.

PLEA FOR HEALTH RISK LAW.

Commissioner Lynch Says It Will Cut Charity Needs in Two.

The adoption of workmen's health insurance laws will cut in half the amount of money now being spent by public and private charities because of illness among wage earners, Commissioner James M. Lynch of the New York State Industrial Commission told the Conference of Charities and Correction yesterday. The second day's session was held in the United Charities Building at 105 East Twenty-second Street, and the presiding officer was Mortimer L. Schiff. The topic for discussion was "Industrial Troubles." Besides Commissioner Lynch Professor William F. Ogburn of Columbia University also spoke.

Commissioner Lynch said that sickness in industry is the cause of more than six times the amount of suffering and despondency that industrial accidents bring. "We must have," he said, "an immediate extension of social insurance to protect the sick and their families, just as we now have workmen's compensation in case of injury."

DINNER TO ALLIED OFFICERS.

Harvard Club Expresses Appreciation of Training of U. S. Soldiers.

The Harvard Club gave a dinner at its club house last night to express its appreciation of the services of officers in the allied armies who trained the American forces in the United States in 1917 and 1918. A number of soldiers and diplomatic officials of allied countries were present. A letter from President Emeritus Charles W. Eliot of Harvard was read in which he said:

"As an old American citizen who has witnessed the behavior of the American people in four wars and many political struggles, and as one who has had abundant means of understanding the temper and fundamental purposes of the American people, because his work had lain with their educational forces, I venture to assure the British, French and Italian officers and officials, in whose honor this dinner is given, that the American people will not abandon their recent comrades in arms, and will soon be sharing with them the responsibility of leading the world steadily towards peace and liberty."

$71 PAID FOR SILVER PENNY.

First Day's Sale of Miller Coins Nets About $3,000.

The sale of the collection of rare Roman, British and early American coins owned by the late Henry C. Miller of this city was begun yesterday by the Elder Coin and Curio Company of 21 West Thirty-fifth Street. Daniel R. Kennedy was the auctioneer. The session brought about $3,000. The items sold were early British coins, including the silver sceatla and the small copper styca; the "money of necessity, 1090-93, popularly known as 'gun money,'" and Roman Republican silver.

The highest price was $71 for a silver penny of King Coelwulf of Mercia, A. D. 822-4, an uncirculated piece. A silver penny of King Cuthred of Kent brought $55. A copper styca of Alfred the Great, Burred type, sold for $25, and another piece of the same monarch for $38. A styca of Eadward the Elder of Wessex went for $38.

The sale will be continued today.

Policeman Wins $25,000 for Injury.

A jury before Supreme Court Justice Davis gave a verdict for $25,000 yesterday for Thomas O'Sullivan, formerly a traffic policeman, against William H. Farrell & Son, coal dealers. O'Sullivan was on duty at Hudson and Christopher Streets on Nov. 13, 1918, when the defendant's truck ran over his right foot, causing a permanent injury. He was retired on a pension last January.

10,000 FUR WORKERS TO STRIKE TODAY

Call Is Issued by Committee of the Joint Board Furriers' Union.

4,000 ALREADY ARE IDLE

Failure to Agree with Employers on Unemployment Situation Blamed for Trouble.

A general strike in the fur industry in New York, involving about 10,000 workers, will begin at 10 o'clock this morning if the workers obey the call issued yesterday afternoon by the General Strike Committee of the New York Joint Board Furriers' Union, with headquarters at 22 East Twenty-second Street. The strike call follows the rejection by the Associated Fur Manufacturers, Inc., of the plan proposed by the union as the solution of the unemployment problem in the fur industry. The membership voted in favor of a strike at a referendum held some days ago.

The union demanded that the workers have the right to divide among themselves whatever work there was to be done, no worker to be employed for more than forty hours a week, in order that there might be enough work to go around. They also demanded the immediate reinstatement of the 4,000 workers who were laid off early in the month because of lack of work.

"In our opinion the only cure for unemployment and its attendant problems is the resumption of business activity," the association wrote the union in response to the ultimatum, "therefore the association has unanimously resolved that it will make no modifications of the present agreement." Committees representing the manufacturers and the union conferred for two weeks without reaching an agreement.

"Our employers have taken advantage of the depressed state in which the fur industry finds itself," said Morris Kaufman, President of the International Fur Workers' Union of the United States and Canada, in a statement last night. "As a means of attacking us they have discharged and thrown into the gutters one-half of our membership, and because of these means forced this struggle upon us."

Involved in the strike are cutters, squarers, operators, sailers, ironers, examiners and finishers, members of Locals 1, 5, 10 and 15 of the International Fur Workers' Union. Upon leaving their work this morning the strikers have been instructed to go to one or another of the seven assembly halls where meetings will be held.

CALLS MURAT CHECK BAD.

Furrier Tells Grand Jury $2,000 Slip Was Returned.

A statement concerning an alleged unpaid check for $2,000 that was drawn by Prince Michel Murat of Paris, representing the purchase price of a Russian sable scarf, was placed before the regular Grand Jury yesterday by Assistant District Attorney E. P. Kitroe. H. H. Watson, a fur dealer at 4 West Forty-fifth Street, testified that he sold the scarf to the Prince at Saratoga in July, 1919, accepting the check in payment. It was returned, he said, by the Guaranty Trust Company marked "insufficient funds." Murat had returned to Paris. Goetz & Jacoby, attorneys for Mr. Watson, sent registered requests for payment to his Paris address, with the result that he paid $500 on account through his American lawyers, Beckwood & Lark, 60 Broadway.

It is said that the proceedings before the Grand Jury were based on a recent amendment to the Code of Criminal Procedure, which provides for prosecution on a charge of grand larceny where a check is drawn for an amount in excess of funds on deposit. Murat still is in France. In the event of an indictment extradition proceedings would be necessary.

Prince Murat and Miss Helen Macdonald Stallo, daughter of Edmund K. Stallo, of Cincinnati, were married at Paris on Feb. 4, 1913. They reside with his uncle, Prince Joachim Murat, at whose home in Paris President Wilson and Mrs. Wilson lived during the sessions of the Peace Conference.

This is the fourth legal proceeding against Prince Michel Murat since his visit to this country a year ago. When he was not at Saratoga or Florida he made his home at the Ritz Carlton. In October, 1919, Peck & Peck placed attachments in the hands of Sheriff Knott to recover $1,800 for hosiery sold to Murat. Another attachment was served on a claim for $1,600 by a tailor, and a third was granted by Supreme Court Justice Mendrick on a claim for payment of $6,647 by Cartier, of Paris, for jewelry. At that time Murat said he had not paid the debts because of disputes concerning the rate of exchange.

GLASS OPPOSES BONUS.

Favors Aid to Disabled Soldiers, but Not Indiscriminate Relief.

BRISTOL, Va., May 26.—Senator Carter Glass of Virginia, former Secretary of the Treasury, said he was opposed to "an indiscriminate bonus for ex-soldiers," in a letter to W. O. Came, Vice President of the Bristol Chamber of Commerce, in answering a message in which the chamber urged that the Senator oppose the present Soldier Relief bill.

In his letter Senator Glass said:

"You may be sure that I have not the slightest intention of voting for the bonus for ex-soldiers and sailors. The Government of the United States should be not only just but generous in the last degree in its attitude toward those men who were disabled in the service, or whose health was impaired, and also to the dependents of those other brave men who lost their lives in the war, but in these days of readjustment, with the people bearing the most extraordinary tax burdens since the world was created, I think it would be a frightful misuse and abuse of power for Congress to vote an indiscriminate bonus to able-bodied ex-service men, millions of whom did not get within 3,000 miles of Europe. At all events, I shall not be a party to imposing any such additional burden upon the people."

Trust Manager Pleads Not Guilty.

Thomas F. Hasbe, former manager of the Long Island City Branch of the Queens County Trust Company and after a merger of that company Secretary of the Long Island City Branch of the American Trust Company, pleaded not guilty yesterday to two indictments found by the Queens Grand Jury charging him with accepting a gratuity of $200 from a depositor for a loan of $2,600 and failing to account for $1,000 security money deposited in two certified checks. The trial will proceed in the Supreme Court in Queens after the Summer recess.

What of the Future?

IT is an enigma. No one is wise enough to forecast it clearly. Where is the "middle of the road" for your money's journey?

Stocks and bonds may go up. They may go down. The prudent investor will choose something that will not go down and will waive the chances of its going up.

The rates of interest may go up and they may go down. The principal of a Guaranteed Mortgage will not go up but it will not go down.

Whichever way the rate of interest goes, the investor at short intervals can readjust the rate and get the market value.

What can be fairer or safer?

Constantinople Honeycombed with Conspiracy Against the Hated Control of Foreigners.

VAST TERRITORY IN REVOLT

Allied Troops Occupy Only a Fringe of Asia Minor, Which Is Full of Guerrilla Bands.

By SIR PHILIP GIBBS.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

CONSTANTINOPLE, May 20.—I suppose by the time these words I am now writing are printed the representatives of the Sultan's Government, who are leaving Constantinople tomorrow to receive the terms of peace, will have signed that document, which is a death warrant to the old Ottoman Empire, but the death warrant has been executed in order to fulfill the judgment of the world, and the acceptance of the treaty by a number of Turkish officials selected for that humiliation does not mean necessarily that its terms will be obeyed by the Moslem peoples. In Asia Minor already many Turks are in revolt, actively or passively, against the rearrangement of their frontiers and the proposed surrender of States over which the Crescent ruled by power of word.

From the Sea of Marmora to the Caspian and from the Black Sea to the Syrian desert there are armed bands of many races, bound together by Mohammedan sentiment but acting under independent leads, who are already fighting guerilla warfare against the French, Greek and Armenian forces.

On the fringe of the great interior of Asia Minor, where not even the Sultan's word and edict are now prevailing, the military leader of the Nationalists, Mustrapha Kemal Pasha, is becoming the rival of the power of the Sultan among all those Mohammedan people. To his headquarters at Angora, well away from the coast line and in the heart of Turkish Asia, have come many of the Sultan's old Ministers and officials, who have set up an independent Government.

They are animated with the aim of raising the banner of the Crescent throughout the old Ottoman Empire as it existed before the European war and extending its power to even greater lengths by overrunning Armenia, destroying Armenian aspirations with a ruthlessness untouched by mercy, and joining hands with the old Turkish race on their eastern border.

Source of Kemal's Strength.

This man Mustapha Kemal, who is but a figurehead, I am told, for the Turkish conspirators around him—the cleverest brains of the old empire and the ablest soldiers—has one means of strength which is likely to cause great trouble in this Eastern world, which the West is trying to mold to its own ideas and to divide in its own interests. He has the support, secretly or openly, of the great majority of educated Turks who resent the humiliation of the Moslem power and remember its ancient victories, its arrogance and its brutal strength.

They know they must play their last cards now in the game of fate if they would avert the absolute downfall of the Crescent, and all their racial patriotism, all the fanaticism that lurks in the mind of even the sleek Turkish gentleman who speaks French with a Parisian accent and whose women go unveiled in frocks from the Rue de La Paix, bid them stake all that is left to them on a gambler's chance of winning back their losses.

Here in Constantinople one hears many accounts of the conspiracy within the very walls of the Ministry of War, which is organizing forces against Mustapha Kemel and in the other Government offices, where the Cabinet of Damad Ferid Pasha, the Turkish Prime Minister, is issuing proclamations declaring Mustapha Kemal and his followers to be rebels against the Sultan and unfaithful to the sacred Fatva, or edict, of the Sheikh ul Islam, head of the Moslem law.

Capital Full of Conspirators.

As soon as the allied forces occupied Constantinople they arrested, as everybody knows, a number of prominent Turks who were active Nationalists. They were high officials discovered to be in correspondence with the Nationalist forces, but for one who was arrested there were many who escaped across the Bosporus to the rebel headquarters at Angora, with money and secret papers. They left many friends behind, and, although every day there are new arrests of some ex-Minister, professor, lawyer or merchant found to be deeply implicated in a Nationalist plot, Constantinople from Pera to Stamboul is swarming with these conspirators, who keep open the line of communication between this city and the centres of rebellion on the Asiatic side.

Strange things happen. Fires break out in Government offices, burning official papers. Boats laden with ammunition for anti-Nationalist forces are foundered within sight of Galata Bridge. Orders sent by the Minister of War do not reach their destination. In spite of the apparently intense activity for the defeat of Mustapha Kemal in order that the Sultan's commands may be obeyed it is nevertheless a curious fact that arms, ammunition and other material of war do not often reach the forces which are operating here and there against the Nationalist hordes.

Mustapha Kemal's source of strength is the appeal he makes to Moslem patriotism, which has united Old Turks with Young Turks and called up the last flame of Ottoman pride, so that he has spies in every office and confederates in every department of the Sultan's administration. His weakness is the utter weariness of the Turkish peasant, who is sick to death of war, resentful of being called to arms again, of having his horses commandeered and his fodder taken. He can be rallied to the colors only by the menaces of Mustapha Kemal's armed mercenaries, or by the spirit of fanaticism and old hereditary hatreds.

Those passions urge him to resist a Greek to the death if the Greek trespasses across his old line of territory and to massacre Armenians at the slightest provocation. It is that fanaticism which the Nationalists are seeking to inflame. They have one watchword which stirs fire even in the heart of Turkish peasants, boatmen, merchants' clerks and camel-drivers. It is the name of Smyrna. The Greeks are now in possession of that port, and the Peace Treaty gives it to them with its hinterland. It is certain that they can hold it only by force of arms, and that any advance they make beyond its walls will be resisted vigorously by the hordes of fighting men of many races and tribes now gathering under Mustapha Kemal's banner. The Greek army is in strength at Smyrna. Its courage and efficiency will be challenged unless the Nationalists are broken by internal divisions.

Armenians' Deadly Peril.

Meanwhile the Armenians are in a most perilous position, and the Nationalists are warning them that their racial ambitions and "European propaganda" will lead them into grave trouble. This is an open threat of massacre, and the story of Marash, where from 10,000 to 12,000 people were slain not many weeks ago, is proof enough that the Turk is still the same bloodthirsty savage when he sees red in Armenian villages.

When the French hauled down the Turkish flag and put up the tricolor in Marash, the Turks were enraged and tore down the French flag. Fighting began, and the French were forced to withdraw with their black troops, while a body of Armenian levies was surrounded and cut off. The Armenians were slain to a man, and the Turks did not spare the women and children of Marash, who were massacred in heaps.

The new State of Armenia is ringed round by enemies. To the north, of the two, along the narrow strip of coast to the right of Trebizond, are the people of Lazistan, who have no love for them. The Turks are west and south of them, and thickly scattered between Erzerum and Van. East of them are the Georgians and peasants of Azerbaijan, who shed no tears over Armenian sufferings. The Armenians themselves are ready to fight for their independence, and I am told that they are sturdy fighting men who will make a heroic stand if they are attacked on either side. They, too, will be unmerciful to any Turks who fall into their hands.

But the horror of all this part of Asia is the large number of Armenian communities completely isolated in Turkish territory. They are easy victims of massacre when the Turk is inflamed to slaughter their race by faith and beyond the reach of help by us or any other power.

Looking at the map of Asia Minor, one sees that the allied forces—British, French, Italian and Greek—are merely on the fringe of that vast stretch of country between the Black Sea and the Mediterranean where many Oriental races are, in spite of all their rivalries, linked together by the Moslem faith. The French have but a precarious footing in Northern Syria beyond Alexandretta, which they are holding mainly by black troops who are losing men and losing heart in guerrilla warfare with Turkish bands. The Italians have an outpost at Adalia, on the southern coast of Asia Minor. The Greeks are in the port of Smyrna. The British here in Constantinople have but a few battalions on the Asiatic side.

Inflaming Moslem Passions.

The interior is a dark welter of unknown forces, passions and plots beyond law or the influence of the allied powers. From Constantinople the Sultan and his present advisers, who have decided to carry out the Peace Treaty as their only means of safety, send forth imperial edicts supported by the religious authority of the Sheikh ul Islam, the head of the Moslem world in Turkey; but Mustapha Kemal and his confederates at Angora do not let those words reach the peasants or along the caravan route where camels pass to the markets of the East. They proclaim to the Turkish peasants, to the Kurds and Lasis and Anatolians that the Sultan is a prisoner in his palace; that his edicts are issued under compulsion of his jailers; that the sacred mosque of Hagia Sophia is violated by Christian dogs; that the Prophet calls upon his people to defend the Caliphate and the Moslem faith.

Meanwhile the Russian Bolshevili are negotiating with the Georgians in the Caucasus. They covet the oil wells of Baku, and the hinterland of Asia Minor is open to a Bolshevist advance.

No man may say what the future will bring forth out of this chaos; but it is not peace that is being assured by that handful of Ministers, soldiers and intriguers assembled at Angora, in the heart of all this country. Constantinople will be peaceful, anyhow, while the allied occupation continues at its present strength. There will be no wild deeds in the Sultan's city when the peace terms are known and published. But on the other side of the Sea of Marmora, where Asia is very close to us, there is likelihood of strife and of rebellion which only strong forces will crush. Are those forces available to carry out the treaty and to prevent new massacres?

American Commission to Feed German University Students

BERLIN, May 26.—The American Society of Friends Relief Commission, according to the Vossische Zeitung today, proposes to extend its feeding mission to the university students, who, in great majority, are in the most reduced circumstances.

Special cheap meals, the newspaper says, will be provided for those who are able to prove that they are without money.

BERNSTORFF SAID HOUSE WAS 'USEFUL'

Favored His 1916 Trip to Berlin, as We Were "So Poorly Represented" There.

HIS ESTIMATE OF WILSON

He Thought His Election "the Lesser Evil," Having Feared Root's Influence.

BERLIN, May 26 (Associated Press).—Official documents were published here today covering letters written by Count von Bernstorff, the German Ambassador to the United States, sent from Washington to the Berlin Foreign Office between March, 1916, and January, 1917.

A large portion of the correspondence deals with President Wilson's pre-war attitude toward Germany and Great Britain and his re-election to the Presidency. Regarding Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, Count von Bernstorff declares in a letter written in March that "influential American circles will not countenance wild Theodore," and then proceeds:

"So much is certain—Wilson does not want to be drawn into the European war. This has been stated by Colonel House both in London and Paris."

In a letter written in May, 1916, Bernstorff said:

"The best to be said about the American Government is that it is more neutral than influential circles here." He refers to the Irish Americans as having "gone over to a man."

In June Bernstorff wrote:

"Colonel House continuously asks me to impress upon you that we should not show a great desire for peace, as our enemies would take this as a declining attitude."

In November, in an extensive report on President Wilson's re-election, Bernstorff said:

"I regard the issue favorable to us, or pessimistically speaking, I regard Wilson as the lesser evil. If Hughes had been elected we would have stood a bad chance with people like Root, Bacon and Wickersham in the Cabinet."

The last communication sent by Bernstorff was a cablegram dated Jan. 4, 1917, in which he advised the Foreign Office to issue an official statement in the acknowledgment of Ireland's right to self-determination.

"As it is understood here to be impending that the British Imperial Conference will grant Ireland self-government," said the cablegram, "our statement should be issued immediately, so that the British concession may appear as a consequence of our declaration."

Colonel E. M. House was recommended to the Foreign Office by Count von Bernstorff when the former made his second trip to Europe early in 1916 as President Wilson's personal representative, according to letters from the Ambassador to Gottlieb von Jagow, at that time Foreign Secretary.

"Viewed from the local point of view," Count von Bernstorff wrote on Nov. 28, 1915, on the eve of the Colonel's departure, "the mission of Colonel House appears to me desirable, especially as the United States is so poorly represented in Berlin. Colonel House is wholly neutral, very discreet and reserving. Confidences could contribute much to the betterment of mutual relations."

Count von Bernstorff informed his superior in the same letter that Americans were at that time chiefly interested in "the restoration of peace and the abolition of militarism and navalism." He added that Germany would be "able to compel England to recognize the freedom of the seas only if supported by the United States and if Germany consented to end militarism."

"If I receive a reply on this point from your Excellency," he concluded, "I will continue to treat Colonel House in a dilatory manner. Up to now he has been very useful to me."

A letter from Dr. Solf, Minister of Colonies, to Count Jagow reported the former's conversation with Colonel House at the American Embassy in Berlin late in January, 1916. In it Colonel House was credited with statements relative to the political situation in England.

President Wilson's emissary was quoted as describing Viscount Grey, then British Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, as "the most tractable English statesman." It was said he declared Viscount Grey was "eminently suited and also ready to negotiate, and his imminent retirement from the British Cabinet would not only be undesirable, but liable to prove fatal to Germany."

Colonel House was alleged to have told Dr. Solf there was strong anti-American feeling in England at that time, and that "Germany was not aware of the extent to which unfriendly notes were being exchanged between Washington and London." He was quoted as expressing regret that "Germany had suitable cause since England had indicated her lack of faith in America's impartiality."

A memorandum of a conversation Colonel House had with Dr. Theobald Bethmann Hollweg, at that time Imperial Chancellor, on peace, immediately also been published by the committee. The Chancellor deplored the fact that Count von Bernstorff and Dr. Dernburg had exploited the issue of the freedom of the seas, which, he said, "has injured Germany's cause in the United States." Colonel House was said to have given the Chancellor the impression that Viscount Grey had indicated that the matter could be discussed, but that Premier Lloyd George had peremptorily rejected the suggestion.

A letter from Baron von der Lancken, German Governor of Brussels, to Count Montgelas, then in charge of the American Division of the Foreign Office, briefly reported conversation the former had had with Brand Whitlock, American Minister to Belgium, in January, 1916, in Brussels, after Mr. Whitlock's return from the United States. The American Minister was reported to have said that President Wilson had assured him in a confidential talk that he was "no sworn foe of Germany," and that "the destruction or political weakening of Germany would not be to the interest of the United States, whose chief political aim was freedom."

Mr. Whitlock was quoted as having told Baron von der Lancken he was "offered $500,000 in the United States to retire from the Brussels post and devote himself to a lecture tour in behalf of German rule in Belgium."

During the Spring of 1916 Count von Bernstorff implored the Foreign Office not to address any "snarling notes to the American Government until "pending negotiations" had been satisfactorily concluded. He also urged that an end be put to peace discussions in the German press, so that the impression that the United States was acting on behalf of Germany might be avoided."

"Gerard will like that!" Colonel House remarked yesterday when he was told of the Berlin dispatch to the effect that Count von Bernstorff had recommended Colonel House's mission to Germany as "desirable, especially as the United States is so poorly represented in Berlin."

The Colonel's only other comment on the correspondence made public before the German Parliamentary committee inquiring into the war concerned the letter from Baron von der Lancken, German Governor of Brussels, alleging that Brand Whitlock, then American Minister to Belgium, stated that President Wilson had assured him that he was "no sworn enemy of Germany."

"I think that is something they can never accuse me of—quoting the President at any time," Colonel House remarked.

Colonel House said that he intended to reserve any formal statement on affairs in connection with Germany until the Parliamentary Committee closed its investigation.

Gerard Appreciates the "Compliment."

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, May 26. — Ambassador Gerard, who was a dinner guest here tonight, had only a brief comment to make on Count von Bernstorff's reference to him as a poor representative of the United States at Berlin. Mr. Gerard said he considered Bernstorff's criticism as a great compliment.

9 Are Killed, 40 Hurt, in Riots in Italy; Guards, Students, Police, and Strikers Clash

ROME, May 25.—At least six persons were killed and more than thirty wounded in the clash between Royal Guards and students which marked the close of yesterday's celebration of the fifth anniversary of Italy's entry into the World War, according to reports from reliable sources. Among the injured were two women.

The students attempted to reach the Quirinal to conduct a manifestation of loyalty to the King. After assembling, they found the street running direct to the Quirinal had been blocked, and so chose a more circuitous route. Guards interfered, and during the disorder several shots were fired. The guards returned the fire, wounding several persons.

Clashes between strikers and police also occurred in Palermo, where one person has been killed and seven wounded, according to newspaper dispatches. Ortona and Maro have also been the scenes of encounters, two persons being killed and three wounded in the latter city. A general strike has been declared in Palermo.

As a consequence of the disturbance the police today took into custody all residents of Dalmatia and Fiume who were in Rome with the view of repatriating them or sending them to places where it would be impossible to instigate disorders by urging their claims.

All the newspapers comment today on the outbreak of Monday. The Government press attributes the clash to an anti-Government campaign, while the Opposition newspapers say the Government was responsible for the tragedy because of its weakness and irresolution, due to the fact that the Cabinet is composed of heterogeneous elements.

The Socialist newspaper, Avanti, in commenting on the incident, says that the war cost Italy 500,000 lives, 2,000,000 men maimed, 100,000,000,000 lire in money and terrible misery. "In exchange for this," the newspaper adds ironically, "Italy has been raised to the rank of a great power as proved by the respect and consideration shown her by her Allies."

SAYS SOVIETS CANNOT LAST SIX MONTHS

MASS OF PEOPLE LISTLESS

But Social Revolutionaries Have Never Ceased Their Efforts to Overthrow Tyranny.

By WALTER DURANTY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 25.—The rule of the Bolsheviki in Russia is nearing its end, according to information received here from confidential Russian sources. The reason given for their approaching downfall is the utter economic ruin to which they have reduced the country. At present even the excuse of the allied blockade can no longer hide the fact that impracticable Socialist theories have so destroyed commerce, industry and transportation that the only people in Russia who have enough to eat are the peasants in remote districts, who produce enough for their own requirements, but refuse to supply the towns and cities, even could the necessary transport be provided.

Exactly how the Bolshevist régime will end no one ventures to say definitely. If the struggle with the Poles is prolonged it may be that a military leader will gain sufficient ascendancy over one army to force his will upon the spiritless masses that form the majority of the Russian troops. My information states that the Bolsheviki had the utmost difficulty in collecting and moving forces for a counterstroke on the northern Polish front. In fact, it was only the whole-hearted abhorrence of the Russians for the "Labor Army" to which they had been conscripted, and which, by the way, utterly failed in its prime object of improving transportation and economic conditions, that enabled the Soviet leaders to get men to fight at all. The Russians hated forced labor so much that even war, for which they had little stomach, came as a welcome relief.

In vain the Red leaders tried to stimulate enthusiasm against the "capitalist imperialism" of the Poles. If the latter had committed the error of trying a drive at Moscow or into Russia proper, the country might have risen against the foreign invader; but as it is the Russians do not see the point of risking their lives for the sake of the Ukraine, which is no more Russian than Latvia or Finland.

It is probable that the greatest danger to Bolshevists will come from the ranks of the Social Revolutionaries, whose members mostly belong to the agricultural element. It is estimated that the Social Revolutionary Party, whose platform is moderate Socialism, admitting private ownership of industry and finance, has between 3,000,000 and 5,000,000 adherents in Russia, as compared with a half or at the outside three-quarters of a million of Bolsheviki. The latter won control because they were bolder and less scrupulous, and chiefly because they went right out in the beginning for peace, immediate peace at any price, whereas Social Revolutionaries like Kerensky still tried to keep faith with their Western allies by continuing the war. Kerensky asserted here a few weeks ago that if the Czar himself had come out strongly for peace in the months that followed the revolution he would have been replaced triumphantly on the throne by popular acclamation, so strong was the disinclination of the whole Russian people to continue the struggle for a cause that meant nothing to the vast majority.

Despite the ruthless terrorism of the Bolsheviki, the Social Revolutionaries have never ceased plotting to overthrow them. Excelsior's correspondent, Albert Londres, who has just returned from Moscow, says today that no less than 3,000 social-revolutionary conspirators have been discovered and suppressed by the terrible Bolshevist "Extraordinary Commission."

Doubtless many so-called "plots" were simply an excuse for the removal of a person or persons of whom the Bolsheviki or their agents disapproved; but it is certain that the attempts to free Russia from Bolshevist tyranny have been determined and continuous. My informant goes so far as to predict with assurance: "Anyway, the Bolshevist Government won't last six months more."

IRELAND HAS DUTIES, POPE INTIMATES

Divine Aid Needed to Achieve Her Desires Without Failing in Responsibility, He Says.

MORE TROOPS BEING SENT

Cameron Highlanders Under Orders and Three Other Battalions Ready —Strike Affects Dublin.

ROME, May 26.—"In this hour Ireland needs special help from above, so that what she legitimately longs for may be obtained without failing short in any way of her duties."

Pope Benedict made this statement to more than 300 Irish ecclesiastics and laymen whom he received at the Vatican today.

LONDON, May 26.—An order was issued at Aldershot today for the Second Battalion of the Cameron Highlanders to proceed tomorrow to Ireland. Three battalions of other regiments were ordered to hold themselves ready to follow at short notice if required. Younger and less disciplined troops, who sometimes seek reprisals, will be withdrawn.

A new campaign of incendiarism is now in progress in Ireland. Hitherto court houses, police barracks, &c., have been burned down, but larger premises are now being attacked and destroyed. Last night Kilbrittain Castle, near Brandon, County Cork, a splendid mansion valued at £100,000, was destroyed by fire, while £40,000 damage was caused by fire on the farm of Major Pollock, at Garnavillaloe.

Several valuable horses were burned. The police and military fought the flames, but villagers refused to assist.

Dublin Port Partially Paralyzed.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

DUBLIN, May 26.—Partial paralysis has descended upon the port of Dublin as a result of the strike of 400 workers, mostly members of the National Union of Railwaymen. These men decline to handle munitions for the "Army of Occupation" and ask for a guarantee that they will not be asked to do so in Ireland.

The London and Northwestern Railway officials state that the men must deal with whatever stores are tendered to them.

The strikers this afternoon called on the Sailors' and Firemen's Union not to undertake the work. Meanwhile the London and Northwestern Railway suspended the sailings of cargo vessels, but is continuing its passenger service, although travellers must be prepared to handle their own baggage.

The steamer Curraghmore, for instance, was compelled to return to Holyhead last night from Liffey with a large part of her passengers' luggage undischarged. Those unfortunate enough to be left in Dublin—and they included many Americans—without their belongings had to await their return before proceeding into the country.

The trouble about the supposed munitions train which had been held up at Kingstown since Sunday is over. The cases contained only bully beef. The military were asked to allow the railway union officials to inspect the goods and an officer replied that they could search where they would. A very thorough examination was made of every car, but only 100 tons of pressed beef were found, as declared, in the consignment.

According to the latest returns, since Easter approximately 400 police barracks have been burned and 150 income tax offices raided.

DUBLIN, May 26 (Associated Press).—Reports of fires received today include news of an attempt to burn the courthouse at Waterville, County Kerry. The police saved the building, but valuable records were destroyed. The courthouse at Cloyne, County Cork, was burned.

The Coroner's Court has been receiving attentions from the campaigners. The members of a jury who sat in an inquest on two policemen who were killed received a notice informing them that they had been "tried and found guilty of treason," and must bear the consequences.

Unknown persons have seized and sunk Lord Kingston's yacht, the Mecah, at Carrick-on-Shannon, apparently because Lord Kingston entered a claim for £2,000 for the destruction of a police barrack on his property. The claim was subsequently withdrawn, but no public announcement of this step had been made.

Control of Irish land by the Sinn Fein is very effective, as is instanced by an occurrence at Carrick-on-Shannon, which was reported here yesterday.

A farmer named Morrison was summoned before the Sinn Fein Land Committee to show why he had attempted to buy land over the heads of young men of the district who did not own property. He had just purchased a grazing farm for £3,500, and told the committee he had bought it for his two brothers in America.

The committee warned him to surrender it immediately, which he agreed to do with reluctance.

BRITISH FRIENDSHIP FOR AMERICA STRONG

LOOK ON IT AS POLITICS

Better Understanding Is Looked for, Now That Geddes Has Been Received by President.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 26.—"Great Britain appears to be misunderstanding the Irish situation here," is the information sent to a London newspaper by a New York correspondent, who then proceeds to cite THE NEW YORK TIMES' precise definition of the Irish problem as "critical in England and scandalous in the United States."

Observers here, both American and British, do not agree with the statement that any real misconceptions exist on this side regarding the part which the Irish question is being made to play in the American political campaign.

An American who may be described as the person best qualified to express an opinion on the subject takes the view that British opinion is well advised in this matter by its public men and its leading newspapers, and that in consequence the irritation displayed over the recent series of pinpricks from America is quite insignificant by comparison with the overwhelming volume of confidence in the future good relations of the two countries.

Here and there, of course, appeals to baser forms of popular sentiment are made, and, viewed superficially, these slide shows may be taken much too tragically. Several reports have reached this country regarding some of the methods by which anti-British feeling is fomented in the United States, not infrequently by cabled misrepresentations of facts as they are presented on this side.

Think Geddes May Help More.

Sir Auckland Geddes has taken occasion to traverse some of these misstatements, and in some quarters it is suggested that his opportunities will be enhanced following his reception by the President.

The Evening Standard, for instance, says:

"Not since Lord Reading was in America has there been an interchange of views between the President and the British Ambassador. Meanwhile the campaign for the Presidential election is gathering momentum, and the British begin, and it is customary part. The British people must watch this with equanimity, trusting that a large majority of the people of the United States will not be influenced by misrepresentations with regard to Ireland.

"Sir Auckland Geddes can enlighten the President on that question."

The Washington situation in regard to the proposed resolution of sympathy with Ireland, which the Foreign Affairs Committee of the House of Representatives has in hand and Bainbridge Colby's reply on the question, are being followed with keen interest.

The suggestion has been made here that Colby, by his use of the qualifying phrase he dictated by good judgment, has in a certain measure taken up an attitude similar to that of Speaker Lowther in the House of Commons last week.

During the debate on adjournment last Thursday Sir Donald MacLean referred to the Polish action against Soviet Russia. Speaker Lowther ruled against the discussion, suggesting that MacLean should make his speech to the Polish Diet, where he would be free to indict the Polish Government. Lord Robert Cecil came to MacLean's assistance, arguing that as the Polish Government was a signatory to the covenant of the League of Nations, the British Government was entitled to take such diplomatic action as they thought wise in order to assure that the provisions of the covenant should be carried out.

Speaker Lowther Sets Example.

The Speaker's ruling was explained by him in the following words: "The proposal which is made is that we are to discuss in this House the motives of signatories of the League. I must say that appalls me. I think we would be going entirely outside the functions of this house, and so far from leading to any friendly feeling between ourselves and the other signatories of the League, there would be, it appears to me, very grave danger of raising a good deal of animosity. Poland aside for one moment. Supposing honorable members follow the example of the honorable gentlemen and begin to criticise the United States of America, which does not for the moment happen to be a member of the League of Nations, but which may well be soon, if that is likely to lead to any beneficial result?

"I cannot myself help solemnly imposing upon this House the view that the less we criticise or seek to interfere with the motives which govern the conduct of other States, the more likely are we to arrive at and remain in friendly relations with them. For that reason, therefore, I would ask the House most solemnly to be very cautious indeed of how they take their stand upon this new development of our foreign relations.

"Honorable members, of course, are fully entitled to say anything they please in regard to His Majesty's Government. I cannot, however, help thinking that a good deal of reticence should be exercised in regard to other countries, even if they happen to be signatories to the League of Nations."

Sir Donald MacLean acquiesced, saying: "I bow to your ruling, Mr. Speaker. If I may say so with respect I think what you have just said in regard to our action, or any criticism of Governments of other countries, is in accord with the traditions of this House and its duties and responsibilities. In so far as my remarks went on lines which you have indicated in the latter portion of your ruling, I certainly will not pursue them any further. I am sorry for having transgressed. I think yours a perfectly proper ruling."

Some comparisons also are being made between the Congressional opposition to intervene in Ireland and the reported Congressional reluctance to undertake the Armenian mandate, but in the absence of official comment here are satisfied that Anglo-American solidarity will remain steadfast as a rock amid the waves of any political tempest.

X-Ray Burns Made Harmless.

PARIS, May 26.—The martyrdom of those scientists who have given themselves in experiments on the use of X-rays seems likely to end. Among them the rays have claimed several victims, and there are others who have had to have fingers and later arms amputated after having had skin and muscles eaten away. Now a preventative has been discovered by Dr. Fech, who has suffered. At the Academy of Science he described his experiments and findings, which have been enthusiastically received. The principle he employs is to combat ultra-violet rays with ultra-red rays, which have an exactly opposite effect and reduce erythema to the skin, which X-rays set up. The question which will have to be settled now is how to neutralise on the operator the destructive effects of ultra-violet rays by simultaneous application of ultra-red rays.

Deschanel Resumes Duty.

PARIS, May 26.—Premier Millerand reported to the Chamber of Deputies today that President Deschanel had so far recovered from the injury sustained when he plunged through a window of the Presidential train near Montargis early in the week that he had been able again to take up his work as Chief Executive of the Republic.

Bay State Senate Passes Bill to Censor Moving Pictures

BOSTON, May 26.—The State Senate today passed to be engrossed a bill providing for censorship by a commission of all motion pictures exhibited in this State. The bill, previously passed by the House, has been the subject of much controversy.

An amendment offered today whereby the measure would be submitted to municipalities for a referendum on its acceptance was defeated.

PETAIN TO HONOR OUR DEAD IN FRANCE

Memorial Day Services Will Be Held on Many Battlefields.

GRAVES TO BE DECORATED

Government Orders Army and Civil Authorities to Send Representatives to Ceremonies.

PARIS, May 26.—Marshal Petain will speak in behalf of the French Government at the Memorial Day exercises to be held in Suresnes Cemetery, near this city. Ambassador Hugh C. Wallace will represent the United States, and both the Marshal and the Ambassador will assist in decorating the graves of American soldiers. The French Government will also be represented at similar ceremonies at Beaumont, Thiaucourt, Ploisy, Belleau Wood, Château Thierry and Fere-en-Tardenois.

The ceremony at Suresnes Cemetery will be simple. Marshal Pétain and Ambassador Wallace will speak briefly. Then the graves will be strewn with flowers. The unveiling of a heroic figure of a doughboy in full equipment, a representation in plaster of the statue, "The American Doughboy," which is being erected to stand permanently in the cemetery where 1,000 American soldiers are buried.

The British Embassy will be represented, the Earl of Derby saying that he will make every endeavor to be present in person. The Mayor of Suresnes will deliver an oration extolling the courage of the American Army and expressing the pride the town of Suresnes in having the honor to be the last resting place of "the friends of France."

The French people generally express surprise at the intensity of the American feeling toward their dead, although they themselves as a race are devoted to their heroes. "It is this mystic, idealistic mind of the American, which, coupled with his practical and businesslike turn, has made America one of the great nations in the history of the world," said the President of the Chamber of Deputies, today.

General Harbord has sent a telegram to be read at the ceremony in Belleau Wood, where he commanded the Second Division in the first pitched battle in which American Army was engaged. A company of Pennsylvania of General Mangin's army, which fought alongside the Americans near Château-Thierry will attend the Belleau Wood ceremony.

Major Gen. Henry T. Allen will preside at the exercises to be held at the great American cemetery at Romagne-sous-Montfaucon, where the bodies of nearly 25,000 American soldiers are buried. He will also deliver the principal address. A company of infantry numbering 250 men and a military band of 85 pieces will accompany General Allen to Romagne from Coblenz.

Orders have been issued by the French Government to all French army and civil authorities to send representatives to exercises to be held at American cemeteries in France on May 30. Subscriptions totalling 385,846 francs have been received up to date for decorating the graves of American soldiers in this country.

The lone grave of Captain Quentin Roosevelt at Chamery will be cared for by his former comrades in the Aviation Corps. Hundreds of other lone graves have been sought out this year, as well as those of the three Americans in the French cemetery at Samois-sur-Seine, who died by drowning in 1923.

The committee having supervision of the various exercises completed its plans today. Brig. Gen. Frank Parker, commander of the First Division, will deliver the principal address at Ploisy, where the Americans saw much of the hardest fighting and suffered heavy losses.

At Château-Thierry the old commander of the Second Machine Gun Battalion, Colonel McClammot, will deliver an address, and the battalion will also be represented by a detachment of its members who fought there.

Rear Admiral Marvy McL. Hase will speak at Belleau Wood.

Belgium will celebrate American Decoration Day by placing flowers on the graves of the American soldiers, sailors and marines who lie buried in Belgian soil. This information was contained in a cable received yesterday by Baron de Cartier de Marchienne, Belgian Ambassador, and made public here.

The movement to honor the American dead in Belgium is one in which the whole population will participate as a mark of their gratitude to the United States, the cable said. King Albert has taken a particular interest in the matter, and has given instructions that the American Memorial Day shall be generally observed throughout the Kingdom.

FRENCH OPPOSE DEALING WITH SOVIET RUSSIA

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 26.—The arrival of M. Krassin in London to discuss resumption of commercial relations with Russia has aroused a new protest from the French. Persons here condemn the move as useless and dangerous.

Augusta Gauvain declares: "In negotiating with Krassin one is negotiating with Lenin and Trotsky. The Soviet operatives are only an instrument in their hands, and any dealings with them are dealings with the Soviets. That ought to be sufficient to put the western powers on their guard, for they cannot any longer ignore the close connection between the Soviet Government and all the revolutionary and anarchist movements in the west and all the enemies of modern civilization in the east.

"But the greatest argument against beginning negotiations with Krassin is that no commercial relations with Russia are in any way possible. All the witnesses who have come back agree that in the former Empire of the Czar there does not exist anything exportable. The Bolshevik may buy, but they have nothing to sell. If they buy it will be with jewels and works of art of the old régime, for they are producing nothing with which to barter.

"And if the other powers sell to them, to what use will they put their purchases? They will use them against us and our friends. Railway material in particular would be used only for transporting troops against the Poles, against the Armenians, against the Persians, and especially against the little army of General Wrangel, Denikin's successor in the Crimea."

One contented community in Russia, he declares, would do more to undermine the influence of the Soviets in the whole country than a fully equipped expeditionary force. The worst policy of all, he says, would be to put the Soviets on their legs again with supplies, for which the only payment would be promissory notes of no value.

GEDDES RECEIVED BY THE PRESIDENT

British Envoy Is Presented and Delivers Message of Good-Will.

WILSON REPLIES CORDIALLY

GREETING BY BRAZIL ENVOY

He Refers to the Long-Time Good Relations of His Country with America.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—Sir Auckland Geddes, the new British Ambassador, formally presented his credentials to President Wilson at the White House today and exchanged with the Executive assurances of good-will and amity.

Before the British Ambassador went to the White House the President received the new Ambassador of Brazil, Augusto Conchrape de Alencar.

Sir Auckland in addressing the President said:

"His Majesty, my King, has instructed me to deliver to you this letter and to say that it is his desire that I should at the first possible moment renew to you, Sir, his assurances of the lively interest which he takes in everything that promotes the welfare and prosperity of the United States of America.

"Immediately before I left his Court of St. James I had the honor of being received in audience by him, when he charged me particularly to express to you, Sir, the vivid sense of pleasurable recollection with which he remembers Your Excellency's visit and that of Mrs. Wilson to him at Buckingham Palace.

"He has heard with deep emotion and regret of the loss of health from which you, Sir, have unhappily suffered. He prays that it may be wholly temporary and of short duration, and that Almighty God may restore you to your accustomed vigor.

"He has asked me also to thank you with the utmost warmth and cordiality for the gratifying receptions and boundless hospitality which have been extended to his eldest son, His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, on each separate occasion on which he has visited the shores and lands of this great nation.

"May I, Your Excellency, on behalf of those who were by colleagues, the members of the Administration of the United Kingdom, and on by own behalf associate not only them but also myself with each and all of the royal messages of attention, goodwill and gratitude which it has been my great good fortune and high honor to be permitted to deliver to you? I am devoutly thankful that I am able to say that I believe it to be the unanimous wish and hope of the British people that there may now be, that the relations of friendship and co-operation between the people of the United States of America and themselves may be strengthened and developed, and that no cloud of misunderstanding may ever arise between them.

"It will be my unceasing effort ever to serve the peoples whom I have the honor to represent in the furtherance of their wish and hope."

The President said in his reply:

"It is, I am confident, quite unnecessary to say that I accept with pleasure from your hands the letters whereby His Britannic Majesty accredits you as his Ambassador Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary to the United States, or that the sentiments and words of His Majesty which you interpret to me are warmly appreciated. May I ask you to be so good as to express to him my sincere thanks for his kindly interest and good wishes?

"I am glad, as

LUXURIES COST 20 BILLIONS

Secretary of Treasury Sees Sign of Improvement, but Will Make No Prediction as to Prices.

While complaining of the sugar shortage, the people of the United States are eating a billion dollars worth of candy this year, David S. Houston, Secretary of the Treasury, told members of the Bond Club of New York at their monthly luncheon yesterday.

Mr. Houston said there were signs that the practice of economy was becoming an important factor in affecting prices and that improvement in conditions abroad was helping the downward trend of prices, but he added that the future price movement depended on too many things to be predicted.

"I think it is practically impossible to analyze the situation or, to say how long the downward tendency of prices will continue," he said. "I think too much depends on the agricultural outlook, and that in turn depends in part on the season and whether the people apply themselves to hard work. It depends also on whether the railroad situation clears up, the extent to which people save and invest and on the improvement in Europe through increased agricultural and other production.

"My conviction is that world conditions are tending to improve, and with that we will see a return toward normal. There has been no little inflation in the world, and some at home. We certainly cannot expect a recession of prices unless we have an improvement in production and distribution here and abroad; and unless we prevent credit expansion, and bring about a gradual deflation of credit. Deflation depends not only on the control of expenditures by individuals, but also by the Federal, State, municipal and country Governments.

"There are some signs already that individuals especially are beginning to control expenditures, although experts tell me that the expenditure this year on what the Treasury reckons as luxuries would exceed twenty billions of dollars.

"It was estimated on the basis of the tax receipts that the people would expend a billion dollars on candy, yet they complain of sugar shortage. The estimate for this year's consumption of soft drinks and beverages from cereals in which much sugar is used is $580,000. The expenditure on cigarettes for the year is estimated at $800,000,000, and on jewelry between $400,000,000 and $500,000,000, and so on. I am satisfied that the total is not an overestimate."

A comparatively small fraction of this money, he pointed out, if it were saved and diverted into productive investments would do much toward rehabilitating industry and providing capital for many essential lines of commercial activity.

Mr. Houston said that overtaxation was one of the great causes of present prices, and that it was on that account that he opposed an indiscriminate soldier bonus.

The assets of the corporation are said to be double the amount of the liabilities, and it is also claimed that the receivership is mainly for the purpose of reorganising and refinancing the project.

WILL INVITE AMERICA TO BRUSSELS PARLEYS

Bourgeois Says Other Nations Outside the League Will Be Heard, Too.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 26.—Leon Bourgeois, President of the Executive Council of the League of Nations, said this afternoon that a special invitation would be sent to the Government of the United States to participate in the financial conference to be held in Brussels after the meeting at Spa of the allied and German chiefs of Government. M. Bourgeois explained that the invitations would be sent to the twenty-five members of the League of Nations and provision would be made for hearing from countries that were not members of the League. M. Bourgeois was charged at the Rome meeting of the League Council to prepare for the Brussels conference.

"Before the meeting takes place at Brussels," he said, "M. Gustave Ador, former Swiss President, who will preside, will acquaint each of the invited States with the decisions of the Allies with regard to questions of reparations and of war debts. All discussion would be sterile without a knowledge of these decisions. I have addressed to Mr. Lloyd George as President of the Supreme Council a request that he supply us with all possible information on these points as soon as possible. We await this information, which we will undoubtedly get after the Spa conference, before setting a positive date for the Brussels meeting.

"I believe it very important to insist upon this detail. We cannot meet before the allied Governments have spoken. We cannot plan any question of international credit before the question of bases and guarantees has been settled. We cannot, and we do not wish to, substitute ourselves for the Governments in the institution of a financial policy with regard to Germany; but when the policy has been laid down, which is not yet the case, we have accepted the task of calling together not only our members but also other countries to seek means of remedying the distress and disorder from which all nations are suffering."

Ex-Vice President's Will Leaves Most of It to Daughters.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—An estate estimated at $10,000,000 is disposed of in the will of Levi P. Morton, former Vice President of the United States, which was filed in the Federal District Court here today for probate. The document was executed June 29, 1910, and was modified by codicils of March 26, 1911, June 4, 1911, and June 24, 1911. Mr. Morton died recently at his home near Poughkeepsie, N. Y., at the age of 96 years.

Charles H. Allen of Lowell, Mass., Morton Minot of Brockport, N. Y., and Bronson Winthrop of New York City are named as executors, and they, with the American Security and Trust Company of this city, will act as trustees of the estate.

Mrs. Martha Morton Hartpence of Philadelphia, a sister of the testator, is given a life annuity of $3,000, and the sum of $1,200 annually is to be paid to Mrs. Caroline Lay, a sister-in-law of Mr. Morton.

A life annuity of $720 is to be paid to Mr. Morton's butler and cash bequests to other servants. Mr. Morton's personal effects and furniture are to be distributed among his children.

Morton Corcoran Eustis, a grandson, is given the silver writing set and candlesticks presented to Mr. Morton by resolution of the Senate on the expiration of his term as Vice President and to his "eldest grandson" is left the testimonial of a piece of silver presented by the banking institutions of New York in 1869.

The remaining estate is bequeathed to the trustees, one share to be held in trust for each of the surviving daughters, Mrs. William C. Eustis, Mrs. Helen Morton and Miss Mary Morton, and one share to be distributed among children of Mrs. Winthrop Rutherfurd, a deceased daughter.

SAVE MORE, SPEND LESS, MEYER'S PLEA

TALK TO COAL OPERATORS

Industry Called Upon at Atlantic City Convention to Bear Its Share of Economies.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 26—To bring about a readjustment in the industrial life of the country it is necessary for everybody to spend less and save more, Eugene Meyer, New York banker and member of the War Finance Corporation, said today before the annual convention of the National Coal Association at the Hotel Traymore.

Mr. Meyer impressed upon the 1,000 bituminous coal operators at the convention the need for the whole country seriously devoting itself to settling the financial problems that face it if it is to emerge in a reasonable time from the chaos growing out of the war.

"If the great industries, as well as the individual himself, will squarely face the problem," Mr. Meyer said, "the country will soon find industrial conditions restored to normal.

"No alarm need be feared by the public as to any such contingency as a panic as long as the nation calmly and firmly works out the existing problem. America finds itself unable to depend upon foreign nations in any effort toward stabilising industry. This must be done by the country itself relying upon its own resources, and we can do it if we resolutely set about the task.

"Borrowers of large sums from banks must realise that it is necessary to have an appreciable liquidation in the next few months to bring about an easement of strained finances. Something must be done by next Fall so as to have money enough to move crops for the demands for Winter. Production and distribution must be encouraged as one means of solving the immediate problem.

"Not alone must the United States make sure that it produces enough for its own market, but it must endeavor to create a surplus to meet foreign demands. All Europe is looking to the United States for products, and if the final relations between this country and Europe are to be improved America must sell commodities in great quantities abroad. The whole world will need production from the United States for some time to come.

"It has become more apparent than ever in the last few months that the Government must take a greater interest in industry and industry must have a greater interest in the Government.

The convention reconsidered a vote of yesterday on directors "at large" and elected the following today: Philip Penna, Terre Haute, Ind.; Michael Gallagher, Cleveland; J. P. Walsh, Pittsburgh, and D. B. Wentz, Philadelphia.

Whiskers Will Not Be Stylish.

The unwillingness of the men of the metropolitan district to grow whiskers, coupled with the strike of the barbers, has been reflected of late in the decided influx of orders from this city and vicinity that is reported by manufacturers of razors. Thousands of men who were formerly served by barbers have apparently joined the ranks of the self-shavers. The call for safety razors has been especially marked, according to authorities in the cutlery trade, but the demand for straight "jack" razors has run a close second. There seems to be no information available regarding the effect of the strike on sales of appliances for cutting one's own hair.

Foulard Neckwear Slumps.

As a general rule, men's neckwear seems to be strongly held at prices only slightly lower than before the price break occurred in silks. English foulards, however, are an exception to the rule, and they are sold for what they will bring at the buyer's price. Despite the price firmness in other lines, the opinion in retail circles is that values will have to come down so that they more nearly represent raw material costs. Competition in the neckwear manufacturing line is keener than in other men's apparel branches, owing to the number of small houses engaged in the business. Before long, it is predicted that this competition will be unloosed in full vigor and prices be reduced accordingly.

Shirts Offered Cheaper.

Although the prices fixed for Fall by the large shirt manufacturers show increases, the retailers are still able to pick up many bargains outside the well known branded lines. This is especially true where silk garments are concerned. In cottons, also, there are price concessions offered for which $24 was asked. Instead of being able to purchase a variety of silk jersey shirts, crepe de chines and other silk constructions at $60 a dozen. He said that striped madras and Russian cords were obtained at $24 a dozen. These shirts were well made and represented values for which $24 was asked elsewhere. The retail stores appear to be well stocked, and for this reason it is thought that it may be some time before buyers show a willingness to order new merchandise at the prices asked.

To Reduce Dress Prices.

To 500 members of the Associated Dress Industries, located wherever dresses are made, were sent this telegram yesterday by Executive Director David N. Mosesohn: "Exercise every possible effort to reduce prices." The Associated Dress Industries of America, the national Chamber of Commerce of the dress industry, with which organization you are affiliated, has gone on record pledging the fullest measure of support of its members for a decrease in the cost of women's wearing apparel. Close every avenue of waste in your business; reduce overhead expenses as much as possible; seek co-operation of those you buy raw materials from." The sending of the telegram was an early step in a vigorous lower-apparel-prices campaign which is to be carried on by the association.

They Come Fresh Every Hour.

The candy concern which advertises that some of its products are made fresh every hour is getting competition, from the speed standpoint, from the local milliners in the way they are turning out sport hats. There seems to be no end to the new ideas that are being developed in this headgear. Among the newest things displayed here are painted leghorn hats and leghorns trimmed with various feather motifs. One "natural" hat of the latter type is trimmed with tennis rackets fashioned out of navy blue feathers. "Sweater" hats of gay-colored hemp are also shown for sports wear, as are models of milan straw made with organdie brims. Sports effects made of silk and wool corded in a spiral design are offered in a profusion of colorings.

Drug Sales Are Dragging.

Business is none too active in the local market for drugs and chemicals at the moment. Supplies of chemicals in warehouses are small. Drug and Chemical Markets will say today, and the uncertainty of arrivals discourages buyers. So, little business is being done. The dye market is stagnant, except for a slight advance is naphthalene, which continues scarce. Buyers are entirely out of the market, owing to the impossibility of obtaining prompt deliveries. The drug market has been almost stripped of ergot, and holders of the few remaining lots are demanding premium prices. Nux vomica is higher. Glycerin continues to advance, and talk of 30 cents a pound is quite general. Quicksilver is lower, reflecting the arrival of shipments from Italy and a less urgent demand.

Salesmen's Lot a Hard One.

The dress goods salesman has a hard row to hoe under present conditions. Though he may pick a few good values and call on the trade with them he finds they are never low enough to get business. A quotation of $2.55 on a coating will be met with a counter-proposal of $2. In general, the sellers of cheaper lines, such as cotton warp serges and other fabrics of an economical character, have a little the better of it in the present scramble for business. Also, those who direct their efforts to jobbers selling to the retail trade are in a little better position than those who try to do business with the garment manufacturers. The later, including the largest operators, are interested only in goods "at a price," and the price must be a very low one.

The Outlook in Woolens.

Although the opinion is ventured in the woolen market that the worst phase of the price situation will be over with the heavyweight season, there are many who disagree with this version of the outlook. The full effect of the price cutting movement, it is pointed out, has still to be felt in the market. So far, the absence of demand has created merely a flood of cancellations. As one market representative expressed it, even the demand for goods "at a price" is not a strong one. When a real demand develops it is felt that the efforts to obtain price concessions will only be redoubled. Moreover, one of the chief problems next season, it is explained, will be to make headway against the surplus of merchandise created by the backward Spring season.

Driving Prices Up Again.

In the opinion of a wholesale clothing man the bargain sales being held in retail stores will have just the opposite to the effect anticipated. In other words, the stores having clothed the public in clothing at reduced prices will have to replenish stocks at prices higher than those at which the bargains were sold. The gap between the bargain prices and those made necessary by purchases at the present market, he said, will be too great to warrant the belief that the consumer will do his usual buying. The manufacturers, he explained, do not intend to produce goods for stock, and this will prevent price raids by the retail dealers. Unless both woolen and labor prices come down, he sees no prospect of wholesale reductions sufficient to enable the retailers to keep on "selling on their present basis."

Gray Goods Pick Up a Little.

The demand for gray goods improved somewhat is the local market yesterday, especially in the case of printcloths for near by deliveries, but there is no telling how long it will keep up. Buyers paid 29 cents for near by shipments of 39-inch 80 squares, while 72-76s in the same width brought 26½ cents for prompt delivery. For spot and June deliveries of 39-inch 68-72s buyers paid 23 cents, which was a rise of half a cent a yard for the end of June and July lots of 39½-inch 60-48s were sold at 20 cents. June lots of five-yard sheetings brought 17½ cents, with 16 cents paid for prompt deliveries of 5.50s. A better tone to the market for voiles was in evidence and spot business was done on hard-twist goods at 21 and 22 cents. Lately the same goods had sold around 20 cents.

DECLINE IN ALL FUR BIDS.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, May 26.—Wednesday's auction of raw furs at the International Fur Exchange brought $1,000,000 total for the day. Showing the prevailing decline from the high February prices, best grade foreign coneys brought $61 a dozen skins, and domestics up to $10. Japanese mink were 40 per cent. lower; Japanese fox, 15; Japanese marten, 20, the best grade offered bringing up to $17 a pelt. A flying squirrel was 25 per cent. lower; Thibet robes were 10, and bar-undukl 25. Dog mats and robes were unchanged.

Thursday sales include 16,000 gray fox, 16,000 ringtail cat, 175,000 civet cat, 70,000 wolf and 475 timber wolf. Opened May 3 and to close Friday afternoon, the auction is regarded as the largest in the history of the trade.

Disallows Beckett's $65,000 Claim.

Surrogate Cohalan disallowed yesterday a claim by the estate of Surrogate Charles H. Beckett for $65,000 for his services in the litigation over the $14,000,000 estate of Amos F. Eno, which had not been concluded when Mr. Beckett died. Surrogate Beckett had received $35,000, and his estate asked for a total of $100,000. The claim was made against Gifford and Amos R. E. Pinchot, nephews, and Lady Antoinette E. Johnstone, niece, who are among the largest legatees of the estate. Surrogate Cohalan could find no legal ground for the claim.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Fluctuations of stocks yesterday included an early advance, a rather extensive reaction during the middle of the session and a listless recovery before the close. In net changes a majority of quotations were higher when business ended than the day before, some gains being substantial among the industrial shares, but the record of dealings as a whole told little except the operations of professional traders. Liberty bonds gained during the morning, easing off somewhat later but giving a good account of themselves throughout the day.

The action of stocks was quite in keeping with trading conditions of the last month, which have been of a character to promote great caution. The recovery of Tuesday and yesterday morning brought many gains of 4 to 8 points over Monday's final prices and naturally encouraged considerable realizing sales. Brokerage comment continues to advise a close watch upon paper profits, and with the market mainly in the hands of day-to-day speculators advice of the sort is accepted. Furthermore, there was little if any constructive news yesterday which had not been influential the day before in furthering the rally, and hence its influence was pretty well worn away. The Street is in a mood which seems likely not to be changed greatly until definite evidence comes of an improvement in railroad freight movement and an easement of credit conditions. While there has come, at least, a lull in discussion of price reductions it is not clear as yet that further adjustments in wholesale quotations will not occur before a stable business basis has been arrived at. It will take much time to unsnarl the railroad tangle even with the most efficient measures in use that can be devised for adequate apportionment of cars. The steel trade is realising this fact, for while congestion has been lessened during the last week at Pittsburgh and other centres, results are slow in moving raw material and finished products. Taking the steel industry as a barometer of current industrial events some rather curious processes are seen to be at work. The Iron Age notes that steel plates and structural material are displaying an easing price tendency while at the same time pig iron is firmer than a week ago, as are several steel products. The lesson to be drawn from the situation of the steel trade is that business in many lines has become spotty, disclosing confusing tendencies which make the outlook obscure.

As far as demand loans are concerned the stock market has a far greater supply than it needs. In some quarters the feeling prevails that idle money will soon have effect in bringing down rates on fixed period loans, but so far such easement has not gone beyond the talking stage. Call money yesterday was 6 per cent. Secretary of the Treasury Houston in discussing the credit position of the country at a local meeting of investment men reiterated his thoughts upon the soundness of current methods of inducing deflation, and in banking quarters generally the belief prevails that the movement is proceeding in a satisfactory way, considering all factors. The bankers are counting a great deal upon broad liquidation of grain and manufactured goods before midsummer and better railroad results will go far toward reaching the desired end.

All the European exchanges were strong, sterling joining in the advance with French, Italian and Central European rates. German exchange went as high as 3.16 cents per mark, and quotation on Austria, Poland and the other mid-European countries reflected substantial purchases. The rise in these exchanges has now proceeded far enough to convince many market followers that something more than speculative enthusiasm is being disclosed, vested mainly in the thought that industrial and trade factors are improving as the Spring months advance.

MORE ADDITIONS FORECAST

Other Issues Include $3,000,000 Stern Brothers and $15,000,000 Woolworth Securities.

Admission to trading yesterday on the New York Stock Exchange of temporary certificates for "American shares" of the De Beers Consolidated Mines, Limited, and Rand Mines, Limited, created considerable interest in financial circles, as it is the first time since the admission of similar certificates for "American shares" of Shell Transport and Trading and the Royal Dutch Company some months ago. In some quarters the admission of these two additional foreign securities was interpreted as a forerunner of many similar additions to the list in the future.

In the case of the De Beers Mines, five of the "American Shares" issued under an agreement between the Central Union Trust Company as depositary, Lazard Freres and all holders of certificates to be issued will be the equivalent of two of the deferred shares of the company of the par value of £2 10s each, deposited under the agreement.

The agreement with relation to Rand Mines is between the Bankers Trust Company, Bernhard, Scholle & Co. and all registered holders of certificates. It provides that each "American share" will represent 2½ ordinary shares of the Rand company of the par value of 5 shillings each.

Other issues admitted to the list yesterday were:

Voting Trust Certificates for 49,223 shares of capital stock Penn Seaboard Steel Corporation;

Stern Brothers, $3,000,000 7 per cent. cumulative preferred stock;

Computing-Tabulating-Recording Company, 26,206 shares additional common stock;

Saxon Motor Car Company, 7,000 shares additional common stock;

Phillips Petroleum Company, 512,000 shares capital stock;

Endicott-Johnson, 1,490,000 additional common stock;

F. W. Woolworth Company, $15,000,000 additional common stock;

The Amalgamated Sugar Company, temporary certificates for $5,000,000 6 per cent. cumulative first preferred stock;

The American Tobacco Company, temporary certificates for 10,975,200 common stock, "B" class;

Austin Nichols & Co., $5,500,000 7 per cent. cumulative non-voting preferred stock and 150,000 shares of common stock.

BELGIUM RECOVERS RAPIDLY

Two Crops Likely, Industry Busy, Harold Stanley Cables.

Harold Stanley, Vice President of the Guaranty Trust Company, sent a cable to that institution yesterday from Belgium saying he had been very much impressed by Belgium's rapid recovery from the disorganization and destruction wrought by the war. The cable said every parcel of ground throughout the country seems to be under cultivation and two crops instead of one seemed to be the general rule. Continuing it read:

"Manufacturing plants are busy, although some are greatly handicapped by lack of raw materials. The output of coal, which actually exceeds the rate of production in 1913, is proving an indispensable asset in the work of recovery. The newly discovered bituminous fields in the northern part of the country are being exploited, and it is confidently expected that soon the present shortage of soft coal will be overcome.

"I saw scarcely a vestige of the war on the railway lines, which are effectively taking care of the growing traffic, despite some depletion of rolling stock. Antwerp and the other Belgian ports are alive with ships. The port of Ghent received in January alone more than three times as much raw cotton as was worked up in this centre of the Belgian cotton industry in the entire year of 1913."

UNITED DRUG CO. AFTER BRITISH CHAIN

WOULD GET 647 STORES

Opening of Factories to Supply Own Establishments in British Isles Is Considered.

The United Drug Company is reported to be considering the purchase of Boots, Ltd., of England, one of the largest chain drug store enterprises in Europe. The Executive Committee of the United Drug Company was said to be meeting here yesterday to consider the purchase. No definite information could be learned as to what action was determined upon. The English company operates 647 stores throughout the British Isles and does a gross business of about $40,000,000 annually.

The prospective purchase, it is said, is an outgrowth of the trip to Europe by Louis K. Liggett, President of the United Drug Company. He went abroad early this Spring and returned only a few days ago. If the purchase is completed, the United Drug capital will be increased.

The present capital consists of $15,000,000 in 7 per cent. first preferred stock; $1,170,000 in 6 per cent. second preferred and $28,730,000 common. The second preferred stock is the balance of an issue, most of which was converted into common stock late last year.

While in Europe the President of the United Drug Company considered the advisability of opening manufacturing plants in England to supply stores there already owned by the company. It is believed plans are also under consideration for pushing the development of the United Drug Company in other countries of Europe.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

A Record Week?

There is the possibility that the current week will be a record one for the year, so far as money rates are concerned. The call money market thus far has not deviated from the 6 per cent. level, and if there are no flurries today or tomorrow a new record will be established. In the week of April 5-10 call loans renewed at 7 per cent. on Monday, but then stood at 6 per cent. until the closing minutes of Friday, when the rate got up to 10 per cent. Before that, in the week of February 16-21, the renewal on Monday was at 7 per cent., and only 6 per cent. was quoted thereafter to the close of the period. This week the record is 6 per cent. so far, and the chances of a flurry today or tomorrow are now considered somewhat slimmer than they were at the beginning of the week.

Time Funds Easier.

The stability of call rates this week comes as something of a surprise. Last week the relatively low rates were supposed to reflect the accumulation of corporate funds in the banks, an accumulation which could be considered as nothing more than temporary, and the comparison of deposit items in the actual and average statements at the end of last week tended to bear out this idea. Also, that comparison made it appear that the corporate deposits were on the way downward, which gave rise to the prediction that call rates would mount this week, especially as the June 1 interest and maturity payments would have to be taken care of before the week was over. However, the fact that time money for the sixty and ninety day maturities was offered yesterday at 5⅛ per cent., made it appear that money really was becoming easier, and while the June 1 requirements are still to be reckoned with, there were some yesterday who were inclined to be more optimistic in money market matters than they had been in a long time.

Continental Exchanges.

The Continental exchanges were again rampantly strong yesterday, German marks going above 3 cents each, and the French, Belgian and Italian rates moving up to the highest figures recorded since early in the year, before the "panic" of February and March. Even sterling, which has been more or less "out of line" in the present upward movement, was strong, gaining 2¾ cents on the day. The exchanges of the so-called "new" countries also were strong, aggressively so, and the whole market presented an appearance of firmness which had not previously been seen in a long time. Dealers were somewhat at a loss to explain the rise. Part of it, no doubt, is due to a rather widespread speculation—our American "economic illiterates" appear to be progressing nicely in their education—but it is more than probable that no small part of the advance is simply a reflection of improvement abroad. Most Americans who have got back from Europe in the last few weeks have been quite optimistic over the situation there and their optimism apparently is becoming common.

Prices Continue to Improve.

There was a further recovery in stock market prices yesterday with several issues advancing sharply under the impetus of short covering. On the whole, however, the upturn was not rapid and the last fifteen minutes of trading saw quotations ease off from the high points. In short, it was an orderly advance which was looked upon as much better than a violent swing by those who believe that the feeling of panic engendered by the price cutting wave which swept over the country is passing.

Crucible Shorts Pinched.

Crucible Steel recorded a sharp gain, the advance amounting to 7¼ points. Several days ago Crucible looked to be one of the weakest issues on the board. The price dropped quickly as stock in moderate volume was offered for sale. It appears that the shorts again were playing against Crucible. From about 115 the shares have rallied on covering operations to 132, a sizable gain to be recorded in a brief time. The Directors of the Crucible Steel Company will meet next month for dividend action and in some quarters it is expected that the 12 per cent. dividend rate will be maintained, the stock dividend shares thereby holding up to the old dividend rate. This possibility was not overlooked by those short of the shares. Furthermore, it is remembered that there is still a goodly portion of stock to come out in the form of stock dividends, when the Directors are so inclined.

Steel Shares Heavy.

The steel group presented a rather heavy tone. All reports indicate that the transportation tieup is not being solved as quickly as had been expected and production is not moving. Under such circumstances it is probable that earnings of steel companies for the second quarter of this year will show a sharp impairment as compared with earnings in the first quarter.

Copper Market Quiet.

There is no active buying demand for copper on a large scale. Still a goodly portion of production is finding its way to consumers and unless the general business of the country falls off materially it is probable that domestic consumption will increase within the next month. At any rate the copper surplus is fast disappearing or has disappeared entirely and the market will be ready to respond to active buying demand. The copper stocks are beginning to reflect the improved condition in the industry and gains of several points from recent lows are to be found recorded in the majority of issues.

The Leasing Fund Hearing.

The full member road meeting of railroad executives which is scheduled for tomorrow in Washington probably will adopt the detailed report of the Leasing Fund Committee of the Association of Railroad Executives, so that the representatives of the association may go before the Interstate Commerce Commission and present the recommendations regarding the amount of money to be spent for new railroad equipment. The commission has announced a hearing on the leasing fund to beh held tomorrow morning and the member road meeting and a subsequent meeting of the Standing Committee of the association is understood to be almost wholly preliminary. That the general railroad situation will be discussed is the opinion in most quarters, and it is expected that the executives will consider the freight congestion situation along with other pressing phases of transportation.

The Railroad Situation.

In spite of the fact that there are a great many serious obstacles in front of railroad executives and the Interstate Commerce Commission before the carriers as a whole can be put back on a safe and sane financial as well as physical basis, sentiment regarding the outlook is steadily improving in conservative banking and operating quarters. Railroad bankers who have analyzed the situation and found that in the next fourteen years the roads will have to meet total maturities amounting to more than $1,630,000,000, and that in the three years which will end with 1923 total maturities of more than $500,000,000, admit that this presents a big problem, but generally believe that it will be solved without unnecessary delay. Bond men who have specialized in the past in railroad securities assert that a market is being slowly but persistently built up again and declare conditions better for the roads than they have been for many years. Lastly, the railroad operators themselves take a better viewpoint and say that while the regeneration of many of the properties will be an uphill job, it stands a better chance of succeeding now than at any time in the last ten or fifteen years.

Sensitive to Selling.

The action of Atlantic, Gulf and West Indies shares yesterday was a fair indication of how sensitive some of the issues in the general list are to selling when the market turns. There was only an exchange of 800 shares of Atlantic Gulf and the net loss at the close was 4 points. On the preceding day the stock had registered a substantial advance on a turnover that was considered light when compared with the trading in the issue during an active market.

Temporary Economic Conditions have resulted in a very low level of prices for bonds of the soundest character. When these conditions alter, present investment opportunities will no longer exist.
Purchasers at present prices can not only secure a high return on their capital over a long period, but will undoubtedly find that this income will increase in buying power.

COURT TO STOP MUNICIPAL BUSES

Justice Callaghan Announces He Will Make Traction Company Injunction Permanent.

AWAITS PENDING APPEAL

Indicates He Will Find Brooklyn Line Damaged and Asks for Briefs.

At the close of the trial of a suit brought by the Brooklyn City Railroad Company against the city, Supreme Court Justice Callaghan in Brooklyn yesterday afternoon announced he would direct that a permanent injunction be issued restraining Grover A. Whalen, Commissioner of Plant and Structures, from continuing the operation of municipal buses in competition with certain surface lines owned by the company. The Court held that no emergency for such operation existed, as the city contended.

The permanent injunction will not be issued until the Court of Appeals has passed upon the city's appeal from the decision of the Appellate Division sustaining a temporary injunction. If the Court of Appeals reverses the Appellate Division the injunction will not issue and the buses will continue to run.

Commissioner Whalen testified that the action of the city in establishing the bus lines was based on an emergency caused by the second-fare troubles at Flatbush and Foster Avenues, the overcrowding of the Flatbush Avenue cars and the public protest against conditions. He admitted, however, that the second-fare charge and the disturbances lasted for only a week.

"Then the only continuing emergency you claim as justifying the operation of the buses was overcrowding of the cars?" asked Justice Callaghan. Commissioner Whalen admitted this.

"Haven't the transit lines of the city always been overcrowded during the rush hours of the day?" asked the Court.

"Yes," answered the witness.

"Then there could always have been an emergency in the city justifying the institution of bus lines?"

"Yes; unquestionably," replied Mr. Whalen.

Justice Callaghan indicated he would find that the company had been damaged by the operation of the buses and directed that briefs be submitted. Jackson A. Dykman, counsel for the company, figured damages at about $1,000 a day. Mr. Whalen had testified that the buses were carrying on an average of 85,000 passengers a day in Brooklyn, 55,000 on the lines competing with the Brooklyn City Company.

The Successful Business Man realizes the value of a connection with a responsible investment house

THE demands of his own business often preclude the exhaustive study of securities necessary to intelligent investment, yet his abilities in his own field result in surplus funds for investment, and his good judgment dictates the advisability of placing at least a part of these funds in the bonds of companies not associated with his own.

Moreover, the successful results of his own specialized efforts suggest a connection with an institution which has made investments its particular study.

We count among our clientele many successful business men to whose success we have contributed in no small part thru the safe and conservative investment of their surplus funds.

WIDE INTEREST FELT IN RAIN INSURANCE

THREE FORMS OF POLICIES

Risk Here Placed at About 4 to 1 for a 24-Hour Period and 7 to 1 for 12 Hours.

The interest in the new business of writing policies insuring against loss by rain was evidenced yesterday by the number of inquiries received by insurance men here. One of these was from the management of an old-fashioned picnic enterprise and another came from a scientifically inclined man who wanted to set aside a certain day to develop some important films and required a clear day.

"Weather insurance was primarily based upon a desire to protect crops against damage," said an official of the State Insurance Department yesterday. "It opens up a wider field, however, and there is no reason why any man or corporation the success of whose enterprise depends upon fair weather should not have protection against loss."

Those who have entered the field of writing Pluvius policies, as the weather risk is now called in the trade, are pledged to eliminate any chances of rain insurance becoming a new form of gambling. There are three forms of policies, as follows:

To pay for each separate week in which occur more than two days of rain amounting in each day to 0.20 of an inch or over.

To pay for the second and every additional rain day in every separate week, on which rainfall amounts to 0.15 of an inch or over.

To pay for every day on which the rainfall amounts to 0.20 of an inch or over. Policies can be issued either for single days; specified days in each week for a period of consecutive weeks; any period of consecutive days.

The latter policy is designed to meet the requirements of open-air fêtes, shows, &c.; pleasure-boat owners, country and riverside hotels, market stallkeepers, &c., and week-end holidays.

In the settlement of claims no appraisals or estimates are made. Upon the presentation of the official report of the United States Weather Bureau that a specified amount of rain fell in the section in which the risk was located the amount of the premium is paid.

"It took about forty men working several weeks to digest weather reports and figure out the percentage of risk upon which is based the amount of the premium," said A. P. S. Naul.

"As the amount of rainfall in certain sections of the country is greater than in others it was found that there was a variation in the element of risk. For instance, in Southern California, where rain is more frequent, the risk becomes more of an even money proposition. Here the risk is about 4 to 1 for a 24-hour period and 7 to 1 for 12 hours."

Insurance men have received many inquiries as to weather insurance. The most unusual came from a farmer in Texas who wanted to pay for a risk to protect him against loss to crops if there was no rain. He wanted the company to reverse a policy and bet it would rain.

A Vermont college has applied for a policy covering commencement week, and an inquiry has been made by a department store that wanted to insure against rain on a day when a widely advertised special sale was to be held. One of the large moving picture companies has applied for insurance, it was said, covering a period of days when it was planned to take a series of pictures in the open air. Holders of amusement concessions are making inquiries.

DINNER TO FRENCH MISSION.

Friendly Relations Between France and United States Emphasized.

The French Naval Ordnance Mission, which came to America six weeks ago, was honored at dinner by the French Institute at the Ritz-Carlton yesterday. The speakers were Vice Admiral Charbonnier, head of the mission; Maurice Casenave, French High Commissioner; Gaston Liebert, French Consul General, and representatives of the United States Army and Navy. The friendly relations and common ideals of France and America were emphasized.

Other guests included Professor H. A. Todd of Columbia University, Major H. D. Newson and Captain R. W. Greene, U. S. A.; Commanders Leary and Henderson and Lieut. Commander E. D. Langworthy, U. S. N., and five other members of the French mission. McDougall Hawkes, President of the French Institute, was the Chairman.

PROMISE LIQUOR RAIDS ON RICH CHICAGOANS

Prohibition Agents Say Employes of "Whisky Ring" Have Confessed Illegal Deliveries.

CHICAGO, May 26.—Charles B. Smith, President of the Stewart-Warner Speedometer Company, whose home was raided yesterday by liquor agents, surrendered to United States Marshal Bradley today. He posted a $2,500 cash bond. Hearing was set for June 7.

The arrest, according to Prohibition Commissioner Dairymple, followed confessions by members of an alleged whisky ring. A truck driver is said to have confessed delivering liquor to Mr. Smith's apartment.

Search warrants for a dozen or more homes, apartment houses and hotels have been asked for by Mr. Dalrymple, who states that sufficient evidence and confessions to warrant seizures of stocks of liquor have been obtained from drivers working for a "million dollar whisky ring."

The raid on the home of Mr. Smith was the first of several such visits, Mr. Dalrymple said. Ten cases of whisky were removed from Mr. Smith's apartment. Federal officers said that amount of the stock found being all that could be identified as bottled in 1920.

"From employes of the 'whisky ring' arrested last week we got a number of confessions leading to records containing evidence which we think leads to a lot of wealthy men who have purchased liquor through the ring's clearing house," said Mr. Dalrymple's assistant. "We found a long list of serial numbers of liquor bottled in 1920, which could not have been removed from a warehouse legally. In every case where we have traced liquor through confessions or documents we are going to seize it. There will be another jolt today."

Phone Rate Increase Granted.

The Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company, a subsidiary of the New York Telephone Company, will be allowed to increase telephone rates enough to bring the net return up to $605,000 a year. This will be an increase of nearly $450,000. The decision in the case was rendered by the Utilities Commission of the District of Columbia yesterday.

Franklin Company to Increase Stock

Stockholders of the H. H. Franklin Manufacturing Company, which makes the Franklin automobile, yesterday authorized an increase in the preferred stock from $5,000,000 to $15,000,000 and an increase in the common stock from $2,000,000 to $15,000,000. It is not planned to issue any of the increased capital this year. Unfilled orders on the books total 4,264 cars.

Kiwanis Club Favors Sales Tax.

The New York members of the Kiwanis Club, an organization of commercial partners and executives, at luncheon at the Hotel McAlpin yesterday adopted resolution favoring the substitution of a sales tax for the present excess profits tax.

STEEL IMPROVEMENT SLOW.

Approach to Normal Conditions Not Expected for Several Weeks.

The steel industry is still suffering from a greatly curtailed movement of freight, according to The Iron Age, which says that the improvement thus far has been slower than was expected. Several weeks, it is believed, must pass before there is any approach to normal conditions.

"Of the leading producing centres," says the publication, "greatest relief from the traffic congestion appears in the Pittsburgh district, which has reached about 75 to 80 per cent. of ingot capacity.

"In Chicago little change for the better is discernible on the whole. The leading interest has banked two blast furnaces, but is operating there at 70 per cent. of capacity, with the Inland Steel Company operating at 75 per cent. The most notable degree of improvement has occurred in the Western plants of the American Steel and Wire Company, which are again working at close to normal.

"In Youngstown operations are more nearly on a 50 per cent. basis, close to 10 per cent. improvement having taken place."

The Iron Trade Review says:

"As the return of normal operating conditions remains problematical, some readjustments to a further period of fractional production are beginning to appear. The action of a large Youngstown steel interest in reducing its clerical force 20 per cent. suggests that actual retrenchment is receiving attention by some managements. These measures are not due to a lack of orders or of a large unsatisfied demand, but rather in spite of them; since unfilled obligations are heavy. Manufacturers confronted by suddenly distorted costs, especially in fuel, are weighing future prospects wholly from an operating and not from a trade standpoint."

Lake Shore Electric Report.

The annual report of the Lake Shore Electric Railway Company for last year shows gross earnings of $2,067,225 as compared with $1,734,660 in the previous year. After the deduction of operating expenses and taxes amounting to $1,490,044 there were left net earnings of $577,180, which compared with $472,860 in the year 1918. Net surplus after the payment of interest was $237,379 as compared with $129,357 in the preceding year.

COTTON PRICES RISE ON BAD CROP REPORT

Estimate of 9,950,000 Bales by Jay & Co. Sends Whole List Up from 45 to 60 Points.

CLOSING HOURS SEE DROP

Net Gains for the Day Range from 32 to 52 Points—Liverpool Also Advances.

Another sensationally bad crop estimate was published yesterday and the cotton market forgot all about the strained credit situation for the time being and bid prices up rapidly. The report put out yesterday was that of J. W. Jay & Co., which made the condition only 62.3 per cent. and the estimated harvest 9,950,000 bales. This was even worse than the report of the National Ginners' Association of a day or so ago, which made the condition 64 per cent. and estimated the probable crop at 10,200,000 bales.

These reports usually make great ammunition for the market, and apparently the habit of playing them to the limit is too firmly imbedded in the cotton traders' minds to be given up even this year, when there are so many other factors to be considered. However, there is some question as to whether the market is not discounting too much on the strength of these private estimates and unless the Government's figures next Wednesday turn out unexpectedly poor there is the possibility that the advance will be found to have gone too far.

At the start of yesterday's market there was a strong tone and first prices were up 5 to 20 points, the gains increasing with the order of the months. This strong opening was followed by a considerable amount of irregularity, with prices losing all of their advances and recording losses which in some cases ran to as much as 10 to 12 points. Then came the private crop report, and by midafternoon the list was up 45 to 60 points, again with the distant months showing the greater gains. In the closing hour prices eased off a little from the tops, but closed at net gains of 32 to 52 points.

Liverpool, partly in response to the improvement here and the unfavorable crop news, advanced well after opening firm. Spots there were up only 3 points, but futures, which had started at gains of 21 to 28 points, advanced to gains of 66 to 75 points at the close.

China's Cotton Industry

COTTON manufacturers in China today own about 70,000 looms and 1,250,000 spindles. These are far from adequate to supply the domestic demand for cloth. If each person in China bought but one suit of cotton clothes a year, it is estimated that it would require at least 100,000 looms and 2,000,000 spindles to meet the need. Because of conditions in England and other former sources of supply, China looks to this country for cotton goods and machinery.

In availing themselves of this, as well as of other Oriental trade opportunities, American business men will find this Bank through its branch at Shanghai in China, as well as at Tokio and Yokohama in Japan, prepared to render wide service in all financial matters connected with import and export transactions.

Choosing With Care

Substantial profits are frequently made in the purchase of stocks of companies engaged in producing oil.

The business being by its nature speculative, a company should be selected which already has some settled production in a proven field and a liberal amount of carefully chosen acreage in reserve for drilling.

It is also essential to buy into a company whose capital is small compared with the value of its properties and whose stock has not yet encountered in its selling price the future profits of the company.

Such a situation is not easily found, particularly where immediate dividends are also available.

If you are interested in a security combining the above advantages, the details may be had from us on application and mention of this paper.

GAS MEN OPEN FIGHT FOR HIGHER RATES

Condition of Industry Critical, Emergency Committee of the American Association Says.

ASK COAL AND OIL PRIORITY

Prices of Product in 150 Cities Advanced Only 15 Per Cent. in Last Five Years.

The Emergency Committee of the American Gas Association, which represents 90 per cent. of the concerns interested in the manufacture and sale of gas in the United States, held an all-day session in the Hotel Pennsylvania yesterday to discuss the present condition of the industry due ot the shortage of coal and gas oil and the high prices of these commodities and the best methods for obtaining higher rates for gas.

A platform was adopted which stated that the situation was critical and that immediate relief must be obtained if the gas companies are to continue. The emergency relief, it was said, should consist of priority in shipments of coal, coke and oil and substantial increases in rates.

It was also agreed to protest against the present "tremendous exports of oil and coal" and to pave the way for permanent relief by abolishing the present candle-power standard, reduce the consumption of gas oil to the smallest possible amount and establish a system of elastic rates in order to meet changing conditions.

Committee on Gas Oil Supply.

A resolution was adopted authorizing the President of the association to appoint a committee of not less than seven members to confer with representatives of oil producing and refining interests and induce them, if possible, to insure a sufficient supply of oil for the use of gas companies, and also to ascertain what the price of gas should be in the different localities to meet the increased cost of making and distributing it.

Another resolution denounced the present wasteful candlepower standard of measuring gas, suggested that it be changed and that the authorities of this city and of all other cities where the antiquated candlepower method is still in force be urged to use their influence to abolish it.

During the discussion N. A. C. Smith, Chief of the Oil Division of the Federal Bureau of Mines, said that the demand for gasoline would undoubtedly increase, which would increase the shortage of gas oil.

"There was 7,500,000 automobiles and trucks in use in this country on Jan. 1," he said. "It is proposed to build more than 1,500,000 additional cars during 1920. At the present time there is difficulty in supplying enough gasoline to meet the demand, so it is not going to be easy to divert supplies of gas oil. The use of this fuel for engines is likely to increase. Thus the two largest competitors of the gas industry for gas oil are practically certain to become more formidable as time goes on.

"On the other hand the United States Geological Survey reports that the output of crude petroleum in this country has probably closely approached its maximum, and may soon begin to diminish."

Mr. Smith quoted David White of the Geological Survey who estimates that between six and eight billion barrels of crude oil are still available in the oil fields of this country and that at the present rate of consumption this supply would be exhausted in about twenty years.

Substitutes for gas oil may be found, Mr. Smith said, but that gas manufacturers probably would not benefit in this way for a long time. He thought imports of oil might be increased from Mexico and touched a hopeful key when he said that new deposits of oil have been found in Central and South America. He thought that if the open-flame burners were allowed the candle power standard could be abolished, with the result that less gas oil would be required.

Oscar H. Fogg, Secretary-Manager of the association, said that while the population of the various cities was steadily increasing the limit of the growth of gas companies had been reached because the companies had no control over their incomes.

Slight Advance in Price of Gas.

"Under regulated rates," he said, "the average price of gas in 150 cities has advanced fifteen per cent. in the last five years, from $1.09 per thousand in 1915 to $1.26 in 1919. During this period all other commodities, necessities and luxuries have gone well beyond the 100 per cent. mark.

Mr. Fogg said that coal had advanced 220 per cent., including increased freight rates, and labor had gone up between 150 and 200 per cent.

Among those who attended the meeting were Nicholas F. Brady, Martin B. Daly, President of the East Ohio Gas Company; Charles B. Kelsey, Chairman of the Board of American Public Utilities Company; T. N. McCarter, President of the Public Service Gas Company, Newark, N. J.; E. J. Mullaney of the Federal Gaslight Company, Chicago, Ill.; Charles G. Dawes, President of the Central Trust Company; Charles M. Cohn, Vice President consolidated Gas, Electric Light and Power Company, Baltimore; Md.; Arthur M. Childs, President Massachusetts Lighting Companies, Boston; Sidney Mason, President Welsbach Company, Gloucester, N. J., and Randall Morgan, Vice President the United Gas Improvement Company, Philadelphia, Pa.

Judge Mayer Provides, for Line Leased by New York Railways Co.

Federal Judge Mayer instructed Job E. Hedges, receiver of the New York Railways Company yesterday to pay the interest of $203,750 due June on $8,150,000 of the Consolidated bonds of the Broadway and Seventh Avenue Railroad Company, a leased line; not to pay the interest on the mortgage of the Columbus Avenue line, and adjourned until June 21 consideration of action concerning payments due on the Lexington Avenue line.

Counsel for Mr. Hedges explained that if the lease of the Broadway and Seventh Avenue line were abrogated, the Railways company would lose its offices, the Lexington Avenue route would be cut in two, and the system would be deprived of its repair and maintenance shops. The receipts of the line in April, it was stated, were $151,000 and the operating expenses $174,000. The deficit for the year was reported to be $273,000 and its existing debt, exclusive of taxes, $175,000.

On May 20 the Railways company had on hand $909,465, and it was estimated that on June 3 the cash would amount to $751,065. This estimate, it was explained, was exclusive of any payments which might be made of taxes or other costs not directly due to operation.

TENANTS PURCHASE THE PETER MINUET

AN ELEVEN-STORY HOUSE

Beverwyck Apartment Hotel on West 27th Street Passes Into New Control.

Tenants in the big eleven-story apartment house at 35 Claremont Avenue, known as the "Peter Minuet" have arranged to purchase the property through Harle & Calhoun. It covers a plot 78 by 100, and contains thirty-three apartments arranged in suites of five, seven and eight rooms.

It will be owned under the new co-operative plan which has been steadily gaining favor in many parts of the city and which is drawing many tenants into the ownership class.

Deal on for the Umatilla.

According to report the Umatilla, an eight-story apartment house, at 235 to 239 West Seventy-fourth Street, is being resold by Julius Tishman & Sons, who bought the property last April. It occupies a plot 50 by 102.2, and was held at $350,000.

Buys the Beverwyck.

The Beverwyck, 39 and 41 West Twenty-seventh Street, a seven-story apartment hotel on a plot 50 by 100 has been purchased by David H. Van Damm, Edwin Bendheim and S. Schweiger. The property was held at $300,000, and has been owned by the Beverwyck Company since 1898.

Other Apartment Deals.

J. Anthony Minott in conjunction with J. Q. Moses sold for Morris Lipschitz 127 West 133d Street, a five-story triple flat on a plot 33.4 by 99.11 to a client for investment. The property was held at $40,000, and was sold for all cash over the first mortgage.

The Lebertan Corporation bought 122 West Eighty-fourth Street, a five-story double apartment house, for all cash over a mortgage of $34,000. John F. Finck acted as broker for the seller.

James H. Cruikshank has resold to Morris Mizel the five-story single flat at 77 West Ninety-fourth Street, on a plot 20 by 100. Held at $28,000. B. Weber was the broker.

AN OPPORTUNITY TO GET A FINE HOME CHEAP.

Business interests take me and my family to South America permanently and the fact that we are sailing within 2 weeks makes it imperative that I sell my home. To do so quickly I am offering it at a fraction of its real value to some one of culture and refinement who would be acceptable to my neighbors, whose desires in the matter I would like to consider. The grounds were beautifully landscaped by a prominent architect several years ago and elaborately planted with flowers and shrubs. Fine trees abound. The house is a gem, of real old Southern architecture, in absolutely perfect condition from cellar to attic. The purchaser could move in on 24 hours' notice and avoid the many annoyances and expenses incident to occupying a new house. The first floor consists of a huge veranda across the front and along the east side of the house, a panelled living room, 30 ft. long, with immense open fireplace, an immense living hall leading to solarium in the rear, a spacious dining room, a fully glazed breakfast room, butler's pantry and kitchen. Five master bedrooms and two very large tiled bathrooms and sleeping porch comprise the second floor. The third floor has a pool and billiard room, extensive servants' quarters and servants' bath. The location is ideal, within five minutes' walk of the R. R. express station, with fine commuting service to New York City. The neighborhood is exclusively residential and occupied by an unusually fine class of people. Elevation over 900 ft. All city conveniences for comfortable living in the country prevail. I will sell this property complete, ready for immediate occupancy, for $6,500 cash, balance to remain on 1st and 2d mortgages. Complete details, including plans and several pictures, can be obtained from the writer by addressing MINING, P. O. Box 378 City Hall Station, New York City.

What $5,000 Will Do

with $75 per month carrying charges.

It will give you title to this beautiful home on a large corner plot

at Leonia, N. J.

House has ten very large rooms, 2 tiled bathrooms, 2 piazzas, sleeping porch, billiard room. Handsomely finished and appointed with every improvement; built-in soap dishes, electric ironing board. A place which would be hard to duplicate today at any price.

It has never been lived in and is ready for immediate occupancy. An opportunity for some one to save one-third of today's cost. Investigate!

An Eye to the Future

THEIR own accountant served them adequately for ordinary accounting work.

But their business grew, and as it did, they outgrew their accountant.

For now they required not only a mechanical audit of their books but a type of service that would fully meet their organization needs for system and tax work. The desirability of an organization of accountants that would bring specialized knowledge to special problems became apparent. Today they are comprehensively served.

Looking forward to possible future expansion is an important factor when retaining those who are to serve you.

VICTORY HALL SITE DRAWS NO BUYERS

Upset Price of $2,800,000 for Grand Union Hotel Plot, Costing City $4,221,000, Ignored.

PARCELS ARE WITHDRAWN

Commissioner Delaney Announces That Properties Will Be Offered Again in October.

Not a bid was made for the old Grand Union Hotel site at Pershing Square yesterday at the widely heralded sale of well-located city real estate properties in the Real Estate Exchange Salesroom, authorized by Transit Construction Commissioner John H. Delaney. Buyers were found for only two of the six big plots offered at various upset figures and four properties were withdrawn from the sale after ineffectual efforts on the part of Henry Brady, the auctioneer, to stimulate interest in the offerings.

Real estate men expressed the opinion that two powerful deterrent factors had operated against the success of the sale. The first factor was the unfavorable selling terms demanded by the city, which called for the payment of the entire purchase price in cash not later than July 26. There were several builders and operators present who openly expressed their willingness to bid for the properties if mortgage arrangements could be made covering part of the selling price. Commissioner Delaney had no authority to make such concessions, so the four highly desirable unimproved building sites in the city went begging at a public sale with no takers.

The second factor which many real estate men declared militated against the sale of the former Grand Union Hotel plot was the recent announcement that the Directors of the Victory Hall Association had definitely decided upon the site for the erection of the war memorial building to be financed by popular subscription in a ten-day drive, beginning on Armistice Day, Nov. 11. Under the law recently enacted at Albany the association may acquire by purchase or condemnation any block which it desires for its purposes. For this reason, it was said, many prospective bidders were unwilling to tie up large amounts of cash in a site which in a very short time might be involved in long and costly condemnation proceedings.

Henry Mandel, builder, made a bid of $2,800,000 after Mr. Brady withdrew the plot from the sale and offered to close the transaction next Tuesday, but Commissioner Delaney declined to accept the offer.

Commissioner Delaney attributed the unwillingness of bidders to the curtailment of financial credits for real estate projects. He said the unsold properties would be offered again in October.

The block front on West Broadway from Barclay Street to Park Place, formerly occupied by the Martin B. Brown printing plant, was sold to John B. Hibbard for a client for the upset price of $325,000. The buyer plans a commercial improvement. This plot, which has an area of 14,583 square feet and foundations sufficient to support a thirty-story building, cost the city $694,000.

Charles F. Noyes, for a client, bought the rectangular plot on the west side of Flatbush Avenue extension in Brooklyn, 120 feet north of DeKalb Avenue, for $14,250, or $2,250 above the upset price. It cost the city $24,000.

One of the most surprising developments at the sale was the lack of interest in the big building site at the northeast corner of William and Beekman Streets, a plot with an area of 6,315 square feet, in the insurance district, which has witnessed within recent months one of the biggest speculative and investment buying movements in the history of the city. This plottage, which cost the city $220,749, was offered at an upset price of $185,000. The other properties withdrawn were the block front on the west side of Centre Street from Canal to Walker Street, which cost $146,755 and was offered for $85,000, and the block front on the west side of Centre Street, from Canal to Howard Street, which cost $559,000 and was offered for $175,000.

FIRING SQUAD REFUSED TO SHOOT KOLCHAK

So a Commissary Walked Up to Admiral, Puffing a Cigarette, and Killed Him.

VICTORIA, B. C., May 26.—Admiral Kolchak, former head of the all-Russian Government, died smoking a cigarette, according to Captain Wallace I. Webb, Provost Marshal with the British forces and head of the International Military Police in Siberia, who arrived from Vladivostok today. He was in Irkutsk at the time of Kolchak's execution.

Captain Webb said Kolchak and Premier Peppellayeff were taken out and placed before a revolutionary firing squad. Kolchak asked if he was to be tried, and when informed that he was not he asked permission to see his wife, but his request was refused.

"Give me a cigarette," he then calmly asked, according to Captain Webb, who said Kolchak with a steady hand lighted it and faced the squad awaiting the end.

"Peppellayeff, screaming for mercy," said Captain Webb, "attempted to run away and was shot down. Kolchak, smoking his cigarette, calmly awaited the volley. The order was given to fire, but the firing squad refused to obey. Kolchak continued to puff away at his cigarette. Incensed at the refusal of the firing party to obey a commissary strode forward, pushed Kolchak's head back and blew his brains out with a revolver."

ALLEGED SPY TRIES SUICIDE.

Kohl, in Peruvian Prison, Severs Arteries, but Is Saved.

LIMA, Peru, May 24.—Otto Kohl, or Cohen, an alleged Chilean spy of German origin, who was arrested several days ago by the military authorities, attempted to commit suicide in his cell last evening. He severed the arteries in his wrists, but his injuries were discovered in time to prevent his death.

The Lima newspapers today print extensive details of the affair in which they declare that when he was captured documentary evidence of an incriminating nature was found upon him. This, the newspapers assert, including a letter from a Chilean army officer embodying a memorandum of instructions as to information desired about the Peruvian Army and Navy. They assert that the alleged spy made a full confession in the presence of military officials and prominent members of the Germany colony.
